

THE BLACK RANGE.

Friday, June 15th, 1884.

PUBLISHED BY V. B. BECKETT.

Congress has concluded that it will adjourn on or about the 15th of July.

The Hon. Tranquillo Luna, appreciating the fact that he can never have much influence or standing while residing in a country devoid of newspapers or school houses, has determined to remove to Albuquerque.

There are democrats, who are not as high in the estimation of the party as they once were. Gen. Geo. B. McClellan tried to become elected to the national convention as delegate from New Jersey and failed. A majority of the delegates from Jersey state are for Tilden for president.

How incomparably more wise is the nomination of Logan for vice-president than that of Lincoln would have been. Logan has ability of his own and requires not to be known as the son of his father to give him strength before the people. Should he be called to the presidency by any freak of providence there would be no mummy in the chair.

Albuquerque kept the river water from flooding the city by means of embankments built at Alameda ten miles above. It required a little work but was effectual. This escape of Albuquerque is the subject of much regret at Santa Fe, which was the only city in New Mexico at all injured by the dampness of the season. The bursting of a cloud behind the ancient capital two weeks ago washed its streets in fine style.

J. H. Gardner has leased the Albuquerque Journal for one year and is now in possession thereof. Without at all disparaging the new editor of the best daily in the territory the RANGE sincerely regrets to lose W. S. Burke the late editor of the Journal from the journalistic ranks of the territory. Editor Burke held the first place among the writers of New Mexico, and while it is possible that Mr. Gardner may creditably fill his place yet we cannot but regret the loss of an old friend. That he may find congenial employment awaiting him is heartily wished.

The Irish are stirring London up with solid shot just now. On the 30th of May a concerted movement among the dynamiters resulted in the blowing out of a corner of the detectives' office at Scotland Yard, in making a large fracture in the residence of Sir Watkin Wynn in St. James square, and only a defective fuse saved the Nelson monument. The explosions injured thirteen persons, five of them seriously. Atlas powder was the explosive used. The Irish are simple to expect to accomplish any good for their cause by such incendiary methods. These dynamiters should and doubtless will receive the punishment they deserve.

The delegates to the Chicago convention from New Mexico were sent unimpaired, but with the understanding that they were to vote with the winning crowd, and to be on top at all hazards. Instead of doing this, however, they both voted for Arthur every time, not even changing to Blaine when he and the nomination assured. The votes by which Romero and Llewellyn were elected were Blaine and Logan votes and the judgment and good sense of the delegates, rather than instructions, were relied upon to bring New Mexico credit. The result shows that this reliance was weak and that the expected wise judgment was lacking. New Mexico lost the opportunity of assisting to nominate the republican candidate and she can therefore claim no honor with the next president. The RANGE is forced to acknowledge that the resolution instructing for Blaine and Logan, introduced in the territorial convention should have passed.

The Rio Grande Republican claiming to be the paper of extended circulation in Sierra county and to be the best posted concerning affairs here and throughout the United States, a week or two since stated that there would be no court house built at Hillsboro until after the election of 1886 and also that the people of the county will vote upon the county-seat question first. The BLACK RANGE has the words of the present board of commissioners of Sierra county which it considers the best testimony in the world, that as soon as congress places beyond doubt the status of the act creating Sierra county they, the county commissioners will issue the twenty-thousand dollars in county bonds and as soon as they are not tied bids will be asked from architects and contractors on the work and the court house will go up at once—at Hillsboro. The Republican made the wish the father of the thought and can give no authority for its statement. The RANGE asked it and the Republican evaded it. If the Republican can get better authority for stating that the court house location and county-seat question will be submitted to vote in 1886 than the RANGE has given that they will not, then it need not be ashamed of it but can give its readers the benefit thereof. If it cannot do so then let it in fairness publish the truth. The Republican has systematically slandered Hillsboro and traduced its citizens since Sierra county was formed. For local office purposes it secured a small circulation in the southern part of the county last fall but it cannot hope for a renewal of a subscription from that section now on its books. Hillsboro people in particular in supporting it are nursing a viper and they see it plainly enough themselves. The RANGE admits to see a paper active in support of a just cause but the malignant falsifying which the Republican has been guilty of on Sierra county topics, since its efforts could have no effect upon the existence thereof is without reason or justification. Please be truthful as you can Hillsboro if you are devoid of sense.

The RANGE reporter was, not long since, conversing with an Irishman on the topic of the troubles of Ireland and from him heard an unequivocal resolution of the Irish question, which is here submitted to the careful consideration of friend Gladstone without cost. Inasmuch as the scheme is an Irish one no offence can be taken by the RANGE readers. The speaker quoted, first related how England had tried to better Ireland's condition and had its efforts rejected; how England established schools to which the protestants would not send because they were English schools and the Catholics wouldn't send because they were protestant schools; and how all such conciliatory overtures have been rejected. "The Irish" said he, "are too fond of a light to ever be at peace. The island is hardly self-supporting and England would gladly rid herself of it were it not for its proximity. The best thing for Great Britain to do is too withdraw her troops from the island, arm the citizens, give each a small pension and then let them alone for a period of five years. At the end of that time there would not be a soul left to tell how they all got killed in a fight."

