A New King of Anam.
 PARIS, Sept. 14.—Gen. DeCourcy, commanding the French troops in Anam, telegraphs to-day to the minister of war that Chanong has been proclaimed the new king of Anam and entered the royal palace to-day. A salute of twenty-one guns was fired in honor of the event, and the Anamite flag has been hoisted over the palace and various public buildings. Chanong will be crowned on the 19th inst. Deserting the President.

The Washington editor of the Times-Democrat, with evident glee and gusto, announces that the New York World has made a square and outspoken attack on Mr. Cleveland. Much significance is attached to this fact, because the World has been considered, up to the present time, as the only paper in New York city that claims to be Democratic and has supported the Democratic administration. Its disaffection, therefore, is looked upon as ominous, and indicative of a growing sentiment of opposition to President Cleveland's policy.

The antagonism of the Sun is also referred to as another indication of popular dissatisfaction. But when it is remembered that the Sun supported Ben Butler for the Presidency and ridiculed Gen. Hancock, it will be hard to make intelligent people believe that such a paper in any way represents Democratic sentiment or is in any way authorized to speak for the party.

As to the present attitude of the World, as represented by the T.D.'s correspondent, it has for some time been expected that sooner or later it would abandon its support of President Cleveland, not from any reasonable or good cause of complaint against his policy, but simply because the Radical, excitable editor of that paper could not impress his voluntary ideas upon the President and have him play the part of "the bull in the china shop."

But there is still another cause that has precipitated an outburst of opposition to the President on the part of the World. Its journalistic monopoly of the Democratic field in New York city is to be disputed by the Daily Star, which has recently been purchased by Gov. Dorsheimer, and will be published as the recognized Democratic organ of the Administration. Hence the out-cropping of the dissatisfied spirit and exhibition of jealousy, which are in keeping with the first disappointment experienced by the World in failing to influence Mr. Cleveland in his political policy.

But because both the World and Sun have seen fit to desert the President and assume the position of anti-administration papers, alongside of the New York Tribune, the Chicago Inter-Ocean and Tribune, the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, it by no means follows that Mr. Cleveland will be diverted from "the even tenor of his way" or in any manner be discouraged from continuing in the line of conduct he has determined to pursue.

In losing the support of such journals which have no other grounds of complaint than those advanced by the World and Sun, if any loss is sustained by such desertion, President Cleveland will be strengthened in his position and held higher in popular respect and esteem by withstanding such unwise counsels as would drive him from the platform upon which he was elected, make him violate the law, prove recreant to all of his pledges and inconsistent with all of his political record. The politicians, spoilsmen and office seekers may not see it in this light, but the great mass of the people who are most concerned in honest, good and efficient government will fully appreciate the firmness and bravery of their Democratic President, and will heartily and steadfastly sustain and applaud him in the position he has so fearlessly taken.

SINCE the Reven des Deux Mondes, translated Mark Twain's "Jumping Frog of Calaveras," we have never seen anything so irresistibly funny as the following rendition of Longfellow's Psalm of Life in a French almanac:

Speak not to me in desolate rhymes: Life is a reverie without sense, because The soul is dead when she sleeps, and Things are not what they appear to us. Life is real. Life is serious; death Is not its termination. "Dust, thou Returnest into dust." The word has Not been said for our soul.

THE editorial from Saturday's New Orleans States, headed "Deserting the President," which we reproduce in our present issue has the ring of sterling Democracy in it, and is an excellent and unanswerable reply to the apostasy of the New York Sun and World and their little, sneaking Pen Wiper, the Vicksburg Evening Post.

My hands in the jail. R. F. B.

ONE of the beneficial results of the recent visit of the Mexican editors to the United States, according to the New Orleans Picayune, is seen in the endeavor of the press to improve the condition of the masses. It is well known that a large portion of the people of the republic are little better than slaves. The peon class are worked on ranches and in the mines and are subject entirely to the will of their masters, and frequent instances are being recorded where flogging is administered. The newspapers of recent date are comparing the condition of the peons to the negroes in the United States, and are advocating a change in the system that permits them, for alleged debts, to be placed in bondage.

