

HAPPENINGS IN OUR NEIGHBORING VILLAGES

STEENE.

(Special to The Citizen.)

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Ball, of Honesdale, spent Sunday with Mrs. Chas. Baker at Waymart.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hambley, of Honesdale, visited the latter's parents here Sunday.

The sentiment of the residents of this vicinity and Waymart where the murdered man, Mr. Dolphin, was well known, is that justice has not been done. Hubbard, the slayer, knew that he was causing disturbance at the home of the murdered man, the man with a wife and two little daughters that thought the world of their father. Now then, we claim, as the slayer of Mr. Dolphin knew of the disturbance being made, why didn't he, like a man, get out, and leave the family to themselves. It would have shown some principle on his part, and Mr. Dolphin would have been spared to watch over and care for the two little daughters that are now left fatherless.

The Bobolink and mate soared around among friends at Honesdale Saturday.

The Bobolink is sporting a brand new platform spring wagon.

Richard Bodie, with a gang of men and teams, are loading props at the switch at Prompton.

William Arnold, who has been quite ill at his home at Bear Swamp, is much improved.

The passenger train on the Honesdale branch struck and killed a valuable cow belonging to Frank Adams one day last week.

ON DOOMED VESSEL

Captain Refuses to Leave His Ship.

WIFE AND CREW ARE ASHORE.

On July 28 Terrific Storm Drove Boat Aground, and All Aboard Were Compelled to Remain Three Days and Nights Without Food or Water.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—Two members of the crew of the wrecked Norwegian steamship Madreance and the wife of the captain arrived at Philadelphia on board the fruit steamer Joseph J. Cuneo, which rescued them from the stranded ship. For three days and nights they were compelled to remain in the hold of the vessel without food or water.

Captain Carl Schmidt refused to leave the doomed ship, and if the vessel has not been pounded to pieces by the waves he still remains on the stranded steamer, hoping against hope that the Madreance can be floated and once more put to sea.

On July 28 a terrific storm drove the Madreance aground on Bird rock, in Crooked Island passage, the Bahamas. The waves wedged the ship tightly between the coral reefs. Everything on the decks was swept overboard, while the hold was flooded with water.

For more than three months the crew remained on the stranded vessel working to repair the damage. Then another storm came, which was so violent that none could remain above deck. For three days the crew were forced to remain in the hold. They had no water or food, as everything had been ruined by the sea water.

On Nov. 6 the Joseph J. Cuneo here in sight, and the crew of the Madreance succeeded in attracting her attention. The chief officer and the chief engineer and Mrs. Schmidt put out in a small boat. They were almost famished and worn out with their long vigil and barely had strength enough to row to the fruit steamer. They were taken aboard and fed and then brought to this port.

Captain Schmidt refused to leave his ship, although it was in hourly danger of breaking up. He declared he would remain on board as long as a single spar remained afloat.

WINS BRIDE ON ELECTION.

Berwick Merchant Marries Rich Widow in Payment of Bet.

Berwick, Pa., Nov. 14.—John H. Bardoe, a merchant of this place, married Mrs. William Cook, a wealthy widow, also of Berwick, in payment of an election bet, following the success of Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Bardoe had been an ardent admirer of the widow, and she wagered him that Taft would be re-elected. The bet was made between them, with the stipulation that if Wilson was defeated by either Taft or Roosevelt Mr. Bardoe should remain a bachelor. If Wilson was successful Mrs. Cook agreed to become his bride immediately after the election.

Following the success of Mr. Wilson, Mr. Bardoe lost no time in hastening the arrangements for the ceremony, and they were married by the Rev. Griffith Ball.

BIG BCOM IN PROJECTILES.

Plants in Pittsburgh District Rushing Work—Russia a Buyer.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14.—The war in the Balkans has brought to Pittsburgh a rush for projectiles from the Russian and United States navy departments. The Fifth Sterling Steel company, the biggest manufacturers of projectiles in America, is working its plant to capacity. Last week additional electrical equipment was installed in the great plant at Demmer, ten miles south of Pittsburgh, and since Sunday the plant has been running day and night.

Professor John A. Brashear, noted astronomer and manufacturer of lenses for range finders on battleships, has his big plant on the north side operating day and night. Neither the Fifth Sterling nor the Brashear company will give any information, as the nature of their business is necessarily secret.

BOY, 17, ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Youth, Unable to Secure Work, Inhales Gas, but Will Recover.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—James Camero, seventeen years old, of 743 Earp street, who is at the Mount Sinai hospital recovering from attempted suicide by inhaling gas, will soon be discharged from that institution. His attempt to end his life was due to his failure to obtain work.

His family, he said, notified him that he could not remain at home unless he secured employment. The boy was found unconscious in his room by his mother.

Camero was employed in a shoe factory at Fourth and George streets until recently, when he was thrown out of employment when the place was damaged by fire. He obtained work in a wall paper factory, but was physically unable to do the work.