With Blaine and Logan to head the ticket the republicans have something to enthuse over in this year's political campaign. They can yell and work and work and yell and never grow tired. Never, before in the history of this nation has so much statesmanship been united upon one presidential ticket, and never before has the opportunity been given the people of voting for men whose course of action when endowed with power is so clearly shadowed by past records. Both Blaine and Logan are and have been for years conspicuous objects in the eyes of the nation and their names are household words in districts too remote for others to penetrate. They have been so situated that they have been forced to declare their positions upon all questions of moment and their thoughts, feelings and consequently their actions cannot be mistaken. These names are held in the hearts of republicans and independent voters by the love born of unmeasured respect and esteem, based upon grand patriotic acts performed. That this ticket on election day will sweep the land gathering in the votes from highways and byways with the power of a cyclone is foreordained. The democrats will try to stop the current with Tilden but they will find the old man but a feather in the air.

BLAINE AND LOGAN.

The Republican National Convention and its Work.

The republican national convention the eighth in the history of the party, convened at noon June 3rd. The spectacle presented at the opening was a notable one in many ways. The working body of the convention, the greatest in point of numbers of any national political assemblage ever held, occupied only a small portion of the vast auditorium. The remaining body of the hall was filled by the audience at every point of vantage and made up a picture, as viewed from the press stand, of an almost unending sea of faces. The solid black apparel and uncovered heads of men was relieved by the rich colors and stylish toiles of the ladies who were present in great force. The hall is the largest and has been termed the most complete that was ever thrown open for the work of a vast deliberative body. Its seating capacity approximates 13,000.

The call for the convention was read by Hon. J. A. Martin, secretary of the national committee, and Chairman Sabin, in behalf of the republican committee called the convention to order in its name and announced that the hour having arrived for the meeting of the eighth republican national convention, the convention would now be opened by prayer by Rev. Frank Bristol, of Chicago. Mr. Sabin then made quite a lengthy address and closed by naming as temporary chairman Hon. Powell Clayton, of Arkansas. Mr. H. S. Lodge of Massachusetts, rose and named Jno. B. Lynch, (colored), of Mississippi, for the position. The vote stood Lynch 432, Clayton 387. Lynch was escorted to the chair by Clayton and was received with cheers by the vast assembly.

Committees on permanent organization, credentials, and resolutions were then appointed and an adjournment taken until to-morrow.

It was eleven o'clock when the convention was called to order on June 4th. Chairman Geo. B. Williams, of Indiana, from the committee on permanent organization, reported the names of J. B. Henderson, of Wisconsin, for permanent chairman, and C. M. Chubb, of Michigan, as secretary, which report was agreed to. The permanent chairman then proceeded to make his address of acceptance, and when that was finished an adjournment was taken until 7 o'clock p. m. The name of Blaine whenever mentioned was the signal of repeated and prolonged applause. At 7:30 the committee not being ready to report an adjournment was taken until the next morning.

At 10:54 a. m. on the 5th the convention re-assembled and the committees reported occupying the time until 9:30 p. m. when the nominations were declared in order and Mr. Brandegee of Connecticut proceeded to propose the name of General Hawley. When the applause subsided Judge West of Ohio presented James G. Blaine, saying that he could be elected with or without New York. Davis of Minnesota, Thos. C. Platt, of New York; Galusha Groves, of Penn., and others seconded Blaine's nomination and the enthusiasm of the assembled multitude was of the wildest character imaginable. The banners were torn from the walls and waved in the air and the cheers were deafening. It was fully an hour before order was sufficiently restored to allow business to proceed. Martin I. Townsend of New York presented Arthur's name, his speech being frequently interrupted by cheers. Lynch of Miss. Winston of N. C. and Pinchbeck of La., seconded the nomination of Arthur. Judge Foraker of Ohio, gave in the name of John Sherman, and in the course of his speech incidentally mentioned Blaine's name when a tumult of applause followed which it took fifteen minutes to check. Gov. Long of Massachusetts nominated Edmunds, which George William Curtis seconded. The associated press fails to state who presented the name of Logan but probably it was Senator Cullen. The nominations were completed at one o'clock a. m. of the 6th and the convention adjourned.

At 10:20 a. m. the convention re-assembled and the balloting begun at once, each state voting as follows:

On the second ballot the vote stood, Blaine, 349; Arthur, 276; Edmunds, 85; Logan, 61; J. Sherman, 28; Hawley, 13; Lincoln, 4; Gen. Sherman, 1. The third ballot was immediately taken resulting as follows: Blaine, 375; Arthur, 274; Edmunds, 63; Logan, 53; J. Sherman, 25; Hawley, 19; Lincoln, 8; Gen. Sherman, 2. During the fourth ballot Logan's name was withdrawn and the Illinois vote given to Blaine which gave him a majority of the votes. The final ballot gave Blaine 543 votes and his election was made unanimous.

John A. Logan was then nominated by acclamation. However good a cigar may be, some time or other it meets its match.
