

FOR SEPTEMBER

Copyright 1910 by C. H. Rieth

Now softened suns a mellow luster shed,
The laden orchards glow with tempting red;
On hazel boughs the clusters hang embrowned,
And with the hunting horn the fields resound.
—Old September Poem.

Well, we should say so, and the mellow horn of Mr. Morgan will awake the morn, bidding us garner for the bins and cribs in which we labor for his royal nibs. The summer ended and the blower on, the respite over and the money gone, and Rockefeller as we drill along, bowing and hoping we are well and strong.

The seaside sojourner will quit the shore, and the summer girl will line up three or four conquests in puppy love she has around, and choose the one that is to go undrowned. The which selection from the litter born of summer madness she will then suborn with things sufficient to unlock its eyes, and hurry homeward with the gasping prize.

The busted tourist will return from France with hotel stickers stuck upon his pants, and tarred and postcarded by his friends, will reap the penalty of what he sends. They'll waltz him up and down upon a rail, and alternately turn him head and tail, or howsoever they may best enjoy the views in Venice or the site of Troy.

The festive calf will blithely sniff and snort, and deftly tip up where the hair is short, and in the quiet even afterglow the quail will pipe his dulcet piccolo. The bold insurgent will insurge the more, and fill the planet with his dreadful roar, and each one betting he will not be last, the autumn candidates will gallop past.

The new progressive and the democrat, the unisurging that are standing pat, and in the midst of them, unfaint of heart, our own Bryan on the water cart. A maze of issues, and a mass of men, and lo, a gallus busting now and then, and not especially alarmed by it, the trusts desisting till the swarm has lit.

The man from Elba trying to come back,
And the poor consumer in his eul-de-sac
Unknowing if the quaking earth portends
Death or the near approach, perhaps, of friends.

But howsoever and be it as it may, the dread mosquito will have had its day, and joining Satan in its spectral growth, have made it real hell there for them both. The while the earthly remnant of it swings upon the window screen, and drying clings to that post which, though wanting mortal fire, it still holds with its face against the wire.

The sad first day of school will come to pass,
And the barefoot boy will hide out in the grass,
And by the time we've caught these malecontents,
The Grippen chase will look like thirty cents.

Milady Fashion in her hobble skirt will stride the pavement with the men alert to set her right side up again in case she should in time turn turtle any place. It does beat thunder what the women wear, and how they stick on other people's hair, constrict their middles and constrain their toes and what importance they attach to clothes. But bless us, are they after all to blame, or had they been in these things quite the same if Mother Eve's thought, as we suppose, had not been necessarily of clothes? Was it to be expected in her case that with a man somewhere upon the place she ever thought of anything at all but gowns, slippers, or perhaps a shawl?

But anyhow, the crawfish will have holed,
And the pumpkin shown the faintest trace of gold,
The sassafra will don a redder dress,
And the gods will crowd around the cider press.

Or prohibition or whatever will, here is a fountain that shall serve us still, a place of resting and a steal away out of the desert and the heat of day. A place of quiet and the shade of palms, of irrigation and the soothing balms that no reformer till the poles embrace shall ever capture for a bathing place.

The hosts of labor will parade the street, which will remind us of a happy feat in arbitration from the olden days when Julius Caesar was a sort of craze. It is related of that ancient time that sweet September in the Roman clime was hot as blazes, and the union file could only march about a half a mile.

It wasn't anything at all, they say, to watch the mighty pageant get away, the music playing and the flags displayed, and see it suddenly duck for the shade. The gasping drummer with his sounding drum, the bronzed mechanics who perhaps had come a dozen squares, and in the frantic rout, age and apprentice with its tongue stuck out.

The faint impression the procession made on Roman capital for long dismayed the union leaders, when the serried ranks at times not even passed the Roman banks. And so it was when might Caesar came, and having found the populace aflame, he shoved September from the seventh place along to ninth, which has remained the case. He merely interchanged it with July, but when he asked them how was that for high, they fairly inundated him with smiles, and have since been doing about twenty miles.

The autumn equinox will come around,
And Roosevelt, by that time eastward bound,
Will add it to the making of such storms
As they may find necessary to a few reforms.

And then the sun will turn still softer yet,
And the bold October, having duly set
His planes, and carefully put on his brake,
Will see what sort of landing he can make.

Aeroplane Flights at Spokane Fare

The Spokane Interstate fair will make another big bid for by far the largest attendance in its history by offering its patrons spectacular daily aeroplane flights, the week of October 3 to 9 next, by J. C. Mars, one of the world's greatest aviators. The fair management has just closed a contract with the Glenn H. Curtiss Aeroplane company, of Hammondsport, N. Y., for the most sensational flying machine exhibition yet seen in the northwest. Mars may be depended on to give spectators everything in the line of thrills that goes with aviation meets.

Beginning life as a newsboy in Chicago's streets, he became a professional balloonist and high diver. For the past ten years he has been in the government balloon service as an aid to Captain Baldwin. He already has annexed several world's records. Mars will be seen at the Minnesota state fair in September, in company with Glenn H. Curtiss and Wilbur Wright, who have been persuaded to meet each other for the championship of the air for the first time on that occasion. After the Minnesota fair, Mars will come on to Spokane and become conditioned to the fair aviation field. He will be seen at the Interstate fair in an aeroplane built expressly for his use, and to be used for the first time at the Minnesota fair.

Carpenters Build Interstate Fair Stage

Carpenters began work this week on the huge stage on which will appear daily at the Spokane Interstate fair, Oct. 3 to 9, eight to ten of the world's highest class vaudeville acts. Sixty feet long by forty feet wide, the stage easily will be the largest theatrical stage in the northwest, just twice as large as the fair vaudeville stages in other years. Among the costly acts already engaged for this year are Hilda Caroli and her famous troupe of Italian dancing girls, putting on the grand Italian Tarentella ballet and the patriotic National ballet; the Steiner troupe of famous foreign acrobats, and a whole herd of trained goats.

The business portion of Hartline, two blocks, burned last Thursday night. The fire started from the explosion of a lamp in the Maccabee's hall. As near as can be estimated, the loss is about $50,000, and it is not believed that more than 15 per cent of the property owners carried insurance.

ASK CANDIDATES FOR LEGISLATURE
How They Stand on These Important Questions? You, as a Voter, Have a Right to Know

The following circular letter from the Direct Legislation league of the state of Washington was received this week, and as this paper heartily indorses the sentiment, the circular is printed in full:
Citizens of Washington:—
Defeat any candidate who was in last legislature who repudiated republican platform and took away from the direct primary law nomination of supreme court judges and placed same in conventions, then had convention packed by delegates mostly selected by a political oligarchy.

How humiliating it must be to any honorable judge of the supreme court to owe his nomination to a political combine. They have robbed you of your right to nominate supreme court judges. Will you submit to such an outrage?

Demand of all legislative candidates that nomination of the supreme court judges be restored to the people, and that they pledge themselves to vote for submission to a vote of the people a constitutional amendment for direct legislation, initiative, referendum and recall. If legislative candidates will not sign pledge, it is because they will go to the legislature for special interests. We must have direct legislation to keep direct primary law and protect our political rights.

The enemies of direct primaries or rule by the people are organizing to repeal the whole of the direct primary law, and restore the boodle campaign in legislature for United States senators.

Vote and work against any candidate for legislature who has not signed pledge to submit direct legislation and recall amendments to vote of the people.

Washington State Federation of Labor, by Chas. R. Case.
Direct Primary League of Washington, by Christopher W. Horr.
Washington State Grange, by C. B. Kegley.
