G. N. WRECK IN YARD MONDAY---MAN KILLED

Passenger Engine Takes Siding—Tender and Coaches Remain on Main Line—Engine Derailed.

A wreck, the cause of which has not been determined, occurred at the east end of the yard, within the town limits, Monday afternoon about 5:15, in which one man who was riding on the platform next to the engine had his neck broken and died in fifteen minutes after being taken out of the wreck.

No. 43, west bound, due here at 4:35, running 30 minutes late, went into the ditch, as railroad men say. An examination showed that the wheels of the engine took the siding rail while the tender and the balance of the train remained on main line rail, the engine pulled one way and the balance of the train pulled in an opposite direction, resulting in derailing the engine, tender and first baggage car and the front wheels of the second baggage car. The engine plowed into the earth and was left standing about half upright, but slightly injured. The tender turned on its side crosswise of the track and the first baggage car turned over on its side. By 8 o'clock the track had been sufficiently cleared to allow trains to pass by taking a siding around the wreck, and No. 43 was sent west shortly after. The wreckage was all cleared up by Tuesday evening and railroading proceeded under normal conditions.

Three tramps were riding on the platform next to the engine, two of these made their escape without injury, but the third, C. W. Patterson, died in fifteen minutes from his injuries. Other than this there were no casualties and only the slightest kind of injuries.

An examination of the switch showed everything in correct position. To Engineer Ed. Jones the switch standard showed the right side. Just what caused the engine to take the wrong rail may be determined later but up to this time no explanation has been suggested.

The body of Patterson was turned over to Magistrate Graham who found on his person $1.78 in coin, a knife, razor and tooth brush and memorandum book in which was written: "C. W. Patterson, 505 Cottage St., Portland, Maine. In case of accident notify Mrs. H. A. Ash, same street No. and city." Memorandums also showed that Patterson had been in San Francisco, Portland, Oregon, and other western towns. Patterson appeared to be about 26 years old and was fairly well dressed, showing no signs of rough work or dissipation. His relatives were notified.

Wreck Victim Buried at Cashmere

C. W. Patterson, the man who lost his life in the railroad wreck last Monday was buried at Cashmere Wednesday. Rev. Moore conducted funeral services in the Methodist church at 3:30. Mrs. H. A. Ash, of Portland, Maine, sister of the deceased, wired to bury the body here. Mrs. J. M. Turner, of Soap Lake, who knew the family in Maine, came here to attend the funeral. The Leavenworth Undertaking Co. had charge of the funeral.

Industrial Insurance Adjuster Here.

Mr. O. H. Alderson, representing the State Industrial Insurance Commission, was here Monday and part of Tuesday auditing payrolls and adjusting claims. Mr. Alderson is covering eastern Washington in an auto trip and says he found all the roads in Chelan county in excellent condition and thought they deserved mention. He made a trip to Wenatchee lake and found the road very good, he said.

Elizabeth Louise Tegtmeyer celebrated her first birthday last Wednesday with a party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Tegtmeyer. She could not do justice to the cake but she enjoyed looking at the one candle with which it was decorated.

Will Not Be Here Today

Senator Poindexter was compelled to cancel his speaking date at Leavenworth. His campaign manager had arranged for a big day at Seattle, Aug. 11, where he is to be met at the depot tonight by a band and escorted to Dreamland rink and make a speech to the voters of Seattle. Four years ago he spoke at the same place to three thousand people. Arrangements have been made for him to make thirty speeches in thirty days. If he finds it possible to come to Leavenworth before the primary election announcement will be made of the date.

BY-PRODUCTS PLANT FOR LOWER GRADES

Plan for Establishment of Plant to Be Put Before the Fruit Growers of the Wenatchee Valley

Gordon C. Corbaly, secretary of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce drove up from Wenatchee yesterday in company with Barney Segru and took No. 1 here for Seattle. Mr. Corbaly is the most persistent and effective booster in the Falls city. In conference here with Mr. Adams the two first named gentlemen discussed a scheme to establish a fruit by-products plant in the Wenatchee valley, to take care of and turn to profit the lower and less desirable grades of apples and other fruits of the Wenatchee valley. There is a large amount of excellent fruit that for one reason or another will not grade first, and therefore can not stand the high freight charge across the continent and leave a profit to the grower, that should, and it is believed can be, converted into some useful by-product, by evaporation or conversion into vinegar and jellies.

For some time Mr. Corbaly has had this question under consideration with men who have made a study of the question and he believes he has arrived at a solution and was here to give Mr. Segru, one of the tireless boosters of the fruit industry in this valley the benefit of his investigation. Mr. Segru and Mr. Adams have themselves had under consideration the establishment of a plant in this valley and will shortly have something definite to lay before the men who are most deeply interested in the proposition.

