FRONT ELEVATION.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

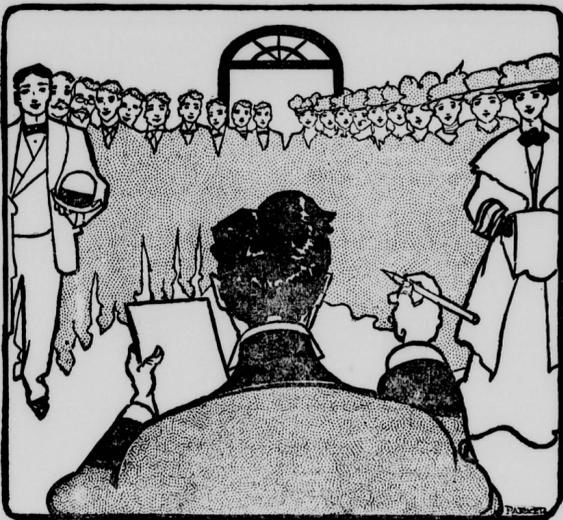

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This is a very pretty arrangement of a modern colonial dwelling both on the exterior and in the interior. Note the reception hall, which opens widely into the parlor, making it possible to turn the two rooms into one for purposes of entertainment. The stair arrangement with its wide landing and bay window, is also notable. A good sized kitchen and a large pantry are provided. Upstairs there are four large bedrooms, with many closets. The estimated cost is $2,200.

George Made Good.

How He Wanted Smart Clerks and His Want Ads. Got Them. (A Canterng Rhyme In Nine Cantos—Look For the Next.)

CANTO VII.

As his trade grew good, Good ADDED much To his literary works, And it was with a true artistic touch That he ADVERTISED for clerks: "I WANT ten men, and I WANT ten girls, And I don't WANT prigs, and I don't WANT pearls, But I WANT 'em to hustle, as Good clerks should, And sell good goods for George M. Good." (To be continued.)

Australian Birds.

Some Australian birds lay their eggs in black sand, as if aware of its superior power of absorbing heat. Others select the neighborhood of hot volcanic springs, whose warmth plays an important part in the hatching. The mound builders collect heaps of earth and leaves as much as eighteen feet high and thirty feet in diameter, and in this hotbed their eggs are hatched.

Steal With Their Toes.

Nearly all aborigines can turn their toes not only to good but to bad account. This is especially true of the natives of Australia, who, while they are cunningly diverting your attention with their hands, are busily engaged committing robberies with their toes, with which they pick up all small articles as an elephant would with his trunk.

A Cheeky Will.

New York's commissioner of charities showed in a recent address the effect charity has on some people. "An old woman in Utica," he said, "had received a pint of milk and a loaf of bread daily for eight or nine years from a rich young matron. The old woman died, and it was found that she had left a will. In this brief testament she bequeathed her daily bread and milk to her nephew."

Making Friends.

A man picked up a stone because he was afraid of dogs. The dogs growled at him. So he picked up more stones, and the dogs snarled at his heels. Then he gathered still more stones. But when the stones became so heavy that he could carry them no longer he threw them all away. And the dogs came and licked his hands.—New York Times.

The Dominic's Fall.

A Carthage minister jokingly told a friend an interview would cost him 10 cents. The latter pretended to take the matter seriously and presented him with ten pennies. The minister then arose to protest and while rising his chair skidded, and he tumbled. And now the friend is telling every one he meets how upset the minister was at having to refuse a contribution.—Kansas City Star.

Where He Stood.

The woman was showing the artist her diamond pin. "How much is it worth?" the artist asked. "A hundred and fifty dollars," she answered. "What would you do if you had a diamond pin that was worth a hundred dollars?" "There's one thing certain," he said; "I wouldn't have the diamond pin!"—New York Press.

OLD FAVORITES.

THE ALL ENCIRCLING BEAUTY.

OVER our manhood bend the skies Against our fallen and traitor lives The great winds utter prophecies, With our faint hearts the mountain strives; Its arms outstretched, the druid wood Waits with its benediction, And to our age's drowsy blood Still shouts the inspiring sea. —James Russell Lowell.

UNSPOKEN WORDS.

UNSPOKEN words, like treasures in the mine, Are valueless until we give them birth. Like unbound gold their hidden beauties shine, Which God has made to bless and gild the earth. How sad 'twould be to see a master's hand Strike glorious notes upon a voiceless lute, But, oh, what pain, when at God's own command, A heartstring thrills with kindness, but is mute!

THEN hide it not, the music of the soul— Dear sympathy, expressed with kindly voice, But let it like a shining river roll To desert dry—to hearts that would rejoice.

Oh, let the symphony of kindly words Sound for the poor, the friendless and the weak, And he will bless you! He who struck these chords Will strike another when in turn you seek. —John Boyle O'Reilly.

THE RAGGEDY MAN.

