OVER 500 MOROS KILLED

AFTER FIVE DAYS SEVERE FIGHTING WITH GEN. WOOD'S MEN.

Major Scott of the Fourteenth Cavalry and Five American Privates Were Wounded—Moro Leader Entrapped Them After Being Taken Prisoner—Fought Among Swamps.

Manila, Nov. 24.—Three Hundred Moros are known to have been killed and many others were carried off dead or wounded as a result of five days' severe fighting in Jolo between the American troops under General Leonard Wood and the insurgents. Major H. L. Scott of the Fourteenth cavalry and five American privates were wounded.

General Wood landed near Slet lake, in Jolo, November 12. The Moros were soon located and fighting began at once and continued until November 17. Major Scott was taking Panglima Hassen, the Moro leader, who had been taken prisoner, to Jolo. While en route Hassen asked to be allowed to see his family. His appeal was granted, and he therefore led Major Scott into an ambush where the American detachment was fired on. Major Scott was shot in both hands. Hassen succeeded in escaping during this unexpected attack, but is supposed to have been killed the following day.

The fighting took place in a country covered with swamps and rocks. The Moros were driven across the country from Slet lake to the town which Hassen had made his headquarters and where it was reported the Moros were 2000 strong. The rebel position was attacked in the flank by the American troops, who occupied the town and inflicted a loss of 50 killed on the Moros. Hassen, with a small party, surrendered. The rest of the Moros went into the swamps, out of which they were driven on November 16, leaving 76 dead behind them.

No November 17 the American force renewed the attack on the retreating Moros, of whom 40 more were killed. The rebel forces have been literally destroyed by those operations. General Wood says the indications are that there will be no extension of the uprising, which was handled without difficulty.

On November 18 General Wood started on an expedition against a body of 2000 Moros who are in the mountains back of Tabibli. No news has yet been received as to the result of this movement. General Wood had under him two battalions of the Twenty-eighth infantry, regular, one of the Twenty-third, a platoon of Captain George Sattley's battery, two troops of the Fourteenth cavalry and a detachment of engineers. Major Scott assisted with a force composed of three companies of the Seventeenth infantry, a platoon of Captain D. J. Rumbaugh's battery and a troop of the Fourteenth cavalry.
