Short Stories of the Street

One of the well known, successful and popular business men of Globe had an experience lately that has amused his friends immensely. He is a man that does things and has zeal and courage of the highest order. As such men usually are, he is impatient of restraint. A short time ago he went into the iron vault in his office and took therefrom an iron strong box in which he keeps valuable papers, and undertook to open it. He turned the combination, but the box refused to open. Again he tried it, and still the combination refused to release the lock. This was something unusual and he said something softly that began with the letter D. Again he tried the combination, but to no purpose, and by this time he was genuinely angry. Just once more he carefully tried the combination with more exactness than ever, and still the lock balked. He then reached for a hatchet that was in the corner of the office and deliberately and with much violence, smashed the combination and then he raised the lid of the strong box. Just then he made the interesting discovery that it was not his strong box, but one that belonged to another man who was privileged to leave it there. Investigation disclosed that the combination of his own strong box was working all right.

And this is charged up to a Globe attorney who has gained some prominence in criminal courts. All of his friends respect him and have the same feeling toward his profession, but the attorney in question does not seem to hold the legal profession in a very high light, according to one of his remarks before a jury in a recent case in the district court. He was trying to describe to the twelve men what a big part chance played in life, and said:

"My father once started me to learn a trade. What it was does not matter. I was but a young boy and was very much pleased to be learning a trade. After I had been at work about one hour my mother discovered me and she objected to the work. She told me to quit instantly and go to school. She had her way, and that is why I say that it was only chance that kept me from being in some respectable business."

A Globe man who has the reputation of being a woman hater, which description is sure to utterly conceal his identity, loaned his grip a few weeks ago to a lady who needed an extra one. She returned it in due time and the owner then loaned it to a gentleman friend. The latter, knowing the prejudice of the owner of the grip to the fair sex, was overcome with surprise and amusement at finding a hairpin in the bottom of the grip, which was empty beyond that trifling object. Now the owner of the grip is being bombarded by his gentlemen friends for information about how the hairpin got there, and they profess to think that the explanation that it was probably left there by a lady who had borrowed it is laughed to scorn. In the meantime, the owner of the grip is pretty nervous because his friends refuse to accept the explanation.

Entertained at Whist

Friday evening Miss Coombs and Mrs. J. W. Bandhauer entertained a number of their friends at the home of the latter, 440 South Devereaux street. A congenial company in such a delightful home with two of their fair friends as hostesses, meant the whiling away of three or four hours as pleasantly as the heart could wish.

Whist was the pleasing game that had been chosen for the evening's entertainment, and everything being in delightful readiness, it was with eagerness that dainty hands began the shuffling of little pieces of pasteboard of the kind that have furnished amusement for generations. During the progress of the game the players were regaled with delightful fruit punch and at each change of tables gay repartee was to be heard on every hand. When six games had been played the scores were counted and the following prizes were awarded: Ladies' first prize, hand-painted vase, Mrs. L. H. Brown; ladies' second prize, sterling silver baggage tag, Miss Santee; gentlemen's first prize, sterling silver handled knife, Mr. W. H. Moon; gentlemen's second prize, a hat brush with silver mounted ebony handle, Dr. P. B. Caler.

The pleasures of the evening were enhanced by delightful refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake in variety. Mr. Ingram had out for the first prize and lost to Mr. Moon, but when he tasted the delicious peach-ice cream, he said, "Here is one place where Moon will not outshine me."

Among the guests was Miss Opdyke of Los Angeles, and she was persuaded by the hostesses to give an exhibition of Indian club work. Her cleverness and gracefulness in swinging the clubs in fancy curves to musical accompaniment was remarkable.

Several of the guests possessing musical talent were called upon and the following responded with pleasing vocal selections: Mr. L. H. Brown, Mr. W. H. Moon, Miss Santee and Miss Hedley. Miss Coombs accompanied them on the piano.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wales, Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Caler, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Kellner, Mr. and Mrs. William Sultan, Mr. and Mrs. John Merriam, Mrs. C. M. Cushman, Misses Hedley, McKenzie Webb, Van Wagenen, Gerald, Santee, Opdyke, Garrard, Hord, Messrs. W. H. Moon, Harry Sultan, J. W. Pritchett, G. J. Ridenour, Oscar Ingram, Dr. E. H. McPheeters.

ELKS' PARADE

At the Alexander tonight.

Thomas A. Edison, the great American inventor, says: "Fully eighty per cent of the illness of mankind comes from eating improper food or too much food; people are inclined to over-indulge themselves." This is where indigestion finds its beginning in nearly every case. The stomach can do just so much work and no more, and when you overload it, or when you eat the wrong kind of food, the digestive organs cannot possibly do the work demanded of them. It is at such times that the stomach needs help; it demands help, and warns you by headaches, belching, sour stomach, nausea and indigestion. You should attend to this at once by taking something that will actually do the work for the stomach. Kodol will do this. It is a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is pleasant to take. It digests what you eat. Sold by Hanna's Drug Store.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Alexander

Two crowded houses were in attendance last evening to see the few specialties presented and everyone seemed to be well pleased. Little Marian Bryant made a great hit in her Spanish song, "Sorella."

Messrs. Fulwood and Laughney in their "Mocking Bird" duet received a great round of applause. In his imitation of the Scottish bagpipe Mr. Fulwood did exceptionally well and was loudly applauded for his efforts.

Professor Bergeron in his violin solo—well, no use to say more, he's always there.

A few stereopticon views of Globe (as it was) were shown in connection with the rest of this good program.

Jennings did very well and received a good hand in his song, "How'd You Like to Be My Beau?"

The management announces that this week the public may look for something exceptionally good in this line. Watch the Silver Belt for program.

Columbia Comic Opera Company

This popular opera company arrived last night, and will positively appear at Drenthland tonight, rendering that most tuneful and lively opera, "Said Pasha." Tickets for last night's performance hold same seats for tonight. Doors will be open at 8 o'clock and the curtain will go up at 8:30 sharp. Popular prices will prevail during this engagement. Reserved seats, $1; gallery, 50 cents. There will be no matinee this afternoon.
