Frank Schaffer, president of the Flint Glass Workers' Union of Honesdale, was adjudged mentally insane last week by a commission appointed for that purpose. After a hearing they decided the man was afflicted with a bad case of melancholia, brought on from worry and disappointment as to the outcome of the present labor troubles here in Honesdale. He was taken to Danville on Monday for treatment.

Last Friday morning two of the machine operators, employed by the Gurney Electric Elevator company, were discharged for disobeying orders. A few of their companions tried to work up a sympathy strike and succeeded in inducing a few others to go out, four of whom were married men. On Saturday, however, cooler thoughts prevailed, due, probably to the fact that they could not induce any more to go out, and on Monday morning four of the five returned to work, and in so doing have used good judgment. Any labor troubles at this time with this concern would be disastrous to the town and we are therefore doubly glad that these men so quickly saw the error of their ways.

The State Railroad Commissioners will probably not hold another meeting this month unless a reply is received from the officers of the Ligonier Valley Railroad company on the report made on the recent wreck. On Thursday morning a freight train pulled into Callicoon, N. Y., with a box car on fire. The Callicoon fire company came to the assistance of the train and succeeded in putting the fire out.

The mercury touched as low as 45 degrees in Honesdale Friday night and it is stated on good authority that Friday was the coldest July day in some years. Saturday was cool but the thermometer rose a trifle. According to a local record there have been only three days in twenty years that the temperature went as low in July. The cause of the cold spell is supposed to be the continuation of the cold wave that swept over the north eastern states bringing frost last Thursday.

In accordance with the announcement made more than a month ago, the Pennsylvania Railroad trains hauling dining and buffet cars will eliminate strong drinks from the bill of fare, the order is now in effect, and the first trains without any strong drinks passed through Harrisburg last week. The work of boring for a foundation for the dam site near Hawley was finished on Thursday of last week. The diamond drill and other equipment have been shipped to Sprague & Henwood of Scranton, who had the contract to do the work. The boring has been in progress continuously since the middle of December and in all twenty-three holes were bored an average depth of about sixty feet. The deepest hole is about ninety feet and the smallest about forty-five feet. About eight of the holes were drilled on the Pike county side and the rest on the Wayne side. In all of these places the foundations were found fairly satisfactory and in each case, after going down a certain depth, solid rock of sandstone was found.

Shortly before one o'clock on Saturday afternoon the big 29-ton steam shovel at work on the Hawley Coal Company's washer, about two and a half miles above Hawley, tipped over while men were moving it. Peter Deitzer, the engineer, was in the cab at the time and when the big shovel toppled over and went down the embankment, he was forced to remain in the cab where he was severely scalded by the steam and it was about ten minutes before the men could get him out. Dr. Voigt, the company's physician, attended his burns and he was taken to Scranton for treatment. Another man received burns on the arms and shoulder.

The old whitened mahogany desk which has done duty for the Speaker of the House of Representatives since the opening of the new State Capitol, will give way within a few months to a handsome bronze affair which is now under construction by the Art Metal Construction company, of Jamestown, N. Y. The contract was let a short time ago and will be part of the improvements to the chamber of the House. The desk will be about the same size as the present one, but will be handsomely ornamented, containing a shield with the State arms in the center and flanked by lions. Monday, July 22, was the one hundred and thirty-third anniversary of the celebrated battle of Midsink, near Lackawaxen, on the New York side of the Delaware river. It was one of the most bloody battles of the Indian wars, when hundreds of white men were killed with muskets and tomahawks and their bones were left on the field of battle for nearly forty years. At the present time there is a movement to mark the spot where so many brave men fell. The atrocious cruelty of the Indian Chief Brant cannot be pictured but for all his cruelty he protected children and Masons. The monument, which marks the spot, is situated in the town of Highland, N. Y. It is about one and three-quarters of a mile from Lackawaxen village. In Orange county, New York, there are many descendants living of the men who fell in that memorable battle and a special train from that county conducted many people to the scene of the battle and who attended the event at Lackawaxen on Monday. Many from this county were in attendance.

W. L. Hopkins, of Aldenville, was in town one day last week and in talking to a reporter stated that Edward Walsh had left his place of his own accord and up to the time he left had been treated as well as a mischievous boy could be. He said that Walsh had been treated as a son and that he had taken the boy from the poor farm seven years ago when he was too small to do any work to pay for his keeping. The boy left his home in Aldenville on Sunday morning in his working clothes and had left his good clothes in the house. A nine-mile tramp over a dusty road on a hot day would make any boy look dirty, ragged and starved.
