CAN MR. DILL SQUARE HIMSELF?

Mr. C. C. Dill, congressman by misrepresentation, from the Fifth Washington district, made a speech from the band stand Wednesday evening to a small audience. In trying to square himself by an appeal to prejudice he stated that he was being misrepresented before the people of his district in the Spokesman-Review, which printed false and misleading statements about him. He said he had opposed the government going into the war, but since it had gone in he had consistently supported the administration of President Wilson. Mr. Dill made a notoriously untruthful and misleading statement to the people of Leavenworth when he stated he had consistently supported the administration of President Wilson. Twice he voted against measures before congress that had the endorsement of the President, after war was declared.

In referring to his change of front on the war he mentioned the fact that Washington and Lincoln had changed their minds, to show that GREAT MEN, before him, had lost nothing in the estimation of the people. To their credit be it said, both these truly great men did change their minds, but not on questions that involved the safety and integrity of the United States.

Discriminating people think it bad taste, not to say irreverent, to mention Mr. Dill in any conceivable connection with Washington and Lincoln.

TAKING A FALL OUT OF MR. FORD

Last Sunday's P.-I. made the following reference to Mr. Ford's candidacy for the United States senate:

"Sidney Smith once said something like this:

"It is better to be the Napoleon of Bootblacks or the Alexander of Chimneysweeps than a briefless and shallow-pated attorney, who, like necessity, knows no law—watching for victims in an unswep chamber where cobwebs in dusty magnificence hang, and there to eke out a miserable existence when he might have been happy behind the plow or opulent behind the counter."

In other words don't get into the wrong box.

Applied and paraphrased to fit the case of a very useful and eminent citizen of the commonwealth of Michigan who would move into a new sphere and shine in the hall of fame it might read thus:

It is better—indefinitely better—to be the Alexander Hamilton of the automobile world or the Thomas Jefferson of a munitions factory than an unequipped figurehead in the United States senate, who, like too many of his confreres, is a stranger to statescraft—wearing an ill-fitting toga in a historic chamber where statesmanship truly abounds, and there to be numbered among the mediocrities and eke out an inglorious career when he might have continued to be of pre-eminent industrial usefulness to country in a field where he belonged.

Adage: Let the shoemaker stick to his last!

PRIDE ALWAYS COMETH BEFORE A FALL.

So runs the old adage. The men who are taking advantage of war circumstances, and the unsettled condition of things, to make an inordinate profit are due for a set-back. The time is coming when the people will call to book the man who fattened off the public while the war was going on. After it is all over there will be a reckoning. Just now a lot of things are being overlooked. This does not apply solely to that class who are grafting on the government, but to the small grafters as well. The men who are making inordinate profits on goods, wares and merchandise. Profiteering is made unlawful and all those who engage in it are liable to prosecution.

The statute of limitation does not run against this class of offenses. Prosecution may be set in motion years afterward. Worst of all is the effect of public sentiment which will make it exceedingly unpleasant for the class that made the war a pretext for fattening off the public. Make no mistake about this. The profiteer will suffer in his reputation—will be marked—lashed from pillar to post by righteous indignation.

A SPLENDID TRIBUTE TO FRANCE.

Recently, in an address before the Pennsylvania Society, in New York, when a dinner was given in honor of the French ambassador, M. Jusserand, Col. Roosevelt paid the following merited tribute to the French nation:

"France embodies all the loveliness and all the valor. Beauty is her handmaiden and strength her shield-bearer, and the shining courage of her daughters has matched the courage of her dauntless sons. For three and a half terrible years she has walked, high of heart, through the valley of the shadow. Her body is in torture, but her forehead is alight with the beauty of the morning. Never in all history has there been such steadfast loyalty in the doing of dangerous duty, such devotion to country, such splendor of service and of sacrifice. And great shall be her reward, for she has saved the soul of the world."

The rugged Colonel usually expresses himself in plain, forceful English, sometimes a bit pugnacious English. In his tribute to the French people he indulged in poetic fervor.

E. M. GILLETTE FOR THE LEGISLATURE

Mr. E. M. Gillette, who this week announces his candidacy on the republican ticket for member of the Washington legislature in the lower house, is not unknown to the people of Leavenworth, having often had occasion to come here during his four years incumbency of the office of county commissioner. Mr. Gillette is a fruit grower near Malaga. But he is more than that; he is a successful business man. When a younger man he held a responsible position on the Northern Pacific railroad for many years and resigned to engage in the more, to him, independent and pleasing occupation of fruit growing, which he has followed and followed successfully, for twelve years. From his long residence in Chelan county, his wide acquaintance over the state and knowledge of the wants of the farming and fruit-growing part of the population, he would be a useful and capable representative in the legislature.

DAIRYMEN MUST HAVE SILOS

To make dairying profitable the owner of cows must build a silo. The great saving that can be made by feeding ensilage is beyond question. Vast quantities of feed that would otherwise go to waste can be saved. The ensilage is to the cow in winter what canned vegetables is to the human being. It is required to keep the cow in good, healthy condition. A cow in healthy condition with a good appetite gives more milk than the cow that is constantly fed on dry food.

