If You Were Discharged---What?

It is a well-known maxim that the average successful man must keep all his eggs in one basket; might be added that, in the great majority of cases, it should be the same basket from the beginning to the end of one's business life.

Equitable Life President Reports Conditions all Over Land Good

William A. Day, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, who has just returned from a trip which covered all parts of the United States except New England, spoke in glowing terms of the fundamental prosperity of the country and the progressive spirit that he found in all sections.

Judge Day, as head of the Equitable is responsible for the investment of $400,000,000 and the purpose of his trip was to study business and investment conditions. He traveled 3,000 miles during the several weeks he was away and visited 36 cities.

"I met merchants, bankers, railroad men, agriculturists and the representatives of various important branches of business," he said, "and I can sum up the result of my observations and study as to the business outlook in two words, 'most excellent.'"

"Many distinctly hopeful elements sustain this view. The prospect for good crops of all kinds was never better, the gross railroad earnings show steady gain, steady activity is evidenced in nearly all lines, particularly in the leading trade centers; our foreign as well as our local commerce; our mineral production shows satisfactory development; we have a substantial gain in building activity; money is available and the wealth producers of our country are hard at work; capital shows unmistakable signs of increasing confidence.

"However the public may be concerned in the discussion of political and social problems, they are still more absorbed in commerce. Agitation upon such subjects may cause temporary slackness in certain lines of trade or in many lines of trade for short periods of time, but the sun comes up every day just the same, the rain falls and the crops grow. This fundamental basis of our prosperity never gave greater promise than it does now.

"Our people have outgrown the habit of permitting political or speculative excitement seriously to unsettle business. While I encountered a great variety of opinions as to remedies for present-day problems, I was very strongly impressed by the firm confidence and sober, optimistic business spirit of our people everywhere.

During the summer months mothers of young children should watch for any unusual looseness of the bowels. When given prompt attention at this time serious trouble may be avoided.

Avoid That Baking Rush

By using the modern, egg-phosphate leavener Crescent Baking Powder which does not effervesce, bubble over and drop like the cream of tartar kind—but works slowly and evenly through the dough, holding it up in suspension until the food is baked.

The Village Blacksmith (A new version)

Under a costly canopy The village blacksmith sits. Before him is a touring car Broken to little bits, And the owner, and the chauffeur, too, Have almost lost their wits.

The village blacksmith smiles with glee As he lights his fat cigar. He tells his helpers what to do To straighten up the car. And the owner, and the chauffeur, too, Stand humbly where they are.

The village blacksmith puffs his weed And smiles a smile of cheer, The while his helpers pump the tires And monkey at the gear. And the owner, and the chauffeur, too, Stand reverently near.

Behind the village blacksmith is The portal of his shop. The shop is very large in size, With a tiled roof on top. And the owner, and the chauffeur, too, At it were glad to stop.

The children, going home from school, Look in at the open door; They like to see him make his bills And hear the owners roar, And the chauffeurs weep as they declare, They ne'er paid that before.

He goes each morning to the bank And salts away his cash; A high silk hat and long frock coat Helps him to cut a dash; But, the owner, and the chauffeur, too, Their teeth all vainly gnash.

The chestnut tree long since has died, The smith does not repine; His humble shop has grown into A building big and fine, And it bears "Garage" above the door On a large electric sign. —Dublin Telegram.
