

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Warner.

Omakas, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unfit to do my housework. I could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and I can do my housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good in female weakness, and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. LESTER E. WARNER, R. 1, Box 69, Omakas, Wis.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach. Millions of people—in fact about 3 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach. There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, blood after eating, food repelling, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are nevertheless, traceable to an acid-stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, crickets of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victim in miserable health year after year. The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this. One of hundreds of thousands of grateful letters of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with intestinal indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

MISS PENGUIN REFUSES.

Mr. Johnny Penguin smoothed down his feathers with great care, for he was going a-calling. He looked around the beach and then gazed keenly far out upon the ocean. He strutted around a moment or two and then looked a-fourth time again. "What shall I take her?" he asked himself. There were plenty of other penguins around whom he could have asked for advice but he didn't want anyone's advice. He wanted to decide the question himself. The only thing was that he didn't quite know how to answer his own question. That was difficult, yes, it most certainly was difficult.

"I might," he said to himself, "take her an ocean wave. That would be a present such as no penguin has ever had before and it would be sure to please her. But I do not know how to get the wave for her. As soon as I got it another might come along and take it away from me. That is a trick waves have of doing."

"I will ask her if she would like a wave for a present. I will leave it to her to decide. That is what I shall do, yes sir, that is what I shall do."

So he picked up a stick he found upon the beach and strutted along in a very proud and haughty fashion. "With my fine walking cane no one can resist me," he said.

As he walked along with his head high in the air he thought of what a lovely home he would have with Miss Penguin, for he was going a-calling on the loveliest Miss Penguin on the whole island.

At one time he looked down and saw a fine stone, smooth and quite perfect. "This will just do for her," he said. "For Miss Penguin must be given an engagement ring if I am to ask her to marry me. She will expect it and she will accept it, ha, ha," and he gave a laugh of joy.

At last he reached the spot where Miss Penguin was standing. "How fine and straight she stands," he said to himself, and then he stopped right in front of Miss Penguin. "I've come to see you, Miss Penguin," he said, "and I want you to be my mate. Here is the engagement ring!"

He dropped the stone in front of her. She certainly could not refuse it. But Miss Penguin looked in another direction and did not pay any attention to the stone. "Miss Penguin," he said, "will you not accept me as a mate? I will give you a wave as a wedding gift. I will get you the finest wave in the whole ocean and you can have it to use as you like."

Miss Penguin turned her head towards Mr. Johnny Penguin. All the other penguins were watching. Mr. Johnny wished he could talk to her alone. He wished he could tell her what a fine mate he would be without all these creatures looking on. He found himself quite shy with so many around. "What in the world, or on the island, or in the ocean, or under the stars or the moon or the sun will I do with a wave, Mr. Penguin?" she asked. All the other penguins had begun to titter. Mr. Johnny Penguin didn't know what to say.

MANY STYLES IN PARTY FROCKS

THERE is almost as much variety in party frocks as in the people who wear them—which makes an assemblage of dancers immensely interesting. It is here that well-dressed women match up their taste in party frocks, and have most opportunity to indulge in individual fancies; they have given themselves the benefit of much latitude in style. On any dancing floor there are draped gowns so long that they only reveal the toes, and other frocks so short that they barely conceal the knees. Materials influence the designers in their choice of styles. The heavy brocades and rich materials in heavier silk weaves, are chosen for the draped frocks that follow the lines of the figure, and many net and lace frocks are made in this style. Lighter-weight and supple silks are chosen for straight-line dresses, as crepe de chine, georgette and soft satins. Taffeta and organdie lend themselves to the bouffant draperies that widen the hips or suggest the bustle dress. Taffetas over lace petticoats are particularly pretty, caught up at the sides, or in the back, revealing the dainty petticoat below their hems. Georgette and lace dresses are wired to give the broadened hip line and on these, silk or artificial flowers are placed so as to emphasize the style.

Masterpieces in Wraps

THE splendid open coat which appears here has not been chosen because it is representative of the outer garments worn by women for evening dress; for it is not representative. Beautiful but less magnificent is the story of evening wraps in general. This, being a costly affair, is interesting as revealing the ample, mantle-like lines that are required of outer garments for evening, and the fact that fur and brocades are more or less lavishly used in many of them. Capes and mantles divide honors as favorites in this kind of wrap. Capes, with deep yokes of brocade, having plain velvet gathered on to the yokes, are often finished with narrow bands of fur, set on where velvet and brocade are joined, and about the collar. One of the new capes of taffeta has a deep fitted yoke of the silk with the cape gathered to it. Chantilly lace, about three inches wide, and silk net or point d'esprit in alternating ruffles cover the cape portion. This garment is made in black and lined with a colored satin. Another new and lovely wrap of taffeta is cut in long panels, pointed at the bottom. These panels reach from the neck down, the entire length of the wrap and have corded, overlapping edges. The collar is a huge puff of taffeta and the lines of the wrap are much like those of the coat shown in the picture, except that the taffeta coat is caught in loosely at the waistline. At the front, where it fastens, there is a very large, flat rose, made of silk, posed at the waist. However splendid brocades or rich furs may be they cannot outshine a work of art in silk like this; for it is a masterpiece of designing and its cleverness vies with their resplendence.
