"From the Manger to the Cross"

A Reverent Moving-Picture Life Story of

Jesus of Nazareth

Produced in authentic locations in Palestine and Egypt

PRESENTING to the public this wonderful representation of the life of Christ, we wish to point out a few interesting facts in connection with its production. The tremendous undertaking entered upon by the producers of this great film, containing about eighty thousand photographs, has required eight months of artistic industry, the employment of specialists in authoritative research forty actors, hundreds of supernumeraries, droves of sheep and a caravan of camels—a kaleidoscopic procession—no effort nor expenditure has been spared to achieve the realization of a high ideal.

Mr. Bland, the young English actor who took the part of the Savior, in recounting some of his experiences, writes in part:

"So far as was possible in the absence of any certain knowledge the location of the scenes was the same as that in which the incidents portrayed actually took place. The Kalem Company had a letter from the White House to the Governor of Jerusalem, asking that all assistance be given to them, and as showing the interest taken by the authorities in the Holy Land, the studio was visited by the Governor and his staff, the religious Judge of Jerusalem, the American Consul, all the principal residents of the city, and by priests and clergy of every creed, who were kind enough to compliment me on my presentment.

"It must not be thought that the pictures are all studio taken; the studio being used only for the reconstruction of buildings which had been torn down. The majority of the scenes were of course in the open street or country. As showing the fidelity with which we worked, I carried a cross—a timber fifteen feet long, ten inches wide and five inches thick, up the incline of the Via Dolorosa, having to halt five times on my staggering journey. At the end I was physically exhausted, all the skin being rubbed off my shoulder, while I had a bad sprain of the side.

"Soldiers and police kept the crowd back in those scenes, while, when I collapsed in the Via Dolorosa, the nuns from the Convent St. Veronica brought out to me cordials and begged me to rest in the cool chambers of their building. The heat of the sun was terrific and the work exhausting.

"The 'Raising of Lazarus' scene was taken in Bethany outside the tomb which tradition points out as the tomb of Lazarus while the 'Raising of the Son of the Widow of Nain' was taken outside of the Damascus gate. As I moved forward among the people to take my place in this scene the women in the crowd bent forward to kiss the hem of my garment. All through they appeared to regard me as a being apart, and it would be strange indeed if my experience had not taught me in a wonderful and solemn manner what the story of Christ means to the world.

"The most trying of all the scenes were the scourging, which was actually done, and the Passion. I was laid upon the Cross, which was then pulled over a cross bar fixed between two vertical poles by means of ropes. So, swinging, and without a hand to steady it, the cross was reared to a vertical position, to fall with a thud (which shook every bone in my body) into a socket prepared for it. Afterwards the two malefactors were fixed to the crosses formed by the horizontal bar and the posts, the bar was cut in two and they were turned so they faced me.

"I shall never forget the scene; practically all Jerusalem came out to the hill of Calvary, and the cries and screaming of the people still ring in my ears.

"It is an experience I would never undergo again, but one which I would be sorry to have missed."
