Republican Nominee for Judge Of the Superior Court

Of the District Composed of Douglas, Okanogan, Ferry and Chelan Counties

JOHN D. DILL

JOHN D. DILL was born July 19, 1864, at Crawfordville, Washington county, Iowa, and later moved with his parents onto a prairie farm in Louisa county, Iowa, where he grew to manhood. He worked on the farm and attended the public schools until he was eighteen years of age, when he moved with his parents to the state of Kansas, and there took up the study of law, and was called to the bar in May, 1890. After practicing there one year he returned to his native state and opened a law office in Winfield, Henry county, Iowa, where he remained in the active practice of his profession until he removed to the state of Washington in May, 1898, stopping for a year and a half at Spokane, when he moved to Wenatchee, Washington, and settled permanently. Mr. Dill has been in the active practice of his profession for fourteen years and has been entrusted with many important cases, both civil and criminal. He was elected mayor of Winfield, Iowa, three successive terms, resigning that position when he removed to Washington. He was elected mayor of the city of Wenatchee in the fall of 1902, and resigned that position to accept the office of corporation counsel of the city of Wenatchee, which office he held until after he was nominated for judge. Since coming to Chelan county Mr. Dill has acquired a large and lucrative practice and it was with considerable sacrifice to himself that he gave up his practice to accept the nomination.

It will be readily observed that Mr. Dill is a self-made man, with all those words imply. From a poor farmer boy at the age of eighteen, with only a common school education, he has risen step by step in his chosen profession until to-day he stands as the representative of a great party as its candidate for superior judge, honored and respected by the bar and the people.

Mr. Dill came to Wenatchee from Spokane in the year 1900 and at once took rank as a vigorous and conscientious lawyer and progressive citizen, and his actions have been such as to command and gather about him a host of friends who now rejoice with him in the honor with which he has just been vested, and who will give him their earnest support at the polls in November.

A more impartial lawyer could not have been nominated for the position, he being strictly honest and conscientious. If he is elected, and he certainly will be, every attorney at the bar may rest assured that his rulings will be absolutely fair and impartial and his decisions in accordance with the law and the evidence in all cases coming before his court.

The Jewel of Consistency is Lacking.

We would like to have any reasonable man inform us what influence the Spokesman-Review can possibly exert among the intelligent voters of this state by charging that the railroads escape their just proportion of taxation in the face of the struggle the Spokesman-Review has recently made to secure a reduction of assessment on its own property, says the Loomis Proprietor. The Spokesman-Review was assessed for $42,000, and succeeded in having that assessment cut down by the board of equalization to $21,000. Now mark this stickler for honesty and equitable taxation—when some one else is to pay the taxes. The Spokesman-Review charges that the railroads are not assessed at one-fifth their actual value. The Spokesman-Review has been offered and refused $400,000 for this newspaper property. Hence the assessment is about one-twentieth the value of the property. Can any man be influenced by a newspaper that preaches taxation to the limit for others while openly and flagrantly dodging a fair taxation itself?

Republican vs Democratic Policy

Organization does much to maintain the wages of labor, but organization of wage-earners does not provide consumers. Consumption of coal is greatest when mills and factories are running full time. It is the policy of the Republican party to protect all industries by wise and beneficent laws, while it has been the policy of the Democratic party, as evidenced by the last Cleveland administration, to provide as much work as possible for the artisans of other countries by removing the protection the tariff affords American workmen.

THE WENATCHEE FAIR

Attracted Large Crowds in Which Leavenworth Was Well Represented

A great many more Leavenworth people attended the Chelan County Fair this year than in any past year. A great many went with the double purpose of seeing the fair and the Wenatchee valley and also noting the many improvements that our county seat is making and marking its growth.

So far as we have been able to learn all have returned well satisfied with their entertainment. The fruit and vegetable exhibit, while it was admittedly fine, was perhaps not as large as in former years, but this was satisfactorily accounted for when we were told that the fruit and vegetable growers had almost exhausted themselves in furnishing their very best and choicest specimens every week since the season opened for shipment to the St. Louis Exposition. The good this will do in attracting attention and emigration to this section of the state is confidently believed will justify the trouble and expense, and will be accepted by the visitors to the fair as a satisfactory reason why this feature was not quite up to the past.

The live stock and poultry exhibit was larger and better than in former years. Indeed, it will continue to be better and larger every year as the country fills up and develops.

The racing was much better than last year. There was more of it and there were also better horses.

There were not so many side show attractions and thimble-riggers as last year. This was not regretted by any one in particular.

The attendance on Wednesday, the opening day was not particularly large, and on Thursday it rained quite a bit, so that the attendance was not very large on this day, and the track was heavy and the racing consequently slow, but on Friday the sun came out bright and warm, the roads dried up, the dust was gone and the track was in perfect condition. A large crowd turned out, most of the stores closed up, and every body who could get away went to the fair. The racing was very good and gave general satisfaction.

Much credit is due to Messrs. D. A. Beal and Ira D. Edwards, the president and secretary respectively of the fair association. They were untiring in their efforts to make the fair a success.

The best of order was maintained at the fair grounds and down in the city.

Many of the large business houses of Wenatchee had large and creditable special exhibits on the fair ground.

The Wenatchee business men are putting on city airs sure enough. The show windows in the department store, Wenatchee Hardware Co's. store, Wells & Morris and the Ellis-Forde Co's. big store attracted considerable attention and elicited favorable comment. The fruit display in the window of the Ellis-Forde Co's. store was very fine. It was up in the size and quality of the fruit to that exhibited at the fair grounds.

The Wenatchee Electric Company had the most noticeable night attraction in the window of Arthur Gunn's real estate office. The bright, showy electrical fixtures, many-colored electric lights and the electric fan blowing a current of air against a knot of ribbons caught everybody's attention.

If you don't think those Wenatchee business houses know how to advertise effectively you make a mistake. Wenatchee business men have made it the best town between Seattle and Spokane. In five years it will have eight or ten thousand inhabitants. Mark the prediction. Put the same class of business men in the poorest town in the state and they will in a few years build up a town that will attract attention.

The Wenatchee band was by no means the least attraction at the fair. Their concerts at the grounds and down town always brought out a round of applause.

The reunion of old soldiers was a feature of Thursday's attractions at the fair grounds that was enjoyed by them and their friends. O. M. Congdon, of the firm of Crass & Congdon, delivered the address to the veterans, and while we did not hear it, we heard it highly praised by those who were present as one of the most eloquent that had been delivered on the grounds. We have not the space to give the names of all the grand army men who attended, but let it suffice when we say that all from Chelan and surrounding counties were present and spent many happy hours going over their war-experience with each other and talking of their youthful days.
