RICHLAND GROWING FAST
Richland and the country roundabout are both growing fast. In town there are several new concrete block business edifices on modern plans and creditable to much larger places. J. W. Randall is just now putting in an additional store room and the Wiesberger store occupies a new large frame building. Ben Knapp's bank is a much appreciated institution and already has nearly $50,000 deposits.
The people up there expect to build a town and they work together to accomplish it. They held a streetcleaning and improvement bee last Friday and raked the large rock up and hauled them off the streets, smoothed and leveled them and put them in proper condition for team travel and the numerous autos you see flitting around town.
In the country north of town tract after tract is being improved and new houses, shacks and farm buildings can be seen on all sides. The water service and supply from the canal is satisfactory, their soil is good and the farming will improve rapidly. We called on many of these ranchers and found them to be a class that will make things win. Reclaiming a desert has its delays and disadvantages, but in spite, Richland and its people will come to the front rapidly.
