Well Known Arkansas Man Recovers Health From Orgatone and Is Happy.

A great specialist at one time said: "Stomach trouble is the curse of the American people." Nine out of every ten people we meet suffer from stomach trouble in some form.

Following is the signed testimonial of Mr. J. A. Story, who resides at 1503 East 15th, street, Little Rock. He says:

"I had stomach trouble, nervous and indigestion for some years. My food would ferment in my stomach, causing gases to form, and I was more or less bloated. I was very nervous and restless and could not sleep at night.

Bowser Is At Peace

Maybe He Won't Kick Again

Mr. Bowser got out of bed on a Monday morning, after his third call to breakfast, and proceeded to dress.

When he reached as far as his socks they were not in sight. He did not rush to the hall and call for Mrs. Bowser to come up on the gallop and explain matters. He looked around him until he found one of them on his foot and the other crumpled in his shoe.

Friday morning dawned as peaceful as any one could wish. He talked and smiled, and he was so pleased with the downward path.

Mr. Bowser didn't kick when he came home. He didn't kick through-out the evening. He was as peaceful as a pumpkin growing under the July sun.

Tuesday morning he had the same difficulty in finding his clothes to dress. One shoe had gotten into the closet, where he had thrown it during the night at a gnawing mouse, and it took ten minutes to remember it.

Friday evening at dinner Mrs. Bowser timidly mentioned that she wanted to do some house cleaning next day, and that she would get up in the morning an hour earlier to do so.

Among the oldest life forms on the globe is the shellfish, known as the Lingula, a specimen of which was taken from Manila bay several years ago.

He Came Back With a Bouquet.

some remarks of a complimentary nature. He even went so far as to invite Mrs. Bowser to go with him to the movies, but she was obliged to decline on account of her being too tired.

Thursday morning Mr. Bowser did not bound out of bed with the quickness of a bullet or the agility of an antelope. He clung to that bed as if it was his only hope on earth. Mrs. Bowser called him five times and finally came upstairs and told him in a petulant way that he would be at least an hour late at the office.

On the car going over town, several passengers were astonished. Mr. Bowser usually roused into his car and took the first seat he could find in a selfish way, but this time he came in very quietly, and took a seat with an apologetic expression of countenance.

That evening was a long and peaceful one in the Bowser residence. Mr. Bowser did considerable talking, and it was all pleasant talk. There was a notice, which had come by mail, that he had not paid his taxes yet, and that a per cent had been levied against him. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred he would have walked about flourishing that piece of paper, and defying all the tax departments in the world, and threatening to have blood for the insult. But, on this occasion, he read the notice and laughed over it and said to Mrs. Bowser:

"Well, I declare! I am surely getting to be a careless old man. Of course, I must pay for my negligence, as all others must."

During the evening a man called and wanted to sell Mr. Bowser a horse, and another man called to see if he didn't want to invest in some coconut lands in Mexico, but he turned them away with a few pleasant words, and his right shoe didn't itch to do any kicking.

Friday morning dawned as peaceful as any one could wish. He talked and smiled, and he was so pleased with the downward path.

He Smiled Blandly at an Old Horse, the general way in which the cook dropped a platter, and broke it in four places that she whispered to Mrs. Bowser that she ought to have her wages raised at least a dollar a week.

Friday evening was a replica of other pleasant evenings. The minister of Mrs. Bowser's church made a brief call and talked to Mr. Bowser about his soul, and Mr. Bowser didn't get mad about it. He seemed to know that he had a soul, and that it ought to be a good soul.

All men agree that Saturday is the most trying day of the week. If a man is ever going to be mean and grouchy it is on Saturday. Mr. Bowser was to be tested, but he stood the test bravely. He arose at his usual hour, and he did not kick. A goat had come along and ate up some of the flowers in the front yard, but there were no threats of taking his tail and keeping it until he was brought low.

There is danger that organized rat hunts will be followed by long intervals of indifference and inaction. This may be prevented by offering prizes covering a definite period of effort.

REDUCING MOUSE AND RAT DAMAGE

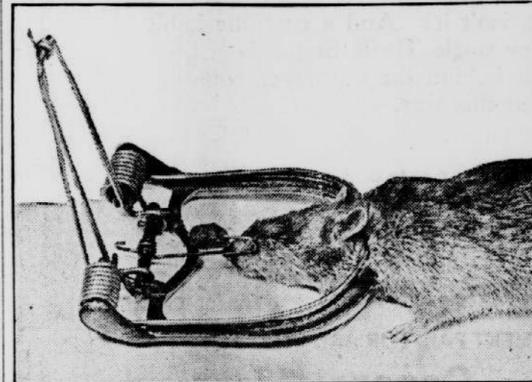

Co-operation and Organization Is of Utmost Importance.

