Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. Price 50 cents. Sold by C. Schaefer, A. Dreiss and L. Orvinsky.

NOSEDOLOGY.

How to Tell the Character of People by the Nasal Organ.
As a general principle, large, long noses are indicative of active, energetic characters, apt to be proud, pompous, impatient, desirous to be leaders and commanders, and often overbearing and tyrannical.

On the other hand, persons with small, low noses are weak characters, deficient in government even of themselves, and prone to follow their appetites, desires, loves, and hates, rather than their reason and judgment.

Large-nosed persons in a critical position, or under circumstances of excitement, will be more self-composed and competent to judge and act wisely than the small-nosed. Large noses are found chiefly among the inhabitants of mountainous regions or their descendants. Small ones originate in low, level lands.

When the nose is long in proportion to its general size, the individual is discreet, careful, timid, and thoughtful. Noses that are relatively short from the forehead to the point belong to rash, careless, self-willed people. Noses that reach far away from the face denote persons discontented with their present lot, aspiring and anxious. But if the point of the nose seems clinging to the upper lip, we infer a tendency to the miserly, and a love of earthly things.

When a nose is thin, as well as generally small, the constitution is poor, as well as the character weak; there is a tendency to consumption, and such may die early. On the other hand, if the nose is thick where it joins the face, there is a strong constitution, strong passions, too, and reason to hope for long life if proper care be taken.

Sharp-pointed noses accompany intense, keen, penetrative persons, with quick tempers. Those that are thick and nearly square at the point denote a taste for invention and progress. A prominent nose, nearly or quite straight, and which seems to have two points formed by a vertical depression down through the end, denotes a meditative and logical mind.

A man with a nose reaching toward the mouth will be cautious, and his bodily wants his first consideration. Noses that reach in a straight line forward at the base indicate quiet persons, and of regular habits, especially in middle life. Round noses belong to the musical, the speculative, and those possessed of entire immovability. The small, low, round nose, generally known as the pug, turning up a little at the point, belongs to a forward, conceited, and saucy individual.

The nose that shows a large amount of bone in proportion to its size denotes a stable character, slow of judgment, but firm and reliable; but the soft, fleshy, or gristly nose leads us to fear we have a self-deceptive, cunning, teacherous character. The former originates for the most part in temperate climates, the latter in the torrid zone. Examples of the gristly nose may be seen in the cat, and all the feline species.

The straight nose inclines to science, art, polite literature, and political economy, if educated accordingly. But that which shows a convex form from forehead to point inclines to commercial enterprise. A nose very broad at the base evidences a dull, obtuse intellect, with much physical courage, animal power, and destructive inclination.

When the lower portion of the nose forms an obtuse angle with the face, and the point is elevated about 45 degrees, we have a person inclined to snobbery and fashion. When the septum or partition between the nostrils is longer than the sides, we infer an original, fertile, suggestive mind.

A nose slanting out high, and thin in its upper part, it evinces moral courage, love of argument, a quick apprehension, capacity to make the best use of what they know at the time being. Wide spread nostrils are indicative of strong lungs, but the closing of them evinces pulmonary weakness. Wrinkles lying across the top of the nose are signs of thoroughness. A fiery red, warty, and enlarged nose betrays a diminution of energy through disease or strong drink.

Long, sharp, and well-forged noses possess acute scent, provided they are not subject to catarrh, for that running of mucus which arises from great susceptibility of cold in this organ, and which is detrimental to the special sense of smell.

As a general rule, square noses indicate a masculine, and round ones a feminine, character. Animals as well as human beings, with long noses are sneaky, watchful, and desirous to travel. Those with short ones are slow of movement, as the sloth. If the bridge of the nose is high, it evinces disposition to assail those who are considered to be doing wrong.—J. Simms, M. D.

The only dissolver of the poisonous uric acid which crisis in the blood of Rheumatism and Gout patients.
SALICYLICA is known as a common-sense remedy, because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects.

It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments and astringent solutions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.
SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all the celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.
REMEMBER
that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMATISM, GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most intense pains are subdued almost instantly.
