Sunday closing laws are all right for the other fellow.

Money makes the mare go and the lack of it also makes the man go afoot.

Probably some of those busy Bisbee politicians could tell the mine officials where the gas came from.

Would scrip printed on rubber bands meet the requirements of those who are demanding a more elastic currency?

Roosevelt still reigns and the government at Wall street still lives," with apologies to the late President Garfield.

Mrs. Bradley and Steve Adams will soon give way to Harry Thaw on the stage of the national theater of melodrama.

The fact that J. Pierp Morgan is one of those "undesirable citizens" has probably been forgotten at the White House.

Thomas C. Platt has declared in favor of Taft for president. That may be another reason for the fat secretary's homeward rush.

The county rejoices that Mr. Hartje, the Pittsburg millionaire, is unable to reopen his divorce case. It was certainly fierce while it lasted.

It takes hard times to draw selfishness from the stingy man's breast. Many a mean man will give his better half his bank book this Christmas.

The parcels post is to be avoided, according to a decision reached by the El Paso chamber of commerce. That's what the express companies also believe.

Tucson republicans could secure no candidates for the city offices until the democratic platform was adopted. And now both parties are fighting the poor, helpless saloon.

Governor Haskell of Oklahoma makes the startling announcement that the trusts have been robbing the people! Awful, if true; but it seems as though we have heard rumors of it before.

More attention seems to have been paid to the arrival of the Mauretania because she didn't break the liner record than because she brought us twelve and a half millions of British gold.

Mines in the Globe district are increasing their forces daily and new development work is being done by the big and a few of the little companies. The demolition bowdows are a long way off from Globe.

The Arizona Gazette is the only Roosevelt paper in the territory, but even then the delegation from Arizona to the republican national convention will be for Roosevelt; not, however, through the influence of the Gazette.

STATEHOOD AND GRATITUDE
When Governor Kibbey was in Globe a few days ago he gave out an interview to the Silver Belt in which he said that although President Roosevelt had declared himself as favoring single statehood for Arizona and New Mexico, he intimated there would be nothing doing in the state-making business at the coming session of congress. No especial reason was assigned for the delay in the admission proceedings, but the real reason probably lies in the gratitude (?) shown by the new state of Oklahoma in going overwhelmingly democratic even before the scroll making it a state had been signed by the president. At least, that is the reason given by the Washington Post and the Post ought to know, because it is to a considerable degree the mouthpiece of the administration. In a recent editorial the Post says:

The rough riders who happen to be filling all the offices in New Mexico and Arizona are beseeching the president to bring pressure to bear on congress for the enactment of separate statehood bills during the coming session. Some of the territorial officials who happen to be rough riders are so sanguine that they expect to cast votes for the president next November. The president has already caused it to be understood, however, that in his opinion congress will be too busy this winter to consider statehood questions. This ought to have weight with the New Mexicans and Arizonans, for if there is any man competent to predict that congress will have a busy time, it is Mr. Roosevelt.

Aside from the hint from the president, the statehood advocates might draw a few deductions for themselves, if they would diligently consider the state of Oklahoma. With great reluctance, under the executive spur and for other reasons, that canny old campaigner, Speaker Cannon, permitted the Oklahoma and Indian Territory bill to become a law in time for the admission of the territories as a state just before a presidential election. Oklahoma promptly elects a full democratic state ticket, two democratic United States senators and three democratic representatives out of five. She will have fourteen electoral votes that will go for Bryan against the republican nominee, whether the nominee is Roosevelt, or Taft, or even Uncle Joe himself. Is there no moral in this? Is there nothing here that will furnish a clue to the attitude of congress toward New Mexico and Arizona?

It is said that New Mexico is strongly republican, or would be if a republican congress and a republican president would confer upon it "the inestimable boon of statehood." Some persons may cling to the belief that gratitude will last after the favor has been conferred, but there is a loss of confidence in the breast of "Uncle Joe." He looks at Oklahoma and sighs. Perhaps even the president, optimistic as he is, is doing a little mental calculating on the gratitude manifested by the disappointed Oklahoma job-chasers who have gone home swearing that they will knife him and Secretary Taft in the national convention. If Oklahoma's majority is democratic, and her minority is in deadly enmity against those who gave her statehood, what incentive is there to warm other eggs that may hatch vipers? As for Arizona, she is frankly democratic, and therefore not ripe for statehood.

Thus it may occur to New Mexico and Arizona that the president is a shrewd guesser when he suggests that congress may be too busy this winter to consider statehood questions.

FUNDS OF LABOR UNIONS.
The Part They Have Played in Restoring Public Confidence.

In 1893, when almost everyone who had money in bank withdrew these funds and placed them in hiding places, Mr. Gage, who was afterward Secretary of the Treasury, and then president of a Chicago bank, was asked by Ralph D. Easley, now secretary of the National Civic Federation, whether local conditions would be helped if the funds representing the deposits of labor unions were put into circulation through the purchase of United States bonds. The unions in Chicago controlled considerably in excess of $300,000, and these funds were in hand where they could be easily reached.

Mr. Gage counseled the investment of this money in government bonds, saying that the moral effect of that action might even serve to greater advantage than the actual distribution through the medium of circulation of so much money as that. The advice was accepted and the moral influence following this action was precisely as President Gage had predicted.

But in the recurrence of an emergency famine this fall somewhat diligent inquiry has shown that the labor organizations, and particularly those in New York and its vicinity, would not invest their funds, which are large, in government bonds if they could. The labor unions have displayed a confidence in the banks which some others have lost. Labor funds have for the most part remained upon deposit in the various banks where they have been placed. Such withdrawals as have been made by skilled artisans or others, who work for wages, have been individual.

