THE HUMAN SKYSCRAPER.

World's Tallest Man Soon to Visit This Country.

When Fedor Manchow, the Russian giant, came to this country a few years ago his great height and bulk caused no end of astonishment, but now we are to have a visit from another "human skyscraper" who, it is said, can even look down upon the Russian. He is Prince High Henry, and two men of ordinary height and build can fit into his trousers.

PRINCE HIGH HENRY.

According to the figures given out by his manager, this giant stands over nine feet in height and is built in proportion, weighing 400 pounds. He wears the largest hat made for any man in the world, and his boots necessitate about seven times the amount of leather used for the average person's boots. His socks, in respect to size resembling trousers, have to be specially woven for him.

A Fishing Episode.
Some one told Bill Johnson's rainbows, left him exclaiming at his fate.
"I can't bait my hook," he thundered.
"For some thief has hooked my bait!"

Picturesque and Roomy.

Design 829, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FLOOR PLAN.

This bungalow will meet the requirements of a large family, having three large bedrooms in the first story and room in the second for two more in case they are desired. The front bedroom can be adapted as a library or den. There is a broad piazza, the main roof extending over it, supported on rubblestone piers. The oriel window above adds a touch of beauty. The three main rooms of the house can be finished in red oak, birch or Washington fir and the balance in pine enameled white or birch finished natural, with birch floor throughout. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $2,200. Width twenty-eight feet; depth, thirty-eight feet.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish plans and specifications for design No. 829 for $16. GLENN L. SAXTON.

THE SMART CAPER.

Wear a Breakfast Cap and Look Dainty.

THE NEW BREAKFAST CAP.

Old time fashions are being revived in all departments of dress, and the latest new old fashion to appear is the breakfast cap. Some girls prefer to call them colonial caps, for they were worn by the ladies of the Revolution, who looked charming in the dainty lace headgear. Every one is familiar with the pictures of Martha Washington in her mob cap. Well, you can make your new breakfast headpiece just like hers if you want to or you can copy the peasant headdress of Holland, which is a delightful model.

All kinds of odds and ends of lace and muslin are brought into commission for these caps, and it is only the work of a few minutes to make a lovely creation all lace, frills and flowing ribbons. The illustration will give a good idea of a modish cap.

And, by the way, these caps are being presented to summer brides and to young mothers and debutantes.

The Bathing Suit.

The better the material the more durable the bathing suit or beach gown. Clothes for the seashore, whether for the actual sea dip or for the merest daily sunbath on the beach, are subjected to the most strenuous fading process and therefore demand the best in fabric and dye.

The costume pictured is both practical and pretty.

Arranging Flowers.

No trouble is too great to the genuin lover of flowers when arranging them. The utmost pains will be taken to choose the most suitable glass or jar receptacle. A large bunch of sweet peas looks well if placed on an old china mug or bowl. Roses are equally effective if set in specimen glasses or carelessly grouped in a porcelain bowl.

Lilies of the valley are a host in themselves. Poppies seem to require clay pottery or the bottle green vases that are so general nowadays. Forget me nots look well in small, low glasses. Mignonette is best in a bowl by itself as it is said to kill flowers that are put with it. The old-fashioned clove carnation looks well with a spray of white jasmine. Scarlet geranium should always have a spray of its own leaves. Maidenhair fern, so lovely as foliage is properly associated with halcyon blossoms, but orchids should be excepted from this suggestion. They are best as nature intended them to be. Indeed, it is always more artistic to give each flower its own foliage.

Pongee Petticoats.

Paris says the pongee petticoat is new. It is made of the natural colored silk, with a scant ruffle, and is very closely fitted over the hips. Its only trimming is an insertion along the ruffle's edge of coffee colored linen lace or a few rows of ecru colored soutache braid.

By using a pattern for the home-made petticoat there is no reason why it cannot be made to look quite as well as those made by the skirt expert.
