S. Federal Court which convenes at Williamsport, Monday, Jan. 13. They are John D. Bryant of Honesdale, and Milton L. Skinner, of Milanville. There are ten cases listed for civil court and only two criminal cases. The grand jury will probably be in session only a few days. —The London morning papers are heartily pleased with President Taft's declaration of his intention to submit the Panama Canal controversy with Great Britain to arbitration if diplomatic negotiations should fail. The Daily Mail says: "Any other than the honorable course which President Taft has taken would have been almost unthinkable on the part of a statesman who has devoted such efforts to furthering the cause of international peace throughout the world. If the Senate follows President Taft's lead, the Panama question is as good as settled." —Many interesting statements concerning their work are contained in the annual report of the University Hospital, at Philadelphia, just issued. Four thousand six hundred and thirty-eight patients were treated in wards and 14,120 in dispensaries. More strict enforcement of fire regulations is contemplated by Director Porter, the establishment of a rigid system of inspection being the chief feature of his plan. The minimum wage for women is $9 according to investigations of the New Jersey Public Service Corporation, a representative of that concern declaring at the City Club that self-respect could not be purchased with a less sum. —State inspection of every orchard at least once a year to prevent the start of infection is being advocated by State Zoologist H. A. Surface in talks with legislators about the rapidly growing State supervision work in fruit-growing districts. Dr. Surface is of the opinion that the time is at hand when it will be necessary to safeguard orchards which are operated by men who employ scientific methods in keeping down scale and other pests by providing for inspection of adjacent orchards. It has been found that in many instances orchards upon which much money has been spent have been infected from neighboring orchards whose owners took no care of trees. The Surface plan is to inspect all orchards at least once a year and to make removal of infected trees compulsory. He argues that so much money is going into fruit-raising and it is developing so rapidly that care must be taken. The present system does not permit of inspections often than once in five years except where orchards are directly under the State supervision. In mountain counties apple growing is being revived and yet many instances of infection from old orchards are found.

—"As Others See Us," will appear in our next issue. The descriptive sketches are written by members of the Honesdale High school and are very interesting. In a forthcoming edition we will publish the names of the persons. See how near you come to answering the descriptions correctly. —Last year over two hundred dollars worth of prizes were distributed at the annual euchre of St. John's congregation. This year the prize list is equally as large and includes some valuable articles. Interest in the affair to be held at the armory on Jan. 22 is not confined to Honesdale alone, as numerous parties are planning to attend from Canaan, White Mills, Hawley and other places. —The account of the will of Mrs. Ball was crowded out of our last issue by a rush of matter, is given below in part. She requested that after her just debts and funeral expenses were paid that she bequeathed to her daughter, Jessie B. Dolmetsch, the sum of $8,000 due in sixty days from the estate or to her interest. She also gave her daughter all her household goods excepting books and fixtures which are to be divided among her three daughters. Also to her daughter she bequeathed the use of one half of her house in Honesdale on the corner of East and High streets, until she marries or her daughter, Marguerite, shall marry, but the house is to be sold and divided among her legal heirs. All the rest of her property she directed to be converted into cash and bequeathed to Sadie B. Dunsmore and Antoinette B. MacMillan the sum of $6,000 each and any excess to be divided equally between the three daughters. She also requested that a mortgage held on a property of a relative in New York should not be collected during the lifetime of the relative. The will was made on June 19, 1899, and was witnessed by Mrs. A. T. Whitney and A. T. Searle. The three daughters of deceased were appointed executors.

THIS COIN THOUSAND YEARS OLD.

Stroudsburg, Jan. 6.—A Japanese coin one thousand years old and another one hundred and sixty years old, two widow's mites, similar to those spoken of in the Old Testament; Roman pennies, used in paying off the workmen on the old Roman roads in England and one hundred and forty-four Indian relics are in a wonderful collection of curios owned by Mr. and Mrs. Noah Sheldon, of Crowley Heights. The Roman pennies are about the size of a silver dollar and very heavy. One of these was a day's wage during the period they were in general circulation.

CATTLEMEN DRAW UP SEVERAL BILLS.

