RAILROAD RATES IN ARIZONA ARE BEING PROBED

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COM-MISSION INVESTIGATING IN THE TERRITORY

Boards of trade and chambers of commerce having appointed committees that have done nothing there is now a possibility that the alleged discriminations of the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads in Arizona may get before the interstate commerce commission through another channel, says the Phoenix Democrat.

For several weeks data has been gathered regarding the alleged manner in which the railroads treat shippers differ-ently in Arizona than those in other parts of the country, and before long the commission will probably have this to act upon.

Interstate Commissioner Lane's attention has been drawn to certain alleged violations of the interstate commerce laws, and he is said to have directed that an investigation be made for the purpose of determining just how much fire there is in all the smoke.

Those who are working under Commissioner Lane's orders are working quietly and as yet have not let it be known that they have been commissioned by Lane to gather data.

Some time ago a committee of which B. A. Packard and Dwight B. Heard were members was appointed to raise funds and get the attention of the interstate commerce commission turned toward Arizona. Nothing has been heard from them for some time.

Several of the commercial bodies of Arizona have appointed committees and employed agents to lay before the interstate commerce commission the violations which complaint is made, but it is not yet of record that anything has been done.

Bisbee is the only city in Arizona in which there has been anything done, and that was accomplished by employing an expert to take charge of the matter and give his whole time and attention to proving to the railroads that relief should be granted.

Bisbee was able to get a revision of the freight rates into that city on the Southern Pacific and El Paso & Southwestern roads, and important freight reductions followed.

"SENATORIAL COURTESY"

Prevents Presidents from Making Selections for Appointments.

No one familiar with the manner in which national patronage is parcelled out among senators and representatives will suffer any shock to his nervous system on hearing that President Roosevelt insisted that two wheat-field senators "draw cuts" to determine which of them was to have certain appointments.

The operation of what has been known for more than a generation as "senatorial courtesy" has practically removed from the president's actual selection all appointments below those of ambassadors and consuls general.
As to the postmaster and smaller offices, they belong, absolutely, to the representatives; and the civil service law is twisted constantly for the benefit of members in both houses who belong to the party in power.

Whether or not President Roosevelt actually flipped a coin to see which of these senators was to name certain appointments is not of the slightest importance. I sincerely hope it is literally true! And for reasons that will be stated.

These men were sure to get the offices or to prevent anybody else from securing them. Didn't they, each and severally, threaten our pugnacious chief magistrate, before his face, to fight any appointee to the offices in dispute made without their consent? Although these Roman fathers didn't speak to each other, senatorial courtesy united them against a threatened infraction of abominable usage! They would vote together to defeat any choice that they didn't dictate. Think of that! And yet, sadder to relate, their entire brotherhood in the senate chamber, without distinction of party, would uphold them.

Surely a president of the United States has his trials!

From my viewpoint—the result of more than twenty-five years' study of national politics at Washington—the so-called "senatorial courtesy" has been treated with the proper contempt that every president of the United States should feel and show toward it.
Such arrogation of authority never was comprehended by the framers of the constitution.

Alexander cut the Gordian knot; Columbus convinced a scoffing assembly by standing an egg on end. These were trivial acts in themselves, but their effects are seen to this day.

Now that we have fallen into history, let us not forget that Solomon settled a dispute between two women who claimed parentage of the same child by threatening to cut the baby in twain. A "wise man" wasn't needed to see that the real mother would surrender her claim while the pretended one would exhibit indifference. Solomon's reputation for judicial ability doesn't rest upon that baby case. He had made his reputation; just as Roosevelt has achieved his.

Anything that will enable the great masses of the American people to comprehend the arrogant attitude that men elected by them solely as lawmakers assume toward the appointing power designated in the constitution is a valuable step in the direction of reform.
It is merest infantile stupidity for a journalistic critic of the president to insinuate that he (Roosevelt) probably tossed a coin to decide whether the American battle ship fleet should go to the Pacific or remain in the Atlantic. That was a matter wholly within his authority, as commander-in-chief of the army and navy. The same thing ought to be true of all important appointments for which the administration has to be responsible—not the dictating senator who "demands as his right" most of such places.

Seriously, I'd like to see the traffic in public appointments shown up, much as were the secrets of the Chicago stock yards. Why shouldn't the president appear one afternoon of each week in the Marble room, at the east end of the capitol, and auction off his appointments?

That would surely bring ridicule upon senatorial dictation!—Brooklyn Eagle.