H, the raggedy man! He works for An' he's the kindest man ever you saw. He comes to our house every day An' waters the horses an' feeds 'em hay. An' he opens the shed, an' we all sit laugh When he drives out our little old wabbly calf. An' men—of our hired girl says he can— He milks the cow for 'Lizabeth Ann. An' he's a awful good raggedy man? Raggedy! Raggedy! Raggedy man! W'y, the raggedy man—he's list so good. He splits the kindlin' an' chops the wood. An' men he spades in our garden, too. An' does most things 'at boys can't do. He clumbed clean up in our big tree An' shooled an apple down for me. An' nother'n, too, for the raggedy man, An' he's a awful kind raggedy man? Raggedy! Raggedy! Raggedy man!

An' the raggedy man, he knows most rhymes. An' tells 'em, of I be good, sometimes. Knows 'bout giants an' griffins an' elves An' the Squidgicum-Squees 'at swallows themselves! An' wite by the pump in our pasture lot He showed me the hole 'at the Wunks is got. 'At lives 'way deep in the ground an' can Turn into me 'Lizabeth Ann! An' he's a funny old raggedy man? Raggedy! Raggedy! Raggedy man!

The raggedy man—one time when he Was makin' a little bow-'n'-orry for me— Says, "When you're big like your pa is, Air you go' to keep a fine store like his An' be a rich merchant an' wear fine clothes. Er what air you go' to be, goodness knows?" An' I say, "'M go' to be a raggedy man! 'I'm let go' to be a nice raggedy man!" Raggedy! Raggedy! Raggedy man! —James Whitcomb Riley.

OPEN THE DOOR OF YOUR HEART.

OPEN the door of your heart, my lad, To the angels of love and truth When the world is full of unnumbered joys. In the beautiful dawn of youth, Casting aside all things that mar, Saying to wrong, "Depart!" To the voices of hope that are calling you Open the door of your heart.

OPEN the door of your heart, my lass, To the things that shall abide, To the holy thoughts that lift our soul Like the stars at eventide. All of the fadeless flowers that bloom In the realms of song and art Are yours if you'll only give them room. Open the door of your heart.

OPEN the door of your heart, my friend, Headless of class or creed, When you hear the cry of a brother's voice, The sob of a child in need, To the shining heaven that o'er you bends You need no map or chart, But only the love the master gave. Open the door of your heart. —Edward Everett Hale.

DAYS THAT ARE NO MORE.

TEARS, idle tears, I know not what they mean, Tears from the depth of some divine despair Rise in the heart, and gather to the eyes. In looking on the happy autumn fields, And thinking of the days that are no more.

Fresh as the first beam glittering on a sail That brings our friends up from the underworld, Sad as the last which reddens over one That sinks with all we love below the verge. So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns The earliest pipe of half-awaken'd birds To dying ears, when unto dying eyes The casement slowly grows a glimmering square. So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remember'd kisses after death, And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feign'd, On lips that are for others; deep as love Deep as first love, and wild with all regret. Oh, death in life, the days that are no more. —Tennyson.

THE TOUCH OF A HAND.

AT times when the world seems dead, And the heart is bound in frost, When every bird or blossom Forgotten is, or lost, A HAND is laid in ours— Ah, the world is not so wrong, And for every bud that blooms The heart leaps up, in quest. —Margaret Ridgely Schott.

IN THE ROUGH.

WITHIN the oyster's shell smooth Trust me, you'll find a heart of truth Within the rough outside. —Mrs. Osgood.

The Donkey. Those who regard the donkey as a stupid animal would probably be induced to alter their opinion by a tour round the coasts of England and Ireland. Where a field is situated immediately above high cliffs and young horses have been turned into it a donkey may generally be found browsing away contentedly in their midst. Needless to say, he is not placed there for an ornament. Owing to his superior intelligence nothing will induce him to venture near the edge of the cliff, and the coils, which otherwise would probably fall over and be killed, take a lesson from his example and avoid the dangerous neighborhood.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Hurry Job. When John Henry Barrows, organizer of the world congress of religions, held in Chicago in 1893, was president of Oberlin college, he was approached by an insurance agent who wanted to write a policy on his household goods. To this the man of education agreed after some talk. Next morning the policy was delivered and the agent's report forwarded to the company. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Barrows went to her room and there saw smoke oozing out around the closet door. She pulled the door open and found fire smoldering among the clothes which draped the wall. Some valuable garments were destroyed before the blaze was out.

Dr. Barrows got the insurance man on the telephone and told him what had happened. The agent went to the house, prepared an adjustment report and forwarded it to the insurance company not more than twenty-four hours after the issuance of the policy. Two days later Dr. Barrows had a telegram from the secretary of the company, an old friend of his.

"Your policy written morning of Wednesday," it read. "Fire was at 5 o'clock. Why this delay?"

How to Make a Button Bag.

Take a round piece of figured silk or silkoline eighteen inches in diameter, cut plain sateen the same size for lining, then sew nearly around on the wrong side, fastening in at intervals a dozen brass rings about three-fourths of an inch in diameter, turn right side out, finish sewing, spread on table, draw ribbon through the rings and draw up. The bag now is ready to hold the loose buttons cut from worn-out garments as well as those on cards, and by spreading the bag out flat on the table the desired buttons can be found easily and quickly.
