The Building of Homes.

Double doors—folding or sliding—are a great social "institution." By them two rooms may be thrown into one. A good broad hall becomes in summer an extra room. The air circulates. There is a freedom, an openness about the house, which gives an air of superiority to even very humble dwellings. The superiority is real, too. If we invite a few friends for the evening, it is not necessary to confine them to the "parlor," but the doors are thrown wide open, our guests will fill parlor, and hall, and sitting room and kitchen, perhaps, and yet all are one company, for the broad doors being open the whole house is thrown together. Music sounds through such a house delightfully, and people have a good time and love to come, because it is so cheerful and social. Another point in our home building which we too often overlook is the exposure of the principal living and sleeping rooms to the direct influence of the sun. The effect of the sunlight is best gained when the house stands with its corners toward the cardinal points, for thus the sun shines with considerable power on all sides of the house every clear day in the summer, and yet his power is broken, because at noonday the rays strike two sides obliquely, and very soon leave the southeastern side in the shade. We should not forget that the sunshine is health-giving; dampness and shade, if slightly in excess, injure the health of both men and animals.

Bulldog Courage.

Our English brothers are said never to know when they are beaten. This trait has caused them to be associated in the minds of foreigners with their own bulldogs. Perhaps the following anecdote will show the reasonableness of the association: An English bulldog, who had never been accustomed to the trains until lately, has taken a great aversion to them, and has made a point of chasing them whenever he has an opportunity of doing so, but, of course, without being enabled to catch them. One morning, being out with his owner's brother, the early train from Bath was heard to be rapidly approaching. The dog, as usual, was off directly. The gentleman, knowing they were in advance of the train, and fearing the dog would be killed, called loudly to him to come back; but quite in vain. He then ran to see what would be the consequence of the brute's folly, and was just in time to see the dog bodily charge the cow-lifter of the engine, and disappear.

A Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young man, remember this.

How to Get Well.

Thousands of persons are constantly troubled with a combination of diseases. Discarded kidneys and costive bowels are their tormentors. They should know that Kidney-Wort acts on these organs at the same time, causing them to throw off the poisons that have clogged them, and so renewing the whole man. Hundreds testify to this.—Pittsburgh post.

Snakes as Life Destroyers.

The loss of life in India due to the ravages of venomous snakes is almost incredible. Yet Consumption, which is as wily and fatal as the deadliest Indian reptile, is winding its coils around thousands of people while the victims are unconscious of its presence. Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" must be used to cleanse the blood of the scrofulous impurities, for tubercular consumption is only a form of scrofulous disease. "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sovereign remedy for all forms of scrofulous disease, or king's evil, such as tumors, white swellings, fever sores, scrofulous sore-eyes, as well as for other blood and skin diseases. By druggists.

Level Headed Oscar.

Who is this man with the long, thin legs, the stooping shoulders and the yellow, flowing hair? His name is Oscar Wilde. One day when the superintendent of a lunatic asylum was on a hunting expedition in London he picked up Oscar and took him before a magistrate who asked him his name. "By the misty eyelids of the moon I cannot tell you," answered the prisoner. "Mamma would not like it." From that moment he became famous. For breakfast he sips the dew from honeysuckles, and his dinner consists of roast lily bugs flavored with lavender water. Half a dozen sachet bags and ten trunks constitute his baggage. The trunks contain locks of hair which he purchased cheap at a Surrey rope walk. No fashionable American girl will be long without one. His soul yearns after sunflowers. Give him his choice between a sunflower and a greenback and he will take the greenback. In Chicago he is destined to be most popular—his feet are so large. When he returns to his native land loaded with rocks his "mamma" will say to him: "Oskie, the fortunes of the family are most improved. I want a new sealskin saque and a dog cart." But the lily worshipper will depart from her saying: "Well I should smile, what does the old woman take me for?" After that, no Englishman will eat more beef with his lilies, or drink more beer with his sunflowers than Oscar.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Edibles are frequently named after illustrious individuals, and fruits after their discoverers, as for instance: Washington pie, Bartlett pears, Baldwin apples, etc.; and it is no uncommon occurrence at the present day for a person to walk into an eating saloon and ask "Plato beans."
