O. M. Congdon's stunt, between acts, at the show Monday night, was quite clever. The particular bit he made was in telling about the girl that was kissed coming through the tunnel, when she exclaimed, "Oh, that's bliss!"

Now that the snow has begun to fall building operations will cease until spring. All the indications point to a busy year for Leavenworth with the opening of next spring. A number of business blocks are projected and some good residences will be built.

Some villain without the fear of the law of God and man in his heart made a burglarious entrance into F. A. He secured an entrance through a window from an adjoining roof.

Including the members of the band and those who took part in the show there were some fifty Wenatchee people.

The Wenatchee band gave an extended street concert Tuesday afternoon which was listened to and favorably commented on by everybody. The boys play a high class of music and under the leadership of Prof. F. E. Prewitt have improved wonderfully. The Wenatchee band ranks with the best in the state.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Twentieth Century club was held at the home of Mrs. Wettstein. Owing to the inclemency of the weather there were only five members present. Therefore the business meeting was omitted and a pleasant social hour was spent. The next meeting will be Wednesday, Dec. 28, with Mrs. S. G. Merriam.

The Congregational church of Leavenworth will give an entertainment on or about the 30th of December. They will have an attractive program. Among those who will take part are: Miss Bonnie Shepard, a well known soprano singer from Spokane, and two elocutionists from out of town points, whose names are not known to the writer at this time. Full particulars will be given later.

Seth Morris was charged in Judge Bjork's court this week with violating the quarantine law in entering the house of Mrs. Parker to deliver some milk. He was tried last Wednesday, and as this was the first case he was allowed to go after paying the costs. We are told that violations of this kind will be closely watched in the future, and all violators will be severely punished.

Fred Staub, assistant engineer at the big mill, left this week for Seattle, where he will remain for a few weeks in an endeavor to recover from physical depression and mental worries brought on by the strenuous life he has led in the rarified atmosphere of Leavenworth. The grand opening of the Opera Bar not only put the finishing stroke to his physical corporosity but is said to have made a serious attack on his exchequer. His friends here entertain the hope that he will speedily recover his health and equilibrium and return.

Guy Noble, a Great Northern fireman met with an injury last Saturday evening that will likely keep him laid up

The ladies who promoted the leap year ball, which was pulled off in the Bloom hall last Monday night, have the satisfaction of knowing that it was a great success. The crowd was quite large and had the hall not been a large one it would have been crowded.

One of the ante rooms was set apart for the use of the ladies and the other for the gentlemen, and as the gentlemen with their fair escorts arrived they were promptly taken in charge at the door by the reception committee and taken to their respective cloak rooms. The floor committee was also very prompt to introduce strangers and provide every gentleman present who cared to dance with a partner. If any gentleman present did not dance it was not the fault of the floor committee. It was a very enjoyable affair and will be remembered by those present as a diversion that can only occur once in four years, a fact which the gentlemen think of with regret.

Messrs. Carr and Ross made a feint as if to evade one of the rules, just to see if the ladies had the nerve to enforce them, but the promptness with which they were called down convinced them that the rules were not made as a joke but that every infraction would cost 25c.

The Leap Year Ball

The fall of man from high estate has been chronicled from time to time, ever since that memorable occasion so beautifully pictured in words by the blind poet, in "Paradise Lost," which begins, "of man's first disobedience and the fruit of that forbidden tree whose mortal taste brought death into the world with all our woe," and ends "hand in hand, through Eden took their solitary way," so it is our painful duty, here and now, in the nineteenth century, in the fierce light of all past examples, to announce the fall of Uncle John Holden, and the loss of an unbroken reputation for promptness in meeting all his engagements that dates back to the time when the memory of man runeth not to the contrary, in the history of this burgh.

On Saturday afternoon previous to the grand opening he engaged to deliver some cream for J. W. Beasley and some oranges and sundry other articles for Charley Anderson, all of which were found in his wagon the following Monday morning.

It is enough to establish the connection between the grand opening and Uncle John's dereliction when we say both occurred on the same date.

Annual New Year's Ball

The I. O. F. and the Companion Court will give their annual New Year's ball Monday eve., January 2, 1905, in Bloom's beautiful new hall. The ladies intend to make this the swellest affair of the season, and we feel sure it will be, for whatever the ladies of the court set their hands to is always a success. A delicious supper will be served in the Overland Hotel.

BLEWETT ITEMS

There is about 6 inches of snow in this camp and the small boy is happy.

J. A. Griffin returned from Ellensburg last week and reports that the mines on the Swauk are pretty lively as there is quite a lot of development work being done on the quartz properties at that place.

John Burmeister is doing the assessment work on the Golden Phoenix for Pat Henry.

Saturday was pay day, and as it is nearing Christmas the boys all wear a smile.

The ladies of Blewett are preparing to have a Christmas tree and a supper Christmas eve. They have taken up a collection to pay expenses. They raised $19. It is pretty hard times in Blewett when the boys can't go down in their sock and dig up a dollar for Christmas.