REFERING to the rage among Americans for the collection of relics a London paper sarcastically says: "It is the American who chips off bits of the Parthenon, who engrosses lynx eyes of the Swiss guards at the Vatican, who used to make Temple Bar even more hideous than it was, and who barks every British tree to which any tradition attaches or from which any historical character has been suspended. Americans supply a steady market for locks of hair and old boots, and they were the chief bidders for the clippings of Thorwaldsen's beard, which were sold in Copenhagen."

I DON'T give a d--n for poor white trash. Niggers are too cheap.

OUR Evening cotemporary refers to a statement of the debt of the county as a "gratifying exhibit." How it can be "gratified" at it, unless it be tickled at the vast amount of scrip which the statement proves Beck must have shaved, is beyond our comprehension. By the way the Post has never yet told the people what it thought of Beck's record. Beck has challenged in the columns of the Post, an investigation of his official conduct. Is the Post afraid to accept the challenge, or does it think Beck's card settles it?

SOMEHOW railroad wars don't happen exactly at the right time to be unmitigated blessings to the traveling public. When it is cold weather rival lines commence to cut rates going North, and when it is hot they cut rates going South. This style of tactics while it doesn't benefit the traveling public, falls to bankrupt the railroads.

Destructive Storm Near Canton--Struck by Lightning.

CANTON, Miss., Sept. 14.—A heavy rain and wind storm, accompanied by much lightning and thunder, visited this place and vicinity late yesterday afternoon, blowing down trees and fences and doing much damage to crops.

On the Weathersby place, two miles west of town, while Tom Weathersby and three negroes were engaged in packing cotton, they were struck by lightning, and Austin Carson, one of the negroes, was instantly killed. The rest of the party were badly stunned and scorched; two of them are unable to walk. Fortunately, the gin-house, which was full of cotton, did not take fire.

Crops in East Carroll--Serious Complaint in Regard to Mail Facilities.

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Sept. 14.—The cotton crop in East Carroll parish has suffered very materially this week, in consequence of the heavy rain storms with which we have been visited, the rains being the heaviest known in many years, and the cotton fields have been flooded with water, preventing any possibility of picking during the present week. The worms also have been at work, and many cotton fields are stripped of their foliage. Many planters think, however, that the worms have not damaged the cotton to any serious extent recently, and their recent appearance may prove beneficial. Should the heavy rains continue, great fears are apprehended from rotting.

Business is unusually dull here for this season of the year, and very little cotton has been shipped from this point.

There are two landings with warehouses a short distance above Lake Providence (established in consequence of low water in front of town) and the wharfbow owned by V. M. Purdy below—all bidding for a share of public patronage, but the wharfbow seems to be doing the leading business in receiving and forwarding, from information received.

The levee in the neighborhood of Judge Montgomery's and Judge Wylie's has been caving considerably and may necessitate the building of a new levee.

There is a matter to which I would call attention, deeming it to be one of interest to the public generally, and that is the irregularity of mails received at this place. For instance the mail brought the issues of the 9th, 10th and 11th altogether of your paper, also in same mail the New Orleans papers dating back to Sunday the 5th to Thursday the 10th inclusive. This is certainly injurious to newspapers and deters persons from subscribing for a daily paper. Cannot this be remedied in some way? Who is to blame.

The Fair Association.

The committee on the sale of stock report that they have met with a most generous response from every class of the citizens and have secured the sale of enough stock to guarantee the enterprise. The only drawback seems to be that the very limited period before the time when it is desired to hold the meetings renders it necessary to have a speedy organization and a full subscription to stock at once. It is only six weeks to the 2d of November, which has been advertised as the date, and the contractors want at least a month in which to put up the buildings and make the track. It is to be hoped that those of our public spirited citizens who appreciate the advantages of the enterprise and the incalculable benefits which will accrue to the city will not see the matter fall through on account of delays in securing the required amount. Posters ought to be out for the meeting by the 1st of October and arrangements should be made at once to secure the horses for the races and the military companies for the drill. The meeting, if well supported, will bring not less than 20,000 people into the city, and we owe it to ourselves to give them the finest entertainment that has ever been held in the State.

