GOOD READING FOR THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE.

SHOULD BE CAREFULLY READ THAT CORRECT CONCLUSIONS MAY BE ARRIVED AT.

PAUL G. SCHUH,

DEAR SIR:—Recognizing the fact that there is to a certain extent, a mutual dependency existing between the professions of pharmacy and medicine, and feeling that a better understanding of the function and duties of the two profession should be recognized and adhered to, we, of the medical profession of Cairo, object to the frequent habit of druggists of this city, of diagnosing diseases and prescribing medicines, for the following reasons:

First. The science of pharmacy does not include a knowledge of the science of medicine.

Second. You are violating the medical practice act, by so doing, and robbing the physicians of their legitimate business.

Third. You are practising deception upon the sick; therefore we ask you to adhere to the law governing the practice of medicine.

Another grievance to which we respectfully ask your attention, is the matter of refilling prescriptions without authority of the physicians who have written them. The above practice is injurious to both patient and physician; the patient often suffering from the effects of improper medicine, and the physician because he is practically held responsible for the action of the medicine he did not prescribe.

Again we hold that the original owner of the prescription loses his ownership in the same, as soon as it is once filled and placed on file, and that he has no right to demand that it be taken from the file and be refilled, except by the order of the prescribing physician. We therefore ask you to discontinue the practice.

After due deliberation, we the undersigned members of the "Medical Association of Cairo" have resolved not to patronize directly or indirectly, any druggist, who shall after this date, be known to prescribe for any one requiring the services of a physician, or who shall refill or duplicate prescriptions without the written or verbal authority of the physician. Respectfully, W. R. SMITH, Pres't. J. C. SULLIVAN, V. P. G. G. PARKER, Sec'y. J. J. GORDON, J. H. BRYANT, C. W. DUNNING, D. H. PARKER, J. S. VETRIE.

To the Public:

Although the above resolutions speak for themselves, and although any unprejudiced person can readily read between the lines the real motives prompting the Cairo Medical Association to issue such a proclamation, I feel like making a few remarks:

I, for my part, do not know that I have been deceiving the public during the last 10 years past and do not intend to deceive it now, on the contrary, I will try, in the future, as I have in the past, to mind my own business and attend to the wants of my patrons to the best of my ability. I am neither BEGGING nor BUYING any one's patronage, but my aim is to please each and every one, who kindly favors me with their calls. Respectfully,

PAUL G. SCHUH.

Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. Richard English, on Seventh street, Justice Robinson united Mr. Samuel B. Carson and Miss Rosa Weece in marriage. The parties were from Olmsted and returned there to live.

What was to have been a secret a few days ago longer has leaked out: "The popular one-price dry-goods house of Mr. C. R. Stuart" is to have an important addition to its clerical force in the first proximo, in the person of Miss Effie Coleman.

The street cars were held in readiness for those who attended the parlor entertainment at Mr. Galigher's residence, Thursday night, and who resided in the lower portion of the city. The street car managers are receiving many compliments for these little accommodations.

The Cairo city gas company have placed at their works, machinery for crushing and screening coke, and are now prepared to furnish crushed coke, which is an excellent substitute for hard coal. Orders left at the office on Eighth street will receive prompt attention.

There will be a sheriff's sale at the corner of Twentieth street and Washington avenue this morning at 10 o'clock. A stock of general merchandise is to be sold consisting of head-wear, foot-wear, queen-wear and other wares. Let everybody attend. Sheriff Hedges conducts the sale.

Captain George B. Poore has succeeded Mr. Samuel Orr as wharfmaster. He came here from Belmont, Mo., but is well known in Cairo, having lived here for several years. He is particularly well known among river men, as he was in command of the steamer Ike Hammit for over nine years. Mr. John Caine retains his position as assistant wharfmaster.

Justice Robinson had a monopoly of the police business again yesterday, as Magistrate Comings had not yet returned from his trip to Chicago to attend the Old Folks' meeting. The justice fined Mrs. Harry Evans five dollars and costs for disorderly conduct; Sophie Reed, ten dollars and costs for inhabiting a bad house; Mattie Davis, twenty-five dollars and costs for being a vagrant, and Monroe Cole, five dollars and costs for fighting.