This incident is to be of especial consequence at the approaching meeting of the National Civic Federation which is to be held in this city early in December.

The meeting in this city is the annual gathering of the federation and its discussions will probably be found to be of as great importance and as accurately to forecast currency legislation by Congress or by States as was the conference at Chicago in October, for the discussion of combinations and trusts.

For at the annual meeting in December the chief subjects for consideration will be the improvements of the currency and modification or amendment of the present law, as well as the expediency of establishing postal savings banks, and also wage earners' insurance possibly in connection with the savings banks, imitating, it may be, the legislation recently adopted by the State of Massachusetts.

So it will be seen that emergency improvement as well as the means for the better accommodations of wage earners so well saved, and a plan whereby wage earners may through savings banks obtain a reasonable rate insurance are to follow the earlier but kindred discussions formulated into the resolutions adopted at the Chicago conference in October. It is beginning to be better realized than heretofore that a great part, possibly the greater part, of the millions upon deposit throughout the United States represent the savings or accumulations of wage-earners and no small part of them various funds collected by the labor unions.—Philadelphia Press.

Diving for Alligators.
While walking near a pond in the woods, Bullie Ham, who can tell the presence of an alligator by the smell of the critter, pulled off his coat and took a header under the water. While at the bottom of the pond Bullie's leg rose to the surface and waved to the men near the shore. The warning was heeded by the men who caught Bullie's leg and gave it a yank that brought Bullie to the surface, and with Bullie came an alligator that measured some four feet in length.—Apalachicola Times.

PEOPLE'S CASH STORE
DOLPH BAATZ & CO.

The Story of a Mail Order House

A Globe lady, we can give you her name if you are skeptical, picked up the catalogue of a well known eastern house—the name if you ask for it—and ordered a bill of goods amounting in all to about $18.50, because she thought she was saving at least $2 in the transaction. After waiting for a fraction over three weeks she received the goods by express and paid $2.45 charges on the package. This naturally angered her. On her own calculation she was 45c loser, and she started out to see how the goods and prices of New York compared with Globe's goods and prices.

Naturally she visited "The People's Cash Store," the acknowledged leader of low prices and reliable qualities.

And what do you think?

She bought, among other things a Panama skirt, plain in every way—a fair quality of goods—and the price was $9.50.

The People's Cash Store price for a skirt of better quality, greater fullness, considerably more chic, and a perfect hanging garment was $8.50—a saving of exactly $1.

She ordered a Henderson & La Princess corset. She paid $6.50 for the identical corset—and the same make—we are selling for $5.—A saving of $1.50.

Or in the two items a saving of $2.50 if she had consulted Dolph Baatz & Co.

The other items—chiefly small trinkets—cost her at least 20 per cent more than they could have been purchased for at the "People's Cash Store."

The woman's name, if you ask for it; and we have the goods to prove the price and quality assertion.

We are telling this true story to impress it upon your mind that it is absolutely folly to send east, west, north or south for goods when you can get lower prices right here at home, and have the advantage of personal inspection and selection.

THANKSGIVING SUITS AND WRAPS

With Thanksgiving day approaching you will want a nice suit or wrap. Midwinter novelties are now on display. In fact we're showing the cream of the season's designs, bought especially for the holidays. Pretty and stylish things in suits, jaunty things in coats and jackets and the most bewitching ideas in separate skirts.

If not lower in price and higher in style and quality than any mail order house in the land they're yours for the asking.

And while we're on this line we want to call your attention to our line of shirt waists—exquisite things in silks, French and domestic flannels, percales, pure linens, piques, and all the late shirtwaist fabrics. These are exclusive showings. You'll only find them at Baatz and the price will prove a revelation to you.

BEAUTIFUL CREATIONS IN SILK PETTICOATS

This is an entirely new showing of extremely high-class and medium-priced petticoats. A sample line from one of the best houses in the country making petticoats a specialty. They come in all the new and wanted colorings and the many pretty things in stripes, checks and plaids. A price quotation would not give you a comprehensive idea of the magnitude of these petticoat bargains. You must see them and then you'll buy without hesitancy.

Gloves—long and short lengths—in kid, silk and lisle—with that same breath of exclusiveness came in the same order.

EXQUISITE LINE OF GENUINE FURS

A wanted comfort those crisp, frosty days, and a costume adornment almost irresistible is a piece or set of beautiful furs. A recent purchase places us in a position to supply this demand. Beautiful things in coats, muffs and in combination sets. All of guaranteed real fur and marked at prices quoted elsewhere and by mail order houses on imitations. You get a straight statement of qualities here and a price that will please.

Children's combination sets—coats, polo cap, muff, leggings—in bearskin cloth, astrakhan and velvets—beautiful things—bring along your mail order house catalogue and compare the prices right in our store. That's all we ask. You'll buy here.

Annual Sale of Beautiful SNOWY TABLE LINENS

For Thanksgiving

IT WAS an early P. Igrim custom, after a bountiful harvest, to offer thanks to the Supreme Being, and partake of a royal feast. This beautiful custom has ever since been carried out by a thoughtful and appreciative people. Thanksgiving this year, November 28, will be the most glorious in the history of this wonderful nation. It is every home's pride that her Thanksgiving festive board shall be spotless and snowy, and with this in mind, we have collected the choicest patterns in beautiful table linens produced by the most famous linen mills in the world. Ireland, Scotland, Germany and England are contributors to this brilliant display of housekeepers' linens.