The Iron Business Reviving.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 14.—The Columbia rolling mills, operating ten puddling and one heating furnace, was started up to-day after a long suspension. This gives employment to several hundred hands. The Reading, Pa., furnace No. 1, of the Reading iron works, which was idle over two years, was started up to-day, giving employment to about sixty hands. The Keystone iron works, which have been idle for a year and a half, will start up in two three weeks. The works give employment to several hundred hands.

HOLDS HER GRIP.

The Yankee Yacht Victorious in the Great Race Yesterday.

New York, Sept. 14.—The Genesta and Puritan have begun the race. They crossed the line at 10:34 a.m.

10:50 a.m.—The boats started on the port tack, the Puritan securing an advantage of half a length. After ten minutes run in on the Long Island shore, both boats almost simultaneously put about for the Narrows, the Puritan still leading.

11:10 a.m.—The Puritan is now going through the Narrows, leading the Genesta by 1-7 of a mile. The shores of Long Island and Staten Island are crowded with people and boats of every description follow in the wake of the contesting yachts.

In the 38-mile race over the New York Yacht Club's course to-day, the Puritan defeated the Genesta 16 minutes and 19 seconds corrected time, 16 minutes and 47 seconds actual time. The wind was extremely light from the start to Sandy Hook going out, and from there to the finish bearing in from the Hook to the light ship and back there was a good 8-knot breeze. The tide was flood during the first half of the race, and also coming home. A Large fleet assembled in the harbor and accompanied the yachts over the entire course.

The scene at the finish was one of the grandest ever witnessed. Both yachts were saluted by every vessel and a gun from Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island. Owing to the cracking of the iron cap of the Genesta's mainmast, the outside race is postponed till Wednesday.

OWLS HEAD, UPPER BAY, Sept. 14.

The morning opened with an overcast sky, but with a good strong breeze from the south, which had been blowing all night. At six o'clock there was a large number of yachts of the visiting clubs and other organizations at anchor at Bay Ridge and Staten Island. At 9 o'clock the wind had freshened and hauled around to the southwest, giving promise that one of the races so long deferred would be finished to-day. The judge's boat, the "Lackentack," arrived at the starting point about ten o'clock, at which time the tide was half flood, rising at the full strength of four miles an hour. At ten o'clock, while the Puritan was standing on the port tack over the Staten Island shore, she hoisted her jib topsail in tops, ready to break out, but the stops did not happen to be strong enough, for a puff of wind caught the canvas and blew it out deeper than it was wanted. The jib top sail had to be lowered and was furled on the bowsprit.

At 10:05 the Genesta, under mainsail, club topsail and jib, was running free up the bay, passing the Puritan to windward, the boats being about one-eighth of a mile apart, the stake boat, covered with flags from the end of her bowsprit to the top masthead and down to her beam end, about two hundred yards southwest of buoy No. 18. The Puritan off the starboard tack headed to the line. In obedience to the waiving signal, the Genesta at once hauled her wind to the same tack and set her stay sail.

At 10:10 a.m. the Genesta and Puritan, after sailing about the bay for half an hour in order to get into their positions, to the great admiration of their supporters, ranged side by side off Owl's Head, the Puritan to windward as usual.

At this moment the bay was alive with tugs and yachts and the white sails were dazzling. The starting signal was given at 10:40 and instantly the two boats began to move through the water. The Puritan, under all plain sail, was off first and crossed the line a little ahead of the Genesta. She seemed to move a little the quicker at first, but then the Genesta got a breath of wind and ran up to her rival. Both yachts stood on a short tack to the Long Island shore, and a few seconds later the Puritan went about in pursuit.

