ERRANT ARROW HITS TREASURE IN TREE

Youths at Play Make a Most Startling Discovery in Woods.

ROLL OF BANK NOTES

Boys Playing "Robin Hood" Near Little Rock, Ark., Uncover Burglars Cache Containing $4,000—Youngsters Were Handsomely Rewarded.

Little Rock, Ark.—"Now, Ashley, it's your turn; take a firm grip on the bow, and pull the string clear back to the shoulder; this way." And Stirling Cockrill took the primitive instrument and showed his little brother how to handle it properly.

The Cockrill boys, sons of a prominent Little Rock citizen, and their young playmate, Frank Fiestmal, were playing "Robin Hood" in the oak forest on the Cockrill estate and were learning to shoot straight with bow and arrow. Stirling showed the younger boys all right, but the winged arrow flew wide of the target and went sailing into a dense woodland.

For hours the boys prowled through underbrush and among trees searching for the lost arrow, and finally found it imbedded in the hollow of a huge tree, just a bit of the feather end sticking out.

"Here it is," said Frank, the discoverer, and he made to pull it out, when it was found it was stuck so fast that the feat seemed nigh impossible. The other boys, running up, assisted as best they could, and finally the little spear was dislodged. "Isn't that a funny old hole," exclaimed Ashley, and he ran his hand into the aperture of decayed wood. Then he jerked it out quickly. "There's somepin' in there," he said, and instantly the other boys were all excitement. Stirling finally succeeded in getting to the light a package wrapped in a dirty cotton cloth, and banknotes dropped out among the leaves. The boys were really frightened. They held a short counsel and decided to take the package home. And they did so, running as fast as they could.

"Oh, mamma," shouted Ashley to his mother. "See what we found." And when Mrs. Cockrill saw it she leisurely opened it, her thoughts never once

MAINE MAN PAYS HIS TAXES WITH A GUN

Needed Money and Went After It—Finds Bears and Moose Enough to Pay Debts.

Bangor, Me.—When every other source of income fails a Maine man has always one dependable recourse—he can take his gun and go out and shoot something. It enabled Lysander Boobar to squeeze out of a very tight financial corner, and he gratefully relates the details.

Lysander owed $27.75 in taxes and, as he had been sick abed most of the summer and his crops didn't amount to much, and his wife's father died over in Skowhegan, the family treasury was pretty nearly cleaned out.

The Bear Had Become Wedged.

Then one day Lysander heard at the post office that the biggest and fattest bear ever seen in those parts had been promenading around through the orchards and pastures of the neighborhood, feasting on live stock, with apples for dessert. That was enough for Lysander. He hiked across lots for home and his new rifle.

That night and the next he waited around the pastures and orchard lanes in vain. On the third night he saw a dark figure crossing the Asa Grant pasture and making for the lean-to. Keeping in the shadow of the orchard wall, Lysander crept along until he was within 50 feet of the bear—for it was a bear and a buster. Presently there came a furious grunting. Lysander crept closer and observed that the bear had become wedged between a big tree and the corner of Grant's lean-to and was unable to back out or go ahead.

Then it was plain sailing. Lysander went up close in the bear's rear, took leisurely aim and put a bullet in the right place at the first shot. That bear netted him $22.50. In the course of three more nights Boobar got two more bears, bringing his total receipts up to more than $50. On the night that he got the last bear he killed a bull moose, for whose head a sportsman gave him $25. Total for three bears and one moose head, $97.50.

Thus did Lysander Boobar not only settle the tax question, but he also had a considerable surplus, out of which he bought his winter's tobacco and a new fiddle.

MAN FOILS BURGLARS AT 75

Aged Pennsylvania Undertaker Drives Yeggman from Postoffice at an Early Hour.

Myerstown, Pa.—Leaving his bed at 2:30 o'clock in the morning, when he was aroused by suspicious noises in the street, Adam Behney, a retired undertaker, aged 75 years, thwarted the attempts of a trio of safelowers to rob the postoffice, just across the street from his home. When he realized such an attempt was being made, Behney walked into the street and halted the lookout stationed there by the yeggmen.

A shot was fired by the lookout to give the alarm to his pals at work on the safe in the postoffice, and they rushed from the building just as the charge of nitroglycerin they had poured into the safe went off. The three men jumped into a waiting wagon and drove away.

The explosion tore off the outer door of the safe and wrecked the interior of the postoffice, shattering practically every bit of glass in the place. The inner door of the safe remained intact and the contents were found to be undisturbed by Postmaster James Keller, who discovered that the thieves had worked in the glare of a strong gas light which is kept burning at night in the postoffice.

embracing the idea of hidden treasure. But when she unrolled the cloth, gold, silver and paper money and jewels lay bare, and she almost fainted. Obeying her first impulse, she phoned her husband, and Mr. Cockrill was soon a party to the discovery, and he immediately informed the police.

The authorities recognized the stuff as part of the loot taken by burglars from the home of J. L. Atkins, a cotton buyer. That in the package amounted to $4,000, though $2,000 worth of diamonds stolen at the same time were not there.

Mr. Atkins did the handsome thing by giving each of the boys a $100 bill.

Town Wants Name 1912.
Monongahela, Pa.—The town of Eighty-Four, Washington county, with a population of 700, never has had a Republican voter. Once, many years ago, a Republican went to the town to go into business, but did not remain until election time. Eighty-Four took its present name when Cleveland was elected president in 1884. Previous to that time it was known as Fifty-Six in honor of the election of President Buchanan. Now, after twenty years, the residents propose to petition the postmaster-general to change the name of the office to "Nineteen Twelve," in honor of Woodrow Wilson's election.

Was He?
