NOVEL CO-OPERATION.

The Keystone Watch Club Company is a corporation doing business in Philadelphia, but having agencies in the principal cities of the country. Beside being engaged in the manufacture of watches, it has a novel method of disposing of them by what is called the co-operative club system, similar in its methods to co-operative banks and building associations. The scheme is to organize a club of 36 members for a gentleman's watch and one of 36 for a lady's watch. Each member of a club pays $1 per week until the total amount due is paid. When a receipt in full is given to the holder of the watch, the watch is paid for by one of the club members. Instead of holding the watches until each member is entitled to receive one, at the end of each week the members of the club vote the watch paid for to one of their number. For the protection of those who have paid their dollar, the watch is held by the member subject to his complying with the conditions under which he receives it. When all have paid in the receipts are given.

GOLD WATCH FOR $1.00 A WEEK.

The Best Way to get a first class Gold Watch is the co-operative club system. The Watch is an American Lever Stem Winder, containing every essential to accuracy and durability, and has in addition numerous other improvements found in no other watch. It is absolutely the only Best and Damp-proof Movement made in the world and is jeweled with genuine Rubies. The Patent Stem Wind and Set is the strongest and simplest made. This watch is fully equal for appearance, accuracy, durability and service to any $75 Watch. Price in the Co-operative Club $38.00—either all cash down or $1.00 per week.

The Keystone Watch Club Company has engaged me as their agent here to organize clubs under the above explained novel plan. Everybody is enabled to secure a valuable and beautiful watch for $1 a week. The first club is nearly complete. Anybody desiring a good watch should not miss this chance. He will be obliged to anyone calling on me for particulars. Come and examine the watch for yourself. Respectfully, O. W. PAFFLOW, Evening News Building, Franklin Street.

The Booming Brazos.

HOUSTON, March 7.—Passengers arriving from off the Austin branch of the Central report a tremendous rise in the Brazos. Near Hempstead the water is pouring through the bottoms four feet deep and came upon planters most unexpectedly. The damage is reported as being heavy, and it will be some time before the planters can resume operations. All trains between Hempstead and Austin have been abandoned until the water recedes, and the latest reports are that it is still rising and considerable loss of stock is reported. So far there is no report of any loss of life.

Outlaws Ousted.

St. Louis, Mo., March 6.—Advices from East Tennessee says a party of mounted desperadoes, headed by the notorious Clabe Watson, Lee Watson, Bill Turner and Judson Bell, attacked the camps of Hay & Rivernac, railway contractors at work near Cumberland Gap, Wednesday. The ruffians were drunk and armed with Winchester and Colt's revolvers. They first overran the commissary department, ate or destroyed all the provisions, and then went to a shanty occupied by negro laborers and beat several of them nearly to death. By this time Hays and Rivernac had gathered a number of their men together and opened fire on the desperadoes. A pitched battle took place in which Judson Bell and Lee Watson were mortally wounded and the rest of the gang driven away. Next day the railroaders with Officers Ingram and Conan raided Yellow Creek and captured the desperate outlaw, Andy Watson, who has terrorized Bell county for years. He was taken to Pineville jail. There are several indictments for murder against him. The railroad men have thoroughly armed themselves, and say if the Kentucky authorities will back them they will rid the Yellow Creek region of all the villainous outlaws that overrun it.

Drummer Versus Cowboy.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 7.—A drummer has killed a cowboy and the old settler swears the country is deteriorating. The story is quite romantic. About three months ago, Widow McCoal, the prettiest little woman in the territory, became agent for the stage company at Dry Cheyenne station, between Douglas and Buffalo. Her handsome features and winning ways soon captured a cowboy named Mead and the two were to have been married this month. Last week James Kidd, a traveler for an Omaha mercantile house, appeared upon the scene and fell desperately in love with the widow, who forsook her first love and returned that of the traveling man. Mead sulked, biding his time. Tuesday night there was a dance at Stage Station. Kidd's attentions to Mrs. McCoal were very marked, and Mead became terribly enraged. He insulted and struck the drummer in the face. The widow twined her new lover for cowardice, when he took cowardly and drawing a revolver, fired at Mead. In an instant a dozen pistols were belching fire. Several men fell wounded, but the war continued until Ed Cook, Mead's partner, was killed by a shot-through the head. There were cries of "lynch the drummer," but Kidd had gained courage, and backing toward the door with the widow as a shield, he defied the crowd. Mounting a horse he fled, leaving the baffled cowboys wild with rage. Kidd and Mrs. McCoal soon reached a station on the Wyoming Central and took a train east. On reaching Chaldon, Neb., they were married. Sheriff McMains is now in pursuit of Kidd and his bride.

White Caps' Order.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 8.—White Caps appear to be lurking around the city somewhere, and within the last week several reputable citizens have received warning and threatening epistles through the mails, written in red ink with skull and cross bones accompaniments. To-day Mr. D. Quaso, a well-known merchant tailor on Commerce street, received the following notice, dated the 7th inst.: "Mr. D. Quaso: We, the committee of White Caps, do hereby give you notice to mend your ways and attend more strictly to business and your family, and leave politics and drinking alone, or you shall have a call from us."

Not Offices to go Round.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The crowds are thinning out and the city is left to the office-seekers. There are more republican congressmen in the city today than at any time since the session began. They are all pulling for their favorite supporters. Everything is in confusion. The appointing powers are overwhelmed with the spillover, but the president bears the attack with good humor and gracious patience. He will make the factions settle their own differences. Nearly every republican congressman in Washington called at the White House to-day. The famous Web Flanagan, with his quizzical phrase, "What are we here for," called. He has his eye on Minister Hubbard's place in Japan, but it is dollars to cents that he won't reach it, nor any other man from Texas. Fred Grant will probably go to China as minister. A very clean sweep would not make room for the candidates now on hand. They would fill the places a number of times over. There are so many men of this stamp that there appears very little chance for the lesser lights to secure any of the higher honors. These of course, are not among the throng of candidates who are running about in their own interests.

New York politicians were busy at the mansion to-day. Vice-President Morton and Senator Hiscock called on the president bright and early and the conference was lengthy and earnest. At its close the two visitors left with pleased expressions on their features that could not be concealed. Their visit, in connection with a knowledge of the fact that Platt had been requested by the president to come down from New York to talk over the Federal patronage in that state, made it tolerably certain as to what was being done, and there is now but little reason for doubting that Mr. Platt can, if he so desires, be collector of the port of New York. Mr. Platt left New York this morning at 10 o'clock, and his arrival at the White House is looked for momentarily. Warner Miller strolled past the White House this morning, but satisfied himself with gazing at it and the crowd which was on its front. He did not enter.