SANDY HOOK, Sept. 14.—The scene presented by the yachts and steamers as they passed Sandy Hook was as notably picturesque one. The Puritan with every stitch of canvas spread, led the procession. Behind her came the steamer with various colored flags floating above their heads, and the yachts with white sails. The Genesta followed at some distance behind, also under full sail. She swept along with hardly, if any less grace than the Puritan. The red caps of her sailors made them plainly discernible on the deck. The wind was blowing steadily at a rate of six miles an hour. The Puritan appeared to gain again on her rival. After passing Sandy Hook she had the whole sea to herself, and Capt. Crocker evidently meant to see that she kept it. He steered much closer to the wind than did Capt. Carter.

2:45 p.m.—The Puritan and Genesta are on the port tack. The Puritan keeps her position to the windward, and it looks from here as though the Puritan went too far to the windward in rounding the light ship, and consequently lost considerable ground, the Genesta overhauling her rival more rapidly than on the outward course. Both yachts are doing good work. 3:15 p.m.—The Puritan passed buoy five at 3:04, Genesta at 3:10 minutes, 16 seconds.

From Yazoo City.

YAZOO CITY, Sept. 10.—The rain, concerning which I wired you last night, seems to have been general hereabouts and very destructive to both cotton and corn, almost annihilating the crops on certain places and extensively damaging to all within the scope of the rain. It was the most fearful rainfall that many remember ever to have visited this section, beating cotton, corn and vegetation to the earth and converting certain plantations into veritable lakes.

The Jackson train failed to reach town yesterday, reaching Valley station, five miles from town, from whence it returned to Jackson. The train of to-day came as far as Short Creek from whence the mails, express and passengers were brought to town by hand cars. The bridge over Short Creek is said to be badly washed, some forty feet of it being swept entirely away. Considerable damage to the track was done at other points on the road.

From Canton.

CANTON, Miss., Sept. 10.—A horrible murder was committed last night at a colored church in this county ten miles east of Canton. Leon Cockrell, a negro school teacher, shot Aaron Warr, a colored deacon, while the latter was kneeling with the congregation at prayers. Officers have gone to arrest the murderer.

Mrs. Margaret McKee aged seventy-four, relict of Dr. M. J. McKee, died here this morning. She was one of our oldest citizens, an amiable Christian woman and her death is deeply deplored by a wide circle of relatives and friends.

EDWARDS.

Advance in Freight Rates on Cotton to Vicksburg.

EDWARDS, Miss., Sept. 14, 1885.
 Editor Commercial Herald:

We have just been informed by the agent at this place that the Vicksburg & Meridian railroad have advanced 25 cents per bale on cotton to your city. We thought the present rate, $1.25, was an extortion to charge for hauling a bale of cotton eighteen miles. But since the railroad officials conclude they must have $1.50 for the transportation of cotton to your city I am afraid you won't receive the amount of staple you have heretofore handled. Our conception why it was done is clear. The Louisville, New Orleans & Texas railroad have agreed to carry our cotton to New Orleans for $1 per bale from your city, including the transfer. The Vicksburg & Meridian railroad recognizes the fact that there is no competition at local points, so they transport a bale of cotton eighteen miles for $1.50 and the Louisville, New Orleans & Texas $1 for the same article 200 miles. Can't some of your cotton buyers who feel an interest in the shipments of cotton from this section come to our rescue? The transportation isn't the only thing this railroad robs us in, but many others, but if their is no relief we will have to grin and bear it.

A Generous Act.

The Fayette Chronicle says: That was a generous and thoughtful act of Conductor Geo. Rigby the other day. On the arrival of the train bearing the wounded to Natchez from the Bayou Pierre wreck, Mr. Rigby, although painfully hurt himself, took the bundle of papers of the little newsboy, Jimmy Meng, who had his arm broken, and sold them, paying two dollars himself for the first copy. The papers were all sold at fictitious prices, and resold, until quite a handsome purse was made up for Jimmy, who is quite a favorite with all. Such acts as these will make even the cynics cease their snarling at human kindness.

Funeral of Artist Canon.

VIENNA, Sept. 16.—The funeral of the artist Canon yesterday was imposing as that of Makart. Archduke Rudolph, Archduchess Stephanie and other members of the royal family sent wreaths, and an immense procession followed the remains to the grave.