Dryden

Chas. Burbank and family are now living in their new bungalow.

Mr. Marion Kinney and Miss Lucy Orcutt were married in Wenatchee Monday, July 31. They were given a good charivari the same evening at the home of the groom's father.

Mr. Mohrway's mother came from her home in Everett to visit him and his family. She was accompanied by Edna Mohrway, who has been visiting with her grandmother for the past few weeks. Mable Erickson and Olive Amos spent last week camping at Ingles Creek with the Cashmere Baptist girls. She reports a fine time, especially on their trip to the summit, a distance of 12 miles. They rode most of the way up but were compelled to walk back. They rode up with two young men from Boston, Clyde Baker and Ray Peppard, who were on their way to Vancouver in a large camping car. They came across the country by the southern route and up thru California, then across British Columbia, and down the Oroville route. They will return to Boston later.

POINDEXTER'S TARIFF VOTE IN LINE WITH PLATFORM

The Payne-Aldrich Bill Was Responsible For Party Split in 1912.

Mr. Stephen B. Packard, 421 Malden Ave., Seattle. Dear Mr. Packard: I have yours of 15th instant, just received today, and appreciate very much indeed your friendly frankness in writing me your views.

I agree with you in everything you say, including the tariff, except that, when you say you are "an extreme tariff kind of a republican," if you mean that there ought not to be any limit to the height to which tariffs should be raised and that there cannot be too high a rate, I do not agree with you and I do not think the republican party takes that attitude. Certainly it never has in any of its platforms, because in 1908, the year I was elected to congress, as well as in various other years, it fixed a more or less specific measure of rates. In 1908, the measure was "the difference in the cost of production in this country and in foreign countries."

In some platforms, it has been stated in somewhat different form to be the difference in wages paid in this country and in foreign countries. The great republican campaign of 1908 was fought very largely on the proposal of the party in its national platform to revise the tariff and to make it conform to the rule indicated. The leaders repudiated the party promises and pledges when it came to the making of the Payne-Aldrich bill, and I voted against the latter bill not because I do not believe in protection, which I do believe in firmly, but because the bill was extortionate and furthermore, was a repudiation of the republican party principles and pledges. My vote against that bill was perhaps the principal issue in the campaign of 1910, which you speak of, for my reelection to congress. I certainly appreciate the fact that I received your vote at that time.

In so far as the tariff bill is an issue in the pending primary campaign at which I will be a candidate for reelection, very largely the same identical issues will be involved.

At various times after my election to the senate upon efforts made there to pass a new tariff bill to take the place of the Payne-Aldrich bill, I voted against the democratic proposals and for progressive republican substitutes. When finally, through the recklessness and repudiation of pledges of the organization then in charge of the republican party, they brought about the inevitable result of putting the democrats in power, and the democrats proceeded to frame a tariff bill, I voted not once, but dozens of times, against its various features where they failed to conform to the republican doctrine of a reasonable and well considered measure of protection. In the Spokane Chronicle of July 4th, which you will find in your library, and of which I would send you a copy if I had it, you will find an article giving a partial review of my votes on the various features of this bill. I voted against placing cattle on the free list; against placing horses and mules on the free list; against placing sheep on the free list; against placing wool on the free list; for a duty on lead ores; for a tariff on butter; introduced an amendment raising the tariff on hay, proposed by the democratic bill, from two dollars to three dollars; voted for a duty on potatoes; for a duty of forty cents a thousand on shingles; for another amendment proposed by Senator Jones placing a duty of twenty-five cents a thousand on shingles; introduced myself an amendment placing a duty on shingles exported from any country which places an export duty upon logs and shingle bolts. This would have covered Canada and protected us from the only source from which we have any competition in shingles. I urged this strongly and urged it at some length, being supported in it by Senator Lodge. The

He Issued Bad Checks

W. S. Hembling, until six weeks ago manager of the Wenatchee Inn at Lake Wenatchee, was arrested Saturday in Seattle by Sheriff Kenyon on the charge of issuing a bad check. He was brought to Wenatchee last week, and is in the county jail awaiting trial.

Hembling, the day before he quit the Inn he paid the Chelan County Game Commission for licenses which he had issued, amounting to $10. The check was returned by the bank marked "no funds." He admits the issuance of the check but asserts that there was no intention of fraud.

The accused is a former inmate of the Monroe reformatory and was released three years ago.—Wenatchee World.

TWO HUNDRED MEN STRIKE AT W. J. HOY & CO. CAMPS

Last Week the Carpenters Employed on G. N. Snow Shed Work Up the Canyon Quit Work.