COMMUNITY EFFORT IS BEST

Permanent Results Can Only Be Obtained by Building Animals Out of Shelter and Food—Government Ready to Help.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The necessity of co-operation and organization in the work of rat destruction is of the utmost importance. To destroy all the animals on the premises of a single farmer in a community has little permanent value, since they are soon replaced from near-by farms.

unite in efforts to get rid of rats, much more lasting results may be attained. If continued from year to year, such organized efforts are very effective.

Co-operative efforts to destroy rats have taken various forms in different localities. In cities, municipal employees have occasionally been set at work hunting rats from their retreats, with at least temporary benefit to the community.

Side hunts in which rats are the only animals that count in the contest have sometimes been organized and successfully carried out. At New Burlington, O., a rat hunt took place some years ago in which each of the two sides killed over 8,000 rats, the beaten party serving a banquet to the winners.

In England and some of its colonies contests for prizes have been organized to promote the destruction of the English, or house, sparrow, but many of the so-called sparrow clubs are really sparrow and rat clubs, for the destruction of both pests is the avowed object of the organization.

Many organizations already formed should be interested in destroying rats. Boards of trade, civic societies, and citizens' associations in towns and farmers' and women's clubs in rural communities will find the subject of great importance.

Similar organizations could do excellent work in rat campaigns. State and National Aid. To secure permanent results any general campaign for the elimination of rats must aim at building the animals out of shelter and food.

IMPORTANT FACTORS IN GROWTH OF HOGS

Problem of Exercise Is Difficult to Solve in Winter—Good Plan Is Outlined.

Exercise is one of the most important factors in the growth of hogs. Hogs that are confined in a small lot do not develop sufficient stretch and frame, points out Ray Gatewood, instructor in animal husbandry in the agricultural college.

"The problem of exercise," said Mr. Gatewood, "is more difficult to solve in winter than in any other season of the year due to the fact that hogs should be kept off the pasture for the good of the pasture."

"Exercise can best be provided by allowing the hog free range on a field which is fenced hog tight and which has not been platted to any crop. Stalk fields in which cattle are running make a desirable place for stock hogs.

HERO OF SHEEP HUSBANDRY Not Breeder of Thousand-Dollar Rams, but Common Farmer Who Grows Wool for Soldiers.

The hero of sheep husbandry is not the breeder of thousand-dollar rams, but the common farmer who answers the nation's appeal and buys 20 or 30 sheep to grow wool that the soldier boys in the trenches may be kept warm.

MILK IS GOOD FOR POULTRY When Hens Once Get Accustomed to it They May Be Given All They Readily Consume.

Milk is a good feed for hens and when once accustomed to it they may be given all they will readily consume. Constituents of the milk not only help to make the hens lay well but keep them in a strong, vigorous state of health.

REPAIR MACHINES IN WINTER Farmers Should Give Careful Attention to Tools and Implements for Next Season.

During the winter months farmers should give careful attention to the work of repairing all machines which will be used next season. Also, orders for repair parts and new machines should be placed as soon as possible.

NATURAL FEED FOR POULTRY Hens Should Receive Grains and Other Milling Products, Meat Meals and Green Stuff.

The natural food of poultry consists of grains, insects, green forage and grit, and accordingly in domestication it is reasonable that the hens receive cereal grains and other milling products, and such animal feeds as meat meals and skim milk, and should also have an abundance of green feed or such substitutes for it as roots or steamed clover. Oyster shells, grit and plenty of fresh water should also be supplied.

MULCH AS SOIL PROTECTION Chief Value Is in Keeping Surface From Packing Under Weight of Snow or Heavy Rains.

The mulch is of value chiefly in protecting the surface soil, keeping it from packing under the weight of snows or heavy packing rains. The mulch also prevents heaving as a result of thawing and freezing. It protects the crowns and roots, adds fertility and sometimes retards budding out in the spring. This may be desirable when there are late frosts.

WHEN SOIL IS UNHEALTHFUL Sometimes Becomes So Saturated With Droppings That Hens Are Likely to Contract Disease.

Ground may get so saturated with the droppings that it becomes unhealthy; if food is thrown on the ground, the flock is likely to contract disease common to fowl. Where such a condition exists, it is best to remove a couple of inches of soil and fill in with clean sand or coarse gravel.
