THE BROKEN FLAGPOLE

Broken Pole on "Think of Me" Hill the Work of Thoughtless Boys, Not Anarchists. Truant Officer Lee has solved the mystery of the broken flagpole on "Think of Me" hill, after some clever sleuthing. When the pole was broken it was thought to have been the work of Red Socialists, who took that means of expressing contempt for the stars and stripes, but Officer Lee found it was done by some boys who were playing on the hill. He located the boys and forced a confession from two of them, whose names are withheld, and they agreed to replace the pole in as good condition as it was. The boys say they were playing with the halyards and swinging on them when the pole broke off some ten feet from the top. They then pulled up the stump and rolled it into a gulch. The pole has been replaced, minus the pulley and halyards but the boys promise to make them good.

PREPARING FOR FILL

With right of way through Terrace Heights about secured, the work of laying the big pipe will start at once and sluicing will start by September 1. The pump house is at the foot of Fourth avenue. The two large pumps are here and are being placed in position. One pumps the water to the nozzle and the other is used in the sluicing.

FINED FOR ASSAULT

Mike Chwasciak, a Wishkah Rancher, Weeps in Court When Convicted of Assault

When Mike Chwasciak, a Wishkah rancher, was fined $15 and costs in Judge Phillips' court Wednesday night for assaulting Jim Finn, a neighboring rancher, he wept like a baby and begged the court to be more lenient. The hearing had been postponed from time to time to secure additional evidence. It was claimed Chwasciak held a grudge against Finn, because the latter took too much interest in the welfare of his neighbors, unfriendly to Chwasciak, but of this Finn was ignorant. He met Finn while the latter was driving home one night. "Gimme a ride, will you?" the Pole is said to have asked Finn. "Sure; get in," was the reply. The man stood behind Finn in the wagon and, it is alleged, dealt him a blow that knocked him from the wagon. Chwasciak has figured in much litigation of late as a result of trouble among his neighbors. On the evidence of James McKash, who saw the Pole with Finn, his conviction was secured.

The membership of the association is over 600, and President W. H. Clinkenbeard of Aberdeen, and Secretary J. E. From the opening hour Tuesday morning, the convention will utilize about all of the time there is for every night has its full program. Tuesday will have four sessions, while for Wednesday five separate events are carded, including a public exhibition in the afternoon from 1:30 to 5:30 o'clock, and a banquet at 10:30 p. m. Technical demonstrations of all kinds will occupy about two-thirds of the convention. ASSESSED AND ACTUAL VALUES

J. S. Book is up from Los Angeles, looking after his extensive property interests here, and has protested against the valuations placed on Block 7, Benn and Hopkins addition, and the eight-acre tract he owns at the head of G street. Yesterday the committee of the city council—Bowes, Vandevort and Empey—went over the lands in order to investigate. Mr. Book, since his arrival, has advertised Block 7 for sale at the assessed valuation. After looking it over yesterday Councilman Bowes announced his willingness to buy at that figure. They also found the eight-acre tract, assessed at $8,500, and reduced to $7,500 which is also protested, was held by Mr. Book at $20,000 when offered to the city for park purposes.

OAKVILLE HOTEL IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

OAKVILLE, Aug. 6.—At 1 o'clock this morning the fire alarm was turned in and it was found the Oakville hotel was burning. The building was well on fire before the blaze was discovered, and at that time of night the volunteer fire department was a little slow in getting into action. The building, valued at about $3500, was completely destroyed. It was insured for $2,000.

SMALL BLAZE AT MILL

Fire broke out at the plant of the Hoquiam Lumber & Shingle company at 7:15 o'clock last evening, and for a time there was considerable excitement down town. The blaze, however, was confined to the pile of slabs and edgings, to which it had been communicated from a hot box near the blower, the men on duty at the mill putting it out from the mill by-draw before the fire department arrived on the scene.

HOLD LABOR SERVICES

Rev. McQueen to Hold Joint Labor Services on Labor Sunday, September 6.

Rev. J. T. McQueen, pastor of the first Methodist church, has met with the Aberdeen Trades & Labor Council and the Building Trades Council and suggested that Sunday, September 6 the day before Labor day, be observed as Labor Sunday, and that special services be held which will be attended by the labor organizations in a body. The councils favored the idea, and it will doubtless be carried out. Rev. McQueen will take the matter up with the other clergymen and arrange for the place and time. It is probable that a special service will be arranged for in the evening.
