A man has invented a musical staircase. Doubtless, on of the winding kind.

The Post announces "skates at cost" in Tucson. Same here. Ten dollars or ten days.

The fight on the boll weevil in Texas has been won, but they are still fighting the trusts there.

Yes, indeed, esteemed contemporaries, not only is the new $10 bill beautiful, but extremely useful, as well.

Hammered steel as well as hammered copper is now very much in vogue in speculative circles.

The medical profession has indicted the fly. The bald-headed men long ago indicted, tried and found him guilty.

A "white elephant" party is the latest in New York's upper tenfold. The women probably bring their husbands.

After a few more repetitions of his plaint that the country is in a bad way, Judge Parker may begin to believe it himself.

A Mesa paper heads the story of a raid made on a hop joint: "A New Plumbing Establishment." Hitting the pipe, eh?

"Now what will President Roosevelt do with the Oklahoma constitution?" asks a territorial exchange. Ok, it, probably.

We notice that Bryan's Commoner carefully refrains from venturing any guess as to what has been causing the Courier-Journal fires recently.

The grievance committee of the chamber of commerce is now ready for business. If you have troubles, tell them to the grievance committee.

H. H. Rogers, it is reported, has been ordered by his physician to "keep quiet for three months." A prescription like that would kill Richmond P. Hobson.

Mme. Besant says that Mr. Rockefeller will return to this earth some day "a beautiful scraph." Even now he is the University of Chicago's "angel."

President Roosevelt is back at the White House after spending his summer vacation at Oyster Bay. The latter village is now off the map until next summer.

An Indiana man named Dam is reported to be making a hit as a comedian in vaudeville. With a name like that almost any man could be an amusing little cuss.

The Republican announces that: "Phoenix is a premier baseball city." It would be hard to reconcile the record of the capitol city aggregation with this statement.

With three weddings in one evening, there is no apparent slump in the local matrimonial market or nothing to indicate that a "draft" had been made on Dan Cupid.

One of the surest signs of the approach of fall may be found on the sporting pages, where the pictures of football heroes in their hideous harness are again appearing.

"The Elkins act remains in force," says the Arizona Republican. There is a strong probability that this information was not passed out for the edification of one J. J. Hill.

Nine hundred million dollars is the price the sunny south will receive for this year's cotton crop. Cotton is not only king down there, but pretty much everything else in the deck.

Under the heading, "What Prominent People Are Doing," a weekly publication devotes considerable space to men who seem to be principally engaged in doing their business rivals.

A faith curist in New Jersey claims that a member of her family was cured of a broken leg by means of faith, but up to date no one claims to have had a pulled leg relieved in the same way.

A WASTE OF MONEY
The building of box drainage culverts under the streets of the city is a useless waste of public funds and is an experiment in Globe that has proven a pronounced failure. In cities built on more level ground such drainage systems may prove satisfactory and afford the relief intended; but not in hilly Globe.

It might and probably will be argued that the additional force given the flow of water by the city's hills is an advantage to these underground flumes, but a condition just the reverse has been demonstrated. The water pours down the hillsides in torrents, carrying rock, mud, sand and general street debris into these culverts, effectually blocking them up and making the drain useless after the first heavy rain, with nothing left to do but tear up the streets, open the boxes and remove the obstruction. This is an operation, the expense of which, taxpayers are likely to grow tired of; in fact, there are murmurings of dissatisfaction at present, presumably excited by the recent heavy outlay at the intersection of Cedar and Broad streets.

The city should get down to real business. The work of establishing the grades should be pushed and the streets should be macadamized and concrete open gutters established along the respective curbs. In this way the waters running down the east hill streets could be diverted to the Broad street gutters and carried away down the incline to the west to Pinal creek. Until some such reform as this is adopted the city will be infested with clogged up drains and streets overflowed with water, rock and sand, and a city treasury depleted by expenditures which availeth naught.

"R. A. Goodwin," says the Stockton, Cal., Record, "has commenced work on his almond crop with one crew of knockers." If the gentleman should need any more help, we can give him the names and addresses of a number of experts.

In France they sell wine by the hour. For 2 cents one may enter a wine cellar and remain thirty minutes. At the end of this period, we suppose, the customers are gently lifted out by the scruff of the neck and put to bed somewhere.

According to the Baltimore Sun, only two things will influence Mr. Roosevelt to run again, one being a unanimous demand from the country and the other being opposition to his nomination. From here that looks like playing a cinch.

And when we think of the "Gila Monster," the tales of these old-time stage drivers make one long for a return of the good old times of yore when the coach never missed a mail or was stopped by a washout.

Theodore E. Burton's newspaper friends are now showing that they recognize one of his strong cards in the mayoralty campaign by printing his first name in full every time they mention him.

A writer in the Saturday Evening Post says President Roosevelt once turned down an applicant for office because he "didn't like his face." Possibly he also took a dislike to the man's nerve.

The Wisconsin woman who died of overwork at the age of 84 should have known better than to run the risk of being cut down in her youth.

"The casual laborer" is the way one writer refers to the hobo. But he is never known to labor hard enough to bring on a casualty.

A Prescott man named Charley Corn has declared himself a candidate for office. Evidently his friends have been getting his ear.

Pooled a Faithful City Officer
One of Globe's city officers while passing the Central Market yesterday stopped in and inquired if the plumbing was in a sanitary condition. He had no time to receive an answer before he noticed that the store certainly had a large supply of fresh limburger cheese. He immediately made a purchase and was greatly bothered on his way home by friends inquiring where he had secured the same. On stating that he had purchased the cheese from the Central Market, naturally caused a great rush to the establishment, which was handled in a creditable manner by its efficient employees.

Besides our limburger, we have a large supply of Swiss cheese, oysters in bulk and can, and everything good that tickles the palate. Give us a trial and follow the push.

Tucson is to take her red light troubles to the supreme court. This is lending a good deal of dignity to a traffic that is forbidden by laws of all kinds—moral, civil and criminal.

R. R. Herbert, a clerk in the city offices of the S. P. at Tucson is mysteriously missing. Belief prevails that he may have been lost in the mountains while hunting. Auditors will try another solution by checking up his accounts.

The extradition proceedings against Gustave Lelievier at Phoenix opened and closed with considerable suddenness Wednesday morning, ending in the dismissal of the case at the motion of Assistant United States Attorney George D. On October 21, before going to Florence, Justice Kent will hold a session of the territorial court, at which the calendar will be called.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite, but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought to take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives health and strength to the stomach. Pleasant to take. Sold by Hanna's Drug Store.
