HENRY WATTERSON AND HIS "DARK HORSE"
 Much interest has attached to Henry Watterson's mysterious declaration that he had a dark horse Democratic candidate for the presidential nomination. After enjoying himself by withholding his candidate's identity Mr. Watterson at last has revealed that his favorite son is John A. Johnson, governor of Minnesota. Mr. Watterson is one of the last of the oldtime editors whose writings are rich with personality. As editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal he has been for many years a power in the molding of opinion. He was a Confederate soldier.

Physicians Must Report
 Dr. John H. Laey, superintendent of public health of Graham county, has given public notice that he will prosecute physicians practicing in the county who fail to make returns to him of deaths or births or to report the presence of contagious disease, says the Journal. This notice is given in accordance with an order of the board of health of Graham county.
