Just at this season one doesn't know whether he prefers to be sorry he wore his overcoat because it makes him warm or to regret leaving it at home because he misses the convenience of having five extra pockets.

A Georgia court has decided that a surgeon cannot collect a fee for an operation that did the patient no good. Uniform legislation to this effect would be a great thing for the whole country.

Somebody has been telling Germany that Mr. Taft has revoked the Monroe doctrine. Here is a new field for Germany's justly celebrated higher critics.

Three billion packages of chewing gum were sold in this country during the last year. Gum chewing is no longer a habit; it is an industry.

It seems that all the world loves a hunter too. Cooper made this discovery in his novels and Daniel Boone in his travels.

Even at the risk of planting price breakers the farmer should put in as much seed as he can attend to and take chances.

Some people are born to greatness, and some go hunting for it.

Schoolgirls' Employers. The tragedies of young girls in search of employment do not always acquire horrifying prominence, but every day's history in the newspapers shows that they are far too numerous. Parental neglect or fatuousness, which may be just as bad, is generally at the bottom of all these sad misadventures. Simply because a girl is bright and honest the parents shouldn't assume that strangers will take her at the home valuation. Responsibility doesn't end until the girl is safely placed regardless of the rate of pay. Schools which train girls for business may guarantee engagement, but they cannot well guarantee the character of the employer. A job is the sine qua non, and the ones vitally interested, the parents and the girl, through false delicacy perhaps, do not look carefully into the case. But schools which are heedless as to the places where they send girl applicants deserve to be marked and avoided by careful parents.

WOULD MAKE WIVES COOK.

Restriction on Marriages Suggested by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley. "Before a girl marries I wish that she might have to pass an examination, an examination in domestic science and household economy—in the art of running the home—before she could get her marriage license." Dr. Harvey W. Wiley of the bureau of chemistry in Washington so expressed himself before a packed audience.

DR. HARVEY W. WILEY. [Good cooking from a gem of a kitchen makes happiness.]

ence of women who attended the biennial meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs at Cincinnati the other morning, and his hearers made the big building resound with their applause. "Do we," said the speaker, "send a man to the United States senate before he has had training and experience in managing the affairs of state? Do we elect a man to the presidency before he has had training in managing a bank? Do we send young women out to preside over an institution more important and more in need of skilled management? To the last question we can, alas, only answer, 'We do.'"

"One thing we need in the United States is happiness, and cooking is a more important factor in happiness than the fine arts, for on it depends the nutritive value of foods. And I wish that when you clubwomen have settled all the big affairs of state you would direct your energies to perfecting this art. "Make your kitchens the attractive places of the homes. Put up your hangings and your works of art out there. Make them the piece de resistance of your homes, and when guests come take them into the wholesome, beautiful, sanitary and artistic kitchen, with the roast beef, the fresh chickens and the green vegetables interspersed among the hangings and the table coverings, instead of conducting these guests into the drawing room, which hasn't been aired for a week."

MRS. HOWE'S NEW PORTRAIT.

Painted by Venerable Author's Son-in-law John Elliott. When seen recently at her home in Boston, Julia Ward Howe, on the threshold of her ninety-second year, the "grand old woman," famous as the author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and many books and essays, talked about herself and a portrait of her by her son-in-law, John Elliott. "This likeness is as I want to be known to my many friends, whom I have not been able to see for some time," she said, "and I want it to be considered official." An interesting incident of the venerable author's birthday, the hanging of her picture in the New Art museum in Boston by her daughter, Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, wife of John Elliott, the artist, brought this comment from Mrs. Elliott, who said: "It is not the picture of Julia Ward Howe, the public woman, but a likeness of my mother. The work was done in the morning, just after we had breakfasted and were in the library."

"Taps."

[Tribute to America's civil war veterans.] They are marching with a halting step— A halting step and slow— And many in those blue clad ranks Have hair as white as snow; Their youth lies on the battlefields Of forty years ago. The faded, tattered flags they bear, All torn by shot and shell, Are sacred emblems of the dead Who loved their country well. How great their love and sacrifice No human tongue may tell. Those serried ranks are thinning fast That once with martial tread The knapsack and the musket bore Where Grant and Sherman led. Their sleep is sound and peaceful In the bivouac of the dead. No more the revells at dawn Shall rouse them from their sleep; No more shall wives and sisters mourn; No more shall mothers weep; Their names upon the roll of fame Time's hand has graven deep. And some lie on those hard fought fields Where now the blue and gray Clasp hands across the battle lines Their blood has washed away. Where once the tide of battle flowed Their children's children play. The passing years speed swiftly, And silence round them wraps, And to their listening ears there comes No sweeter song, perhaps, Than when the battered bugle sounds Again the old call—"Taps!" —National Magazine For May.