About two hundred men, carpenters and muckers, some say more and others less, went on a strike last Friday. First the bridge carpenters struck for $4 per day. They were getting $3.50. By Saturday the muckers, better known to the non-initiated as shovel men, joined the strike. Shovel men were paid 25 cents per hour. They struck for 30. All want time and a half for time put in over ten hours, which is called a day on snow shed work. Friday and Saturday a hundred or more of the men employed by Hoy & Co., the contracting firm, left for the Coast. Since the strike the work has progressed rather slowly. Only about one hundred men being left on the work. Orders for more men have been sent out to employment agencies and the contractors hope to have a full compliment by the last of this week.

Because there was some complaint from the men about the board, which costs $6.00 per week, a representative of this paper went up the line the first of this week for the double purpose of noting the progress of the work and also for the purpose of investigating the report about the food furnished to the men. On this score there is no cause for a kick. The food supplied to the men is excellent. It is well cooked and supplied in abundance. At least our reporter found it so, and he went to the camps unannounced and sat right by the side of the men employed on the work. Also there is no cause for complaint on account of variety. There was good bread, butter, two kinds of meat, four of vegetables, coffee, cold tea and milk, with one desert course. On this occasion it was pumpkin pie.

There are four camps this side of Chiwaukum, ten miles from Leavenworth. Some four thousand feet of sheds are well along toward completion. The work is well under way and the contractors hope to have the work completed by the first of November. Just how much the strike will interfere with the work cannot be told at this time. Of course the strikers have passed the word along the line and may embarrass the contracting firm in getting more men to take the place of the strikers.

While investigating the strike situation we learned that the railroad company is building a siding about three thousand feet long about five miles up the canyon from Leavenworth, where a telephone station will be installed, to be called Tumwater.

Interest in Mining Increasing

Several men from Chicago and other eastern points interested in the discoveries made in the Red Mountain region arrived here this week and took to the hills. The Amalgamated Mining Co., whatever that may mean, loaded up a big auto truck with supplies of all kinds here last Saturday and left for Blewett, that venerable mining camp that has kept alive the faith of more than one miner.

LID ON WET GOODS IS CLAMPED TIGHTER

Ordinance Introduced Making Buyer as Well as Seller of Liquor Liable to a Fine

At the regular meeting of the city council held Tuesday evening four members answered the roll call and Mayor Day occupied the chair. City Attorney Nelson was also on hand. The legal fraternity was well represented—Col. Fox, of this city, and W. F. Whitney, of Wenatchee, were present and took part in the proceedings.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and bills to the amount of $514.85 were allowed. This included the $250 reward paid in the bootlegging cases.

The claim of Joe Teshera was paid without question, but when that of S. Kul, the Austrian, was presented there was a hitch. Col. Fox presented a counter claim for Nick Mike, the Greek. After some discussion it was finally decided to divide the money equally between the two.

Here Mr. Pratt, who helped make the Violette raid, rose and on the ground that he "held the dog back while Teshera stole the pups," protested that he was entitled to some of the reward paid to Teshera. His plea fell on deaf ears apparently as the matter was dropped without discussion.

Mr. Barnum's bill for $40 for services rendered on District No. 4, was ordered paid.

An ordinance fixing the salary of police officers was given its first reading. A motion carried instructing the city attorney to prepare an ordinance making the illegal buying of liquor an offense punishable by a fine.

W. F. Whitney, the attorney in the case of the city against Scaman & Quigg, was consulted with regard to certain warrants issued to the State Bank. He suggested that they be taken up, as they had no bearing on the case. Action was then taken to carry out the suggestion. He stated that the city's suit will probably come up for trial in October.

On recommendation of the mayor a ten day's vacation was given to the clerk and water commissioner.

The clerk was instructed to ask the G. N. Ry for permission to tap their new water mains, in Tumwater canyon, in cases of emergency. He was also instructed to get information in regard to pumps. Council is considering the advisability of putting in a pumping plant as an auxiliary to the regular system. This would minimize considerably the danger of water shortage.

The clerk was ordered to buy 5 blankets for the jail, also 6 garbage cans. Two or three of these will be placed along the park fence and Marshal Teshera says he will see that the litter which is now scattered on the street is put into the cans.

Auto Owners Take Notice

Hereafter Ordinance No. 161 as regards traffic on the streets of Leavenworth, will be strictly enforced. Section 21 provides that no muffler shall be cut out or disconnected inside the city limits. If you are not already acquainted with the above ordinance a copy of same can be had for the asking from either the City Clerk or the Chief of Police, Joe Teshera, 32-5 Chief of Police.