The county board met yesterday for the purpose of transacting general business. The bonds of treasurer Miles W. Parker, County Clerk Samuel J. Hume and Sheriff John Hedges, elected at the late county election, were approved. The report of County Collector John Hedges for the year 1881 was examined by the board. Something over $94,400 had been collected, and all was correctly accounted for. There was an error only of 73 cents which occurred in one of the footings. The new officers begin their new terms on the 1st of December.

The beauty of Bartley Campbell's great drama of My Partner which opens at the Opera House Tuesday night, November 28th, is the entire absence of the howling blood and thunder element which is so common in these days of wild western dramas. The incidents, while startling, are real and life-like, and impress one at once as being entirely possible and probable—Major Britt, J. O. Saunders and Wing Lee are characters met with every day, and are not in iota overdrawn. Bader has tickets on sale at 75, 50 and 25. No extra charge for reserved seats.

—Of the Mississippi river as a formidable competitor with east-bound railroads in the carrying of freight, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says in a recent issue: During the past two weeks there have been some extraordinary movements in flour that should teach the railroads the strength of the river route as an antagonist to the overland trunk lines in winter. The railroad managers are discussing in New York the propriety of raising the summer tariff to a more profitable standard after the withdrawal of competition by the lakes. The capacity of the Mississippi is overlooked, although it would be well to weigh carefully its influence in the seaboard movement. Within the last fifteen days local millers have shipped 10,000 packages of flour to New Orleans for export. Of this amount 6,000 barrels in sacks of 280 pounds each were exported by the bark Usa, which cleared last night to Malpas for Redruth, Cornwall, by the Atlantic Milling company. The second lot, or 13,000 packages, was sent upon an order by Bredlove, Smith & Co., to the city of Havana, after transferring to the steamship at New Orleans. Only two mills were called upon to fill the orders, and others are doing equally well with railroads to New England points. The gross amount was taken in three barges, the last of which leaves to-day. A simple calculation will show that to carry 10,000 barrels of flour would require the use of 190 cars, divided in eight trains, eight locomotives and thirty-two train-hands.

Yesterday the tracks of the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific railroad above Second street, were entirely clear of all obstructions in the form of rolling stock. There was no masking up of trains either, no constant running back and forth over two or three street crossings by long rows of cars blocking them for five or ten minutes at a time to the inconvenience of pedestrians and teamsters, and the injury of property holders and business men in the vicinity. Mr. Moore, who was away from the city, returned Thursday night and immediately gave orders that the order of the city authorities against masking up trains and leaving cars on the tracks above Second street be rendered obedience. This prompt action on the part of Mr. Moore and of the employes of the road justifies the opinion that there is no disposition on their part to "bulldoze" the authorities, or to uselessly and recklessly disregard the law and brave public opinion. There is no doubt but that the evils complained of were the necessary results of the roads' greatly increased traffic; that the great quantities of freight the road was called upon to handle at this point, necessitated one of two things: either the construction of additional tracks or the use of the existing tracks to an extent beyond the limits prescribed by the ordinances. The officers here, who would doubtless have to await the decision of those above them in authority, before they could avail themselves of the first means, were compelled to use the second in order to prevent the accumulation of many tons of freight on their hands. But they have now been given to understand, that henceforth there must be little, or no overstepping of the bounds prescribed by the city ordinances regulating switching, etc., and the action of Mr. Moore leads us to believe that there will be a scrupulous observance of the ordinance. The company will now be driven to the construction of additional tracks in the extreme lower portion of the city, or around the westerly side of the city where it owns a right of way, in order that it may conveniently and expeditiously handle its immense quantities of freight. This the company would have had to do eventually, even if no restriction were placed upon its use of the Commercial-avenue tracks, and it may prefer to do this now, before there is an open breach between it and the public, than to do it afterwards in compliance with an angry popular demand. If the condition of things above Second street on Commercial, remain as they were yesterday, there will be no further cause for discontent on the part of citizens, or for aggressive or offensive action on the part of the authorities. But will this remain so?

But that these exercises were of a character not to be excelled is sufficiently proven if the names of those who took part in them are mentioned. There was a bass duet by Prof. Clark and Mr. E. Y. Crowell; a comic trio, by Prof. Clark and Messrs. Crowell and Parsons; a vocal duet, by Mr. Parsons and Miss Ada Scarritt; an instrumental duet, by Miss Rita Corliss and Dr. Benson; a vocal duet, by Misses Annie and Lydia Pitcher, and a number of instrumental selections, by Misses Rita and Mamie Corliss, two of Cairo's favorite musicians.