Legislation to supplement the present laws governing the State Livestock Sanitary Board, amending some of them materially, was completed by the Pennsylvania State Cattle-men's Association's legislative committee Friday night at the Commonwealth hotel in Harrisburg. Final drafts of the bills will be made for early introduction. Differences of opinion which formerly existed between the association and the livestock sanitary officials seem to have been adjusted satisfactorily, as Dr. W. S. Gimper, director of the Division of Tuberculosis and Milk Hygiene, sat with the cattlemen throughout the sessions. One of the most important features of the cattlemen's work was to fix prices for maximum appraisalment allowed for animals condemned for disease. Heretofore the association had been working for a law to increase the percentage of value allowed, but in its bill it fixes the following scale of prices: Horse, mule or bovine of grade or common stock, $60; registered bovine, $100; sheep, $10; pig, $20. The appraisalment shall not exceed two-thirds of the actual value of the animal. Carcasses and parts are to be disposed of by the owner as the board shall direct. Any bovine condemned, slaughtered and found healthy shall be paid for in full. At least four more members are asked for by the Livestock Sanitary Board, one each representing the farming, dairying, shipping and slaughtering interests of the State. It now consists of the Governor, Secretary of Agriculture, Dairy and Food Commissioner and State Veterinarian.

THEY WIELD THE WHITEWASH BRUSH.

A certain writer has said that no newspaper which took truth for its standard would make a pecuniary success. The press might return the compliment by remarking that no minister who told the truth about his congregation, alive or dead, would occupy his pulpit much longer than Sunday afternoon. The press and clergy go hand in hand with the whitewash brush, rosy spectacles magnifying little virtues and kindly throwing little vices into oblivion.

CONGRESS IN BRIEF.

House Committee Still Kept Busy With Hearings. Washington, Jan. 9.—The business before congress included: Senate.—Trial of Judge Archbald continued. Consideration of omnibus claims bill resumed. House.—Miscellaneous legislation considered. The tariff revision hearing on the earthenware and glassware schedule was begun by the ways and means committee. Loans and securities of national banks formed the subject of the inquiry at the session of the "money trust" investigating committee. Leslie M. Shaw, ex-secretary of the treasury, testified at currency reform committee's hearing. The alleged Brazilian pool of the "shipping trust" again was the subject of inquiry before the merchant marine committee. The military affairs committee completed the army appropriation bill carrying $33,830,177 and will report it after passage of Indian and postoffice appropriation bills.

SENT HUSBAND DINNER THROUGH PARCELS POST.

Pittsburg.—The newly established parcel post played a part here that his sponsors little dreamed of when they established the new system. John B. Gourmond, of this city, says the parcel post is alright, and he believes he "ought to know." John told how the parcel post had saved him from the pangs of hunger and his devoted wife from worry. According to Gourmond, his wife packed a "big man's lunch" for him. When he left his home for his place of labor in a steel mill in a nearby suburb, John carried with him what he believed was his "full dinner pail." On reaching the mill he was about to place the package containing his lunch on the steam pipes to keep it warm until the noon hour, when the wrapper attracted his attention. Looking closer he saw that it bore pictures of holly leaves and berries. Opening the "lunch," John found that he carried two pairs of socks and a pair of suspenders to work with him. A short time later he was called to the telephone by his wife, who said: "John, I have heard of people liking presents so well that they took them to bed, but you did better; you took your socks and suspenders for lunch." Gourmond did not appreciate the joke, and replied, "I must plug away without a bite all day." "No, you won't," said the wife, "go to the postoffice at noon and you will get your lunch by parcel post." Gourmond got his lunch. Not even a piece of pie in it was crushed.

He Advertised—At Last.

There was a man in our town, And he was wondrous wise; He swore (it was his policy) He would not advertise. But one sad day he advertised, And thereby hangs a tale, The ad. was set in quite small type And headed "Sheriff's Sale."

"BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS."

The theatrical rage of two continents, "Bunty Pulls the Strings," will be the attraction at the Lyric soon. Through the aid of the great newspaper system of America, the real successes, be it of the stage, books, or in fact any product of merit, soon becomes known for their real worth, and that was the case of "Bunty Pulls the Strings." It entered New York practically unheralded and entirely unknown, was given a hearing, and the following day, through the aid of the New York dailies, "Bunty" was stamped the greatest success of the season. Before the end of a month theatre-goers through the country, even as far as the Pacific Coast, were alive to the fact that a new success had been born. "Bunty" is different from all other plays, and so are the players, inasmuch as the story is laid in the Highlands of Scotland, and the players are all natives and to the manner born. The play itself is simple and direct, and in its simplicity lies its greatest charm.
