Allison MacFarland Must Explain Wife's Death.

ANOTHER CYANIDE MYSTERY.

Newark Man Claims Wife Committed Suicide With Poison Purchased to Clean Jewelry—Father of Dead Woman Losing Faith in Son-in-law.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 26.—Allison MacFarland was indicted by the Essex county grand jury for the murder of his wife, Evelyn MacFarland, at their home, 436 Park avenue, on Oct. 17, MacFarland is charged with having placed cyanide of potassium in a bottle that had contained a sedative medicine with the intent to kill his wife by the substitution. The indictment was returned before Judge Davis.

The MacFarland case was taken up by the grand jury in special session.

Among those who testified before the grand jury were several jewelers, who told of the effect cyanide of potassium would have on jewelry. MacFarland asserts he bought the poison which killed his wife at her request. She wanted it, she said, to clean her jewelry. This statement was ridiculed by the jewelers who declared cyanide would turn diamonds yellow and ruin pearls. They took, as an example, the diamond and pearl ring of Mrs. MacFarland, which is in the possession of Prosecutor Mott.

Attorney McDermit visited his client, MacFarland, in the county jail and, after the interview said MacFarland had prepared a written public statement of the case, which covers from forty to fifty closely written pages. In this statement, which was given out, MacFarland states his reasons for believing his wife was a suicide. McDermit was accompanied to the jail by a detective from Philadelphia. Prosecutor Mott has wired George A. Crockett, Mrs. MacFarland's father, at Rockland, Me., of the charge that has been brought against MacFarland. A significant change in Crockett's attitude is reported. He has previously professed his faith in MacFarland's innocence, but now he is reported to have hesitatingly declared "the courts must decide."

NO CHARGE AGAINST GIRL.

MacFarland's Affinity Reassured by Newark Prosecutor.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Fear that Miss Florence Bromley, daughter of John H. Bromley of 4237 Viola street, might become entangled in the web of circumstantial evidence which the Newark, N. J., authorities are weaving about Allison MacFarland, a former Philadelphia promoter, who is accused of having poisoned his wife, is ended. Prosecutor Wilbur A. Mott of Newark telephoned to Miss Bromley's attorney here, A. T. Johnson, that no charge had been made against the girl and that no charge was contemplated. This statement from the prosecutor is said to have been the result of the discovery of evidence showing that Miss Bromley was expecting MacFarland to obtain a divorce from his wife, so that he could marry his Philadelphia affinity.

Letters written to MacFarland by the girl are said to contain numerous references to divorce proceedings, and MacFarland's letters frequently dwell on the same theme.

RICHESON SEES FATHER.

Accused Minister May Be Indicted This Afternoon.

Boston, Oct. 26.—According to District Attorney Pelletier, a search of the casket containing the body of Miss Avis Linnell did not result in the discovery of anything in which she could have conveyed the cyanide of potassium into the bathroom when she went there a week ago Saturday night to swallow the poison. This disposes of the theory that the container might have been left in the bathroom when it was placed in the coffin.

This morning the grand jury convened in special session to consider such evidence as may be presented by the police with a view of having an indictment for murder returned against the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson. Richeson's father went to see his son, remaining in the jail slightly less than an hour. The old man was visibly affected when he entered the jail, but he was whisked out so quickly by a basement door that no reporters had the opportunity of questioning him about the interview.

How to Control and Direct the Light.

In order that you may make your pictures artistic you must learn how to control and direct the light just where you want it to produce the desired effect.

Controlling the light is a very simple matter, and entails no extra apparatus beyond a few sheets of paper or cloth, and a few pins or thumb tacks for holding them in position.

It is generally accepted that allowing the light to fall on the face at an angle of forty-five degrees produces the most natural effect, and you can easily secure this illumination by simply blocking up the lower half of the window.

We do not say that any other method of lighting cannot be used, its some most charming effects can be produced by allowing the light to come from other angles.

Now with the lower portion of the window curtained, and the reflector placed in the proper position, you have the light under good control for bust or half length portraits, but suppose you want to make a full length portrait with the subject attired in dark costume; in this case you have got either to move the subject further back from the window, use a semi-transparent curtain for blocking the lower half of the window, or use a second reflector to reflect the light upon such portions of the subject as require it.

The simplest way is, of course, to move the subject back from the window until the light covers the figure fully, but in some cases this will extend the duration of the exposure beyond the practical limit, when one of the other two alternatives must be employed.
