This city is the shipping point and supply station for the Blewett mining district. First class roads lead from here to Blewett. A twice-a-week stage carries both mail and passenger and the people of that thriving town enjoy all the comforts and luxuries of life. The town is only eighteen miles distant. Leavenworth is the nearest town and thus a saving of time and freight charges are enjoyed. Railways lead to all parts of the world and all trains stop here.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Henry transacted business in town the past week.

The Echo is your home paper and should be in the homes of all. It is good to take, read and pass around.

There is no excuse for men to be standing around on the streets talking politics or hard times. Those willing and able to work can find employment.

See that your name is on the Echo's subscription list. This is important and should be attended to at once, to insure you getting a paper each week.

Remember the Echo is ever ready to do first class job work of all kinds, see us for prices.

Do your part in advancing the interests of the town by patronizing the home merchants. Every dollar spent at home benefits the town.

No need to go out of town to purchase goods, you can do better at home and save transportation charges. See our advertising columns.

The public school of Leavenworth has been closed for the past three weeks on account of diphtheria. Three children from one family had attended school after having this dreaded malady in the stage when it is considered contagious. There is something wrong somewhere. The school law does not intend that the schools should be closed, but it does make provision for keeping children who have been exposed to any contagious or infectious disease out of school. Whose business is it to look after the interests of the public schools? Experience has shown that the spread of disease is very often traced to the schools where children are crowded in warm rooms.

The Echo acknowledges a call from Mr. Dwight Darling, of Everett, who spent a day in our town this week looking after the drug store which he will establish here shortly. Mr. Darling has been in the drug business in Everett for nine years, and by fair and liberal dealing has built up the largest drug business in that thriving town.

We will take your order for first-class job work and quote you prices on advertising or take your name for the subscription list of the Echo, the 1st and newest paper published between Spokane and Seattle. The only paper representing this city and tributary country.

The farmers and orchardists, of Peshastin, our thriving and prosperous suburban burg, are each year adding more cultivated land to their farms and setting out more fruit trees. Neat and handsome cottages dot the valley and hillsides and the sight is one of nature's beauties. While small fruit and produce of all kinds are grown in abundance, the orchardists realize that it is to their best interests and bank accounts to raise winter apples and many are making a specialty of that fruit, and in so doing are making no mistake. While little is heard of this prosperous community, yet it is coming to the front right along with the procession of prosperity. The big red apple grows bigger and more plentiful each succeeding year. Three sawmills supply material for building those pretty cottages that may be seen from the passing trains. Blessed with sturdy, substantial, brainy progressive citizens and pretty girls, the future of Peshastin is assured.

This town has never sent out enticing circulars to catch homeseekers, nor has the railroad company made any effort to advertise the place. Men have not been sent out to lure the people to come here. Those who are here have come of their own accord, obtained work and settled down, satisfied that they have steady work at good wages, a good climate and a home welcome from the people. "Church a good school and all comforts that go to the lot of working people. What is needed? The days of the shack and box houses have gone never to return, cottages have taken their place, stone and brick will soon replace the wooden block. This town's is future upward and it is built on a sound commercial foundation that will endure forever. No one investing money in real estate, either large or small investments, will lose. Prosperity for this town has only started, next summer more substantial progress will be made. The present pay roll will more than double next year. Although no mention has been made, yet it is known that thousands of dollars have been invested in residential lots and substantial cottages. Two brick yards are in operation turning out first class material, which has stood the test of a big fire and few are aware of the fact. A large city is being constructed here, but as yet it does not appear upon the surface. Haste is being made slowly, it takes time and capital to do good work. Substantial and lasting work is necessarily slow. What is now on paper will in a few months be brick, mortar, stone and a glad reality. A great many living outside the borders of the county are keeping a close watch on this place with an eye to future investments.