If you have a few cows by all means make arrangements to put up ensilage. If you do not care to, or cannot afford, to go to the expense of building a concrete or stave silo dig a pit in the hill side. Many silos are built this way. Apply to the agricultural bureau for information. Pit silos are comparatively inexpensive. Almost anything in the shape of green stuff can be converted into ensilage.

The two Okanogan men who were here last week and sold two carloads of cows told this paper that in their country every rancher who had cows either had a silo or was making arrangements to have one. Their great benefit was made so apparent that the doubting ones have been converted.

Mr. N. A. Pearson, who this week indicates his desire to be elected prosecuting attorney of Chelan county, made his home in Leavenworth for three years, up to two years ago, since which time he has resided in Wenatchee and acted as assistant prosecuting attorney under Mr. Burt Williams. His duties as prosecutor has in the meantime brought him into frequent contact with the public, and through his visits here he has kept in touch with the people of Leavenworth. Of his qualifications for the place there is, of course, no doubt. As a good citizen and an upright man the Echo has no hesitation in commending him to the voters.

If Sheriff McManus thinks it will promote his re-election to the office of sheriff by winking at liquor law violations in Leavenworth he is making the very mistake which will bring about his defeat if he again offers himself for re-election. He made the remark, "If there is any law violations in Chelan county, I always know where to look for the criminal; he is in Leavenworth." Perhaps if he would help to enforce the law in Leavenworth some law violators from Wenatchee would not congregate in Leavenworth. They evidently know the law against the illegal sale of liquor is not enforced in Leavenworth. Do they get their tip at the county seat?

This paper advocates the enforcement of the law against the sale of liquor because it is the law of the land. The man who advocates, and if he is an officer, winks at its violation, or, knowing it is violated, refuses to enforce the law against the sale of liquor, has no right to invoke the law if some one steals his purse. He has no more right to expect the law against theft to be enforced than the law against selling liquor. He would be illogical and make himself ridiculous.

Last Tuesday afternoon three youths went down the street, arm in arm, to keep from falling, evidently. Somebody violated the law or those three boys would not have been drunk.

PESHASTIN

Friends of Charles Arbogast gave a surprise party in his honor Thursday evening at the Arbogast home. Mr. Arbogast left Friday for training at Camp Lewis. About thirty were present at the party. Games were played during the evening and light refreshments were served.

The Peshastin Red Cross gave a benefit musical Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lanphere. Miss Gladys Lanphere, of Chicago, assisted by her sisters, Miss Grace and Miss Winifred, gave a very delightful program.

Interesting letters were read from soldiers "here" and "over there."

Red Cross maids served lemonade to the guests. The musical was given out doors and the lawn looked very attractive with large American flags hanging from the trees and lanterns interspersed between the trees.

The proceeds of the musical were given to the Peshastin Red Cross.

The Canteen Department of the War Workers is truly living up to the motto "eat what you can, what you can't, can" or as the Englishman says, "what you can't, put in glass jars." Fruit as soon as it is brought in is canned and stored away to be given to the cantonments for consumption this winter.

The Canteen Department started their work July 5th, and up to date they have canned over 100 quarts of fruit, the fruit being cherries and currants.

The war workers room is a busy place, as Mrs. K. Johnson, who is chairman of the canning committee, directs the preparation and canning of all fruits. The canning committee aims to take care of the fruit as soon as it is brought in and their work will extend late into the fall. The next few weeks the committee expects to can raspberries, blackberries and apricots.

All the fruit has been donated. The automobile committee will go and get the fruit and the ladies will pick it when necessary. Fruit jars and canning utensils have also been donated but the supply on hand is not sufficient with which to can the fruit. Many hands make light work and there will always be a place in the War Workers room for a helping hand.

"Conservation will save the nation" is the slogan of the canners and the committee is very grateful for all fruit which can be given for cantonment canning. Obeying the food laws the canners are careful in their consumption of sugar, knowing that this year the nation must conserve and not preserve.

The Seattle Port Commission plans a two and a half million dollar improvement.

50 CHINESE PHEASANTS FOR CHELAN COUNTY.

County Game Warden Scheble has been advised by Mr. L. H. Darwin, state game warden, that fifty Chinese pheasants were shipped to Chelan county on the 25th of the month, and advised their prompt liberation, suggesting they be liberated in some game preserve. The birds are two months old and amply able to take care of themselves, says Mr. Darwin. A further shipment will probably be made later on. Birds of this character were liberated in Chelan county several years ago and appear to thrive and multiply. The writer has occasionally run across them in the forests near Leavenworth. The Chinese pheasant not only is a valuable game bird but the cock is a very handsome and showy bird. If they could be protected from hunters for a few years, until they become thoroughly acclimated, they would in a few years furnish excellent sport for hunters.
