BIG VOTE NOT YET CAST IN PIANO CONTEST

ONLY THREE CANDIDATES TURN IN BALLOTS AND LIST IS UNCHANGED.

It Will Be Known at 10 O'Clock This Evening Just Who Is Going to Great Fair at Phoenix at Expense of the Silver Belt—Chance for All.

The positions of the candidates in the Silver Belt's popular piano contest are the same as yesterday. Votes were only cast for three candidates yesterday. Miss Millie Williams has materially added to her figures. Miss Dolie Armstrong made a good advance and little Miss Mildred Voris received a handsome vote.

Tonight at 8 o'clock the contest for the trip to the territorial fair will close. At that hour, all the candidates who have scored 150 points will be taken to Phoenix free of all charge and will enjoy three days of real pleasure and sight-seeing. Just what day the party will leave Globe is a matter for the lucky contestants to decide. The Silver Belt trusts that at least six of the candidates will come through sufficiently strong today to win this trip. Remember, the pools on this contest will close at 8 o'clock tonight.

The big vote promised today failed to materialize yesterday. The parties holding it state that it will be cast not later than Sunday, when they believe they will be able to add the 5000 premium vote to the total of their candidate. There is every evidence of a warm struggle for this premium vote.

List of Candidates. The list of candidates, entered at 10 o'clock last night, with their respective vote, is as follows:

Table listing candidates and their vote counts, including Miss Millie Williams (51917), Mrs. Geneva Fryer (50989), Miss Dolie Armstrong (45683), etc.

BLOUSE TO COMPLETE A THREE PIECE COSTUME.

A FEATURE of all the costumes displayed this fall, whether tailor made or dressy, is the directive idea carried out in some way. By this is meant the sensational sheath skirt of the summer, but the high waisted effects, the scant skirts, the long sleeves, the draped sash, the broad pointed revers and high collars, all characteristic of this style. One of the new ideas of the season is the directive coat to complete the popular three piece costume.

Such a costume seen recently was of smoke gray broadcloth trimmed with folds of corded silk and embroidered bands. The bodice was in a jumper design similar to the one illustrated and trimmed with bias folds of corded silk of the same shade. The yoke and undersleeves were of plain gray net, and a band of the embroidery was arranged to outline the top of a second yoke of polka dotted flannel lace. To outline this double yoke and separate it from the bodice bias folds of the corded silk were used, and embroidered buttons were arranged on either side of the bodice where the embroidered band came against it. A band of embroidery finished the mandarin sleeves, and the tight fitting undersleeve was finished with a couple of folds of the corded silk. The skirt was in one of the new close fitting effects trimmed with folds of corded silk and embroidered buttons. The coat was of gray corded silk with long, tight fitting sleeves finished with a directive cuff and trim, high collar and deep pointed revers ornamented with embroidered buttons.

and sash girde arranged on the outside of the coat with the ends of the sash ornamented with fringe and small pendent ornaments. With this costume was worn a beaver hat trimmed with ostrich feathers.

This tucked jumper closes at the back, with the side of the body and the sleeves in one. The pattern is cut in six sizes—from 32 to 42 inches bust measure. To copy it for the average person it requires 2 1/4 yards of material 27 inches wide or 1 1/4 yards 36 inches wide.

Any reader of this paper who desires to secure this pattern may do so by sending 10 cents to this office. Give the number, 4123, state size desired and write the full address plainly. The pattern will be forwarded promptly by mail.

Seen in the Shops

Very striking, though it would have to be worn with a subdued costume, is a boa composed of feathers of all colors of the rainbow.

Blouses, of bright plaid silks, which used to be worn so much, are appearing again here and there in shop windows. They are cut away at the neck and worn over white gimpes. One, of a brilliant blue and green and red plaid, has also a white ruching down the front.

Almost too dainty to carry, one would think, are the little shopping bags of white leather. Some of the prettiest

AIDED HER RIVAL.

Romance of a London Society Leader and a Diamond Necklace.

The jewelers of Bond street could if they liked tell many an amazing story. There is no need to dilate on the fascination which scintillating gems exercise upon the feminine mind. That fascination is a fact and may serve to explain a mortal enmity which existed recently and probably still exists between two well known society leaders. To one of them a highly placed admirer mentioned his intention to purchase a diamond necklace. Knowing that the lady possessed more than a superficial knowledge of the value of stones, he begged her to select for him what he required. The price he was prepared to give was £1,500. The lady jumped to the conclusion that such a request could have but one meaning—viz, that she herself was to be the eventual recipient of the gift. She thereupon visited the jeweler's shop and inspected his stock, but at the price she was empowered to give saw nothing that particularly took her fancy. A fascinating piece of workmanship, however, did attract her, the price of which was 3,000 guineas. The desire to possess it became irresistible. She arranged with the jeweler to send the necklace to the purchaser and invoice it to him at the agreed upon price, while she gave her own check for the balance. Then she went home and awaited the arrival of the gift. Some days passed, but there was no appearance of the necklace. A horrible doubt which assailed her became certainty a day or two later when she saw the identical necklace she had helped to pay for sparkling on the neck of a younger and more beautiful rival.—Grand Magazine.

Paid Up.

A year or two ago the son of a prominent banker of Iowa undertook, with all the brushness and confidence of youth, the launching of a new morning paper in a town already well supplied with newspapers.

It was understood by his friends that the young man had, in fact, started his enterprise on "a shoestring"—a few hundred dollars advanced by his father. So it was with much facetiousness that the youthful proprietor and editor was approached from day to day by the aforesaid friends. "So you call yourself an editor?" exclaimed one of them, with affected contempt.

"Of course I do," returned the bashy owner. "I'm the whole thing on this paper. And I don't owe a cent thereof." "Everybody knows," continued his tormentor, "that you got $200 from your father to start the thing." "Sure!" said the proprietor and editor. "Furthermore, the old man's subscription for the Beacon is marked paid a hundred years ahead on my books!"

Long Flights of Birds.

Birds of passage make their longest flight somewhere near Bering strait. A naturalist says that probably the longest continuous flight made by the feathered travelers in their peregrinations is accomplished by some of the shore and water birds that nest in the islands of Bering sea and spend the winter at Hawaii and Fanning Island, 2,200 miles away. As some of the birds live entirely on the shore and are probably unable to rest on the surface of the water, they must accomplish the whole distance in a single flight, yet they make their way to their destination with absolute precision.—Chicago Tribune.

Cheese Crackers.

Cheese crackers are better when made the day they are to be eaten. Use American grated cheese and saltine crackers. For each two tablespoonfuls allow one of creamed butter, rub them together till perfectly smooth. Spread evenly on the wafters and set them in a moderate oven to glaze the cheese. Watch carefully to prevent burning. There is nothing nicer to serve with a plain salad.—New York Post

No School.

The teacher was giving an exposition on culpable homicide. "If I went out in a small boat," he said, "and the owner knew it was leaking, and I got drowned, what would that be?" After a few minutes' silence a little boy stood up and said: "A holiday, sir!"
