Do Not Neglect Decayed Teeth— Especially Back Teeth

That may sound like strange advice, when the back teeth are out of sight and no one but you will know if they decay.

But the back teeth are the food chewing teeth. They are more important to your health than the front teeth, which are merely cutters of food. Decayed back teeth can be made very valuable for food grinding. If the teeth are too far gone for filling, I can make crowns or bridges which will do as good service as the natural teeth.
