Steele's the Limit
An immense house was attracted to Dreamland last night to see Professor Steele in his inimitable act of comedy and acrobatic skating.

They were well paid, if cheers and energetic applause count, as the nimble Steele was in a happy frame of mind and did his numerous stunts with a graceful ease and always with reckless abandon.

His "Coast of Death" was the most exciting act yet presented here and is just about the limit of reckless performances. Starting from the roof of the theater he dashes down an incline to the floor, which he strikes at a tremendous rate of speed, and, doubling up quickly, he leaps over a large number of chairs and lights on his feet, thence into the arms of his partner Professor Smith, who stops him. This is well worth the price of admission and tonight Professor Steele will make the "Coast of Death" through a furnace of fire.

There will be the usual skating, before and after the performance.

This is change night at the Iris. A good show; don't miss it.

SCOTCHMAN AT CLIFTON VIOLATED HIS PAROLE

The capture is reported in El Paso by immigration officers of a Scotchman named Peter Ponton, who was a member of a party of eight Scotchmen who were arrested at Clifton several weeks ago by the immigration officials on a charge of being contract laborers brought into this country by the Arizona Copper company. Upon a hearing the Scotchmen were ordered deported, but the case was appealed to the department at Washington. Instead of placing the Scotchmen in jail they were paroled at Clifton and yesterday one of the number took a notion to depart. His departure was reported to Inspector Connell at Douglas, who in turn wired the authorities at El Paso, who effected his capture as he alighted from a Southern Pacific train, and he was taken to Tucson, where he will be held in jail pending a decision of the department.

Steele is the champion chair jumper of the world. He jumps them forwards or backwards, all the same to him. Tonight at Dreamland.

This is change night at the Iris. A good show; don't miss it.
