ROAD DRAG SEASON.

Any Month if the Conditions Are Right For Its Use.

The road drag is like the manure spreader—in style any month in the year if the conditions are right for its use. Other machines are put in the shed to wait their season, but the road drag should always be ready to hitch to if we are to use it to the best advantage.

SPLIT LOG DRAG.

dry a day or two. He seemed to think the mission of the drag was to fill up the ruts. At any rate, he would drive merrily along, leaving in some places hardly a track among the clouds.

ON A MILITARY FUNERAL.

THE pipes have skirled, And heaven chimes wild music in the sky; Above the graveyard lightning flares; The rain is whirled.

AND drums still beat. A man is going to immortal rest— The cold light falling on the stones His winding sheet.

HOW stood his life? Written in silence and obscurity Or blazoned forth, a little lamp, Through this gray strife?

SUCH milestones fade Upon the road that he has gone. No odds! There's music to his funeral. The score is paid.

THE pipes shrill high; The sky is sending requiem of grief; To the dull chorus of the rain The drum beats die. —John Galsworthy.