The entertainment was concluded with an oyster supper, of which nearly all partook heartily. It was nearly 12 o'clock before the party, then increased to over a hundred and fifty people, departed for their several homes, with souls and stomachs filled respectively with music and oysters, and minds occupied with pleasant reveries.

that if the pressure brought to bear against him shall prove to be strong, rather than make a palpably fruitless effort to gain a reprieve, he will "voluntarily" (?) give up the office. That a strong fight will be made against him is a foregone conclusion. There are a number of aspirants for the place, several of whom are good men (aside from their politics), who will leave nothing undone to have the Col's tolerably well-matured official scalp. Each of these aspirants has his followers who will join him in a demand for the Col's removal and the appointment in this stead of their champion. But there is one thing which will be a conspicuous feature of all this clamor: the principal reason, if not the only weighty one, that will be urged against the Col's reappointment will be his long incumbency. There can be no charges of malperformance or neglect of duty. If he is removed it will not be because of either of these reasons or of any other like these; it will be because he is now less useful to the party than he once was, as a politician; because he has given up his attention to his official duties rather than to politics, to the interest of the people rather than to the interests of the party machine; because he is less of a political God to the colored element than he once was and cannot lead them to the polls by the nose quite so readily as he formerly could. But let the Republicans machine do what it will in this matter. It will probably not consult with us concerning its plans with reference to the Cairo postmastership, and if, in case it does guillotine Col. McKeag, the machine will but appoint one of several good Republicans, who, we know, are available, and whom we have in our mind's eye, Horatio, then we shall feel less bitter against the machine for disturbing the good old moss-covered order of things in the Cairo post-office merely to serve partisan political ends.

THE DETAILS.

One of the important features of the parlor entertainment of the ladies of the Episcopal church, at the residence of Mr. Charles Galigher, Thursday night, was a "Phantom Parade and Spectre Concert." This was participated in by about forty young ladies and gentlemen, robed and masked in white, and armed with torches, who formed into military lines in the beautiful grounds surrounding the residence, and after circling round the house several times, marched in single file through the front entrance into the parlor, where the large company of guests awaited them. Here the Phantoms went through a series of interesting and complicated military movements, keeping time to the notes of a martial air produced upon the piano. "The Spectre Concert" consisted of a grand chorus, admirably sung by "The Phantoms."

Owing to the shortness of the time given for preparation, there was no formal programme of musical exercises, hence what music and singing there was, was for the most part impromptu and was therefore a better test of the natural ability of those who took part in it.

But that these exercises were of a character not to be excelled is sufficiently proven if the names of those who took part in them are mentioned. There was a bass duet by Prof. Clark and Mr. E. Y. Crowell; a comic trio, by Prof. Clark and Messrs. Crowell and Parsons; a vocal duet, by Mr. Parsons and Miss Ada Scarritt; an instrumental duet, by Miss Rita Corliss and Dr. Benson; a vocal duet, by Misses Annie and Lydia Pitcher, and a number of instrumental selections, by Misses Rita and Mamie Corliss, two of Cairo's favorite musicians.

The entertainment was concluded with an oyster supper, of which nearly all partook heartily. It was nearly 12 o'clock before the party, then increased to over a hundred and fifty people, departed for their several homes, with souls and stomachs filled respectively with music and oysters, and minds occupied with pleasant reveries.

PROPERTY CHANGES.

A large portion of the rear wall of the brick building at the corner of Eleventh street and Commercial avenue, belonging to Judge F. Bross, was in a dangerous condition and had been taken down by Mr. Quinn and put up again in a substantial way.

At the last meeting of the Arab Fire company, it was decided that the front and cupola of their elegant engine house should be repaired and repainted.

A new cottage on Twenty-seventh street, belonging to Mr. Louis Herbert, which had been under way of construction for some time, was finished a few days ago. It is 18x42 feet in dimensions and contains five rooms.

The interior of a neat cottage, belonging to Mr. Jacob Martin, standing at the corner of Nineteenth street and Washington avenue, has just been subjected to a general process of renewal by painters, paper-hangers and carpenters.

A cottage on the south side of Seventh street, between the avenues, belonging to Mrs. Cunningham, has been raised, put upon a new foundation and is being given a general overhauling.

Mr. Harry Walker has purchased the property in which he now conducts his saloon and Theatre Comique. He expects to make extensive improvements upon it.
