The Famous Midway.

Bostock's show of wild animals is worthy of especial mention. This collection represents an outlay of over half a million dollars, and its equal does not exist anywhere in the world. Nothing else as fine in the way of a display of a high order of animal intelligence and the expert control of savage beasts has ever been known. To witness a dozen or more huge lions, a band of Bengal tigers, jaguars, panthers, leopards, looking as if they were fresh from their native jungles, brought into the arena and put through a series of astonishing feats and evolutions, is to learn a lesson of the things possible to infinite skill, patience, tact and knowledge of animal nature. The performances of the boxing kangaroo, the enormous snakes, the elephants, zebras, hyenas and the camels, in this enclosure bear further testimony of a like order. More unique perhaps than these and not less wonderful as evidences of animal intelligence, are the performances of Esau, the chimpanzee, who comes as near furnishing ocular and positive evidence of Darwin's famous theory as may, perhaps, be desired, and in some ways seems nearer the line of the human than any other animal along the Midway.—Clipping from Leslie's Weekly, Saturday, July 27th, 1901.

E. B. Monday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave-digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. ### THE SALVATION ARMY

Makes its Annual Appeal for Contributions to Relieve the Poor and Needy.

All who are familiar with The Salvation Army and its method of work, are aware that this organization celebrates in the fall of each year what is known as the Harvest Festival. It is about five years now since this annual festival began to be generally observed by The Salvation Army throughout this country, and it has come to be a recognized fact that once a year not only all Salvationists, but also all friends and sympathizers shall bring "as God has prospered them," an offering to help on the work, even as God's ancient people brought of their best at the great Feast of First Fruits.

The Salvation Army believes in following out the injunction, "Offer to the Lord of thy substance and the first fruits of all thine increase," and therefore it is that at this time their halls are filled with gifts to be sold for the benefit of their work. Stacked up in abundance, on the platforms and wherever room can be found for them, one may see great piles of luscious fruit of all kinds—vegetables of every description, barrels of flour, groceries, canned goods, furniture, clothing, pictures, fancy articles, every sort of thing possible to imagine, for "all is grist that comes to the mill," and whatever the gift, in some way or other, we may be sure The Army will make use of it—if not in one way, then in another. Even live animals are acceptable, and are often brought, so that it is by no means an unusual thing on entering an Army hall at this season, to hear the sounds of barn-yard life—the crowing of the cocks, the contented cluck of a hen with her chickens, quite happy with her little brood about her, even in this strange place; the barking of a dog, perhaps, etc., and on one occasion we remember seeing a lively little goat, evidently there much against his will, and in consequence at odds with all the world, and showing his disapproval in a vigorous manner when approached.

Therefore, if any friend desires to donate something for The Salvation Army Harvest Festival of 1901, let them not refrain from any fear that the gift may not be suitable. For the convenience of those interested we give a list of articles asked for to which may be added almost any conceivable thing which can be disposed of for money or used for the good of the poor:

Fruit, flowers, canned goods, vegetables, fish, meat, chickens, live stock, corn, flour, wheat, oatmeal, condensed milk, bread, crackers, cheese, tea, coffee, cocoa, books, pictures, jewelry, shoes, coal, wood, lumber, shingles, chairs, sheets, blankets, cutlery, tools, furniture (new or used,) clothing (new or second hand.)

The proceeds of the sale, as has been already stated through the columns of this paper, are especially for the benefit of the home work, a large proportion of what is raised in one city or town being used for the local work, and the remainder going for the carrying on of the work throughout the country; and surely all will agree that the work being done by this organization in this country is worthy of support from everyone who loves to see the condition of the poor improved and the tide of sin in a measure checked. The accompanying list of figures will give those interested some idea of the variety of this work, its scope and importance. As you will see at a glance, it is of an eminently practical character.

732 corps and outposts, 2,988 officers and employees, 45,000 annual conversions, 93,000 weekly circulation in English, German, Scandinavian and Chinese, 195 Social Relief Institutions, 546 social officers and employees in charge, $253,000 annually spent in Poor Relief, 8,000 nightly accommodations for the poor, 2,500,000 beds annual accommodation, 69 workmen's hotels, 6 women's hotels, 24 food depots, 24 industrial homes for the unemployed, 3 farm colonies, 3,000 acres colonized, 320 colonists, 5 employment bureaux, 13 secondhand stores, 20 rescue homes for fallen women, accommodating 450 persons, 1,400 fallen women cared for each year, 24 alum settlements, with 80 officers in charge. A gold medal was awarded at the Paris Exposition for the United States Exhibit of the Salvation Army operations among the poor. The dates of the festival are September 7 to September 10.
