C H-v-n and H-q-m.

Without naming of names, the Northwest Magazine touches in after this manner a little of the local color of two places, one on Shoalwater bay, the other on Grays harbor:

"One sees some odd things in a new country where speculation seeks to convert the wilderness into cities. At a certain point in Washington which I decline to name I saw a town equipped with almost everything except inhabitants.

There was a bank, a newspaper office, a hotel, a wharf, water works, and sidewalks; but the total population did not exceed fifteen or twenty. The newspaper comes out regularly every week, the bank would receive deposits if there were any depositors, and the hotel would run if it only had a landlord and guest.

There is no way to get to the place save by boats, for no road reaches it. Yet this droll place may be a city some day. stranger things than that have happened out west. At another place—a village of 1,500 inhabitants, I put up at a superb hotel with sixty guest chambers luxuriously furnished. There were electric lights and steam heaters throughout the house, and around the building extended broad piazzas where 200 people could sit with plenty of elbow room. Dinner was served at six from a bill of fare as varied as that of the big fashionable hotel in Portland, and the cooking was excellent.

Yet there were only ten people at the table, and the only names registered that day were those of my friend and myself.
The hotel was built with real estate profits and its financial deficit is made up from the same source."

Over the N. P.

A trip over the road to Centralia shows many wonderful changes. In itself, the substitution of the coaches of the train for the old stage coaches, is a marked advance. Railroads result in movement, and the places along the route all seem to be "getting a move on."

Gate City, or in railroad parlance, Harlowe Junction, is one of the new "cities." There are four or five houses there, including the depot, and plenty of room to build more on the green sward of a slightly location, which is carefully and neatly staked off into town lots, with painted stakes, and looks for all the world like a cemetery, where some day may be a city. Puck's pictures of some western towns might have been taken from a passing glance at Harlowe Junction.

Between Harlowe Junction and Centralia is Rochester. Rochester is one of those far eastern towns you read about in the Arabian Nights. It came west and grew up with the country in almost a single night. About six weeks ago there were two or three houses in Rochester; by actual count last week there were thirty-six. In the language of the newspaper, this week they must be too numerous to mention.

The N. P. is a great institution. You can come to Aberdeen from either Portland or Tacoma twice a day, that is, if you are in those places when the trains leave. The morning train will put you here in the evening, and vice versa as to the evening one.

An Influx of Immigrants.

Travel on the Northern Pacific road from the East is already beginning to assume large proportions. During the past month the overland train has brought in from ten to twelve cars every day.
The train which arrived here late on Saturday evening comprised twenty-one cars, and each coach was packed with passengers. This is the largest train which has come into the state from the East since last summer. The passengers were chiefly immigrants from states east of the Rocky mountains. They scattered through the state. The main portion of those who come to the Sound located in this city and the immediate vicinity.
When the train left for Portland the train had been reduced to twelve cars.—Tacoma Globe.

Got It Mixed.

Chicago Tribune: He was an old member of the lodge, but he had never risen to address the chair. Finally, however, he felt that his time had come.
"Worship master," he said, standing as firmly on his feet as his trembling knees would let him. "I move that we attend the body of our deceased brother in a funeral."

antee it to have no superior in the mar-

Many years' practice has given C. A.
Snow & Co., solicitors of patents, at Washington, D. C., unsurpassed success in obtaining patents for all classes of inventions. They make a specialty of rejected cases, and have secured allowance of many patents that had been previously rejected. Their advertisement in another column, will be of interest to inventors, patentees, manufacturers, and all who have anything to do with patents.

Life in California in '49.

[From the April Century.]

Life in California was at that time a wild romance. No words of mine can describe the scenes that were enacted during that chaotic period. Thousands of men, organized in bands or wholly disorganized, were constantly arriving from every part of world and leaving for the diggings. Outlaws and professional gamblers opened saloons by the score at every point where men congregated.
Money was scattered everywhere as if by the wind. Miners who had realized fortunes in a few days came down to Stockton, Sacramento and San Francisco to squander them in a night at the gambling tables. Scarcely a woman was anywhere to be seen. All restraining influences of society were absent, and I cannot find an expression better suited to the case than "Pandemonium on a frolie."

As there were no wives, there could be no homes or families. A few stores had been hastily put up along the shore, made of rough boards or canvas, and all of them were doing an enormous business. The rest of the village consisted of shanties, or tents used for restaurants and saloons. Human life was a moving panorama. The whole place was alive with a mass of unkempt men clad in flannel shirts and heavy boots, who were inspired with the one desire to hurry on to the mines.

This rough life was not without its touches of sentiment. One day the town was electrified by the rumor that an invoice of women's bonnets had arrived, and could be seen at one of the stores.
The excitement was intense, and there was a rush from every direction to get a realistic view of even so insignificant a substitute for female society. I do not overstate the truth in saying that the thoughts of home that were awakened in the breasts of the rude looking men at the sight of those bonnets started tears from eyes which the worst forms of privation and hardship had failed to moisten.

The Christian missionary was already on the ground, and good Parson Williams had managed to find a place where he could preach on Sunday. One of the first men who arrived with his family came to one of these meetings attended by his wife and baby. During the sermon it chanced that the baby cried and the mother was about to withdraw, when the preacher addressed her thus: "My good woman, I beg you to remain; the innocent sound of that infant's voice is more eloquent than any words I can command.
It speaks to the hearts of men whose wives and children are far away, looking and praying for a safe return to their own loved ones at home." Never shall I forget the sobs and tears which those words evoked throughout that rough assembly. That infant's cry seemed to be the music of angels.

With those who made San Francisco their temporary abode, gambling appeared to be the chief occupation and Spanish monte the favorite game. One house fronting on the plaza, a two-story frame building called the Parker House, rented for $12,000 per annum, the rental being paid mostly by gamblers. A single store of small dimensions and made of rough boards, rented for $3,000 a month.
A canvas tent used as a gambling saloon rented for 40,000 per annum. Money was loaned on good security at fifteen per cent a month, and out of the loan the borrowers made fortunes in real estate operations.

CAPITALISTS!

Do you want a half interest in one of the best townsite properties in Chehalis county? Two hundred acres in the city of Aberdeen, with a mile and a half of deep water frontage. The largest steam schooners that have crossed Grays Harbor bar loaded with logs for San Diego at my wharf (which is near the upper end of this land), and passed out without hindrance, at low tide, one of them drawing sixteen feet of water. There is a gravel ridge, a quarry of excellent building stone and an exhaustless supply of brick clay, all close to deep water. Three streams of pure fresh water flow through the land, one of which has been selected to furnish the water supply for the city of Aberdeen.
