AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

A flyless town has few funerals.

What has become of the good old-fashioned woman who used to wear a "shift," or a "chemy?"

Rats are the most expensive animal which man maintains.

The death rate from typhoid fever in the United States has been cut in half since 1900.

"Come all yo', and be baptized," cried the chocolate evangelist. "But Ah've been baptized by the Presbyterians," said Rastus. "Lo'd," cried the Baptist minister, "yo' only been dry cleaned."

As far as the local management of the Chautauqua is concerned, there's lots of room for improvement. The Ellison and White people do their part nobly and well—could not be better,—but much could be done by our own people which would be of benefit to the proposition.

Three cheers for Elma. Some time ago we complimented Montezano on their fine birth rate showing. Well, the women of Elma got together, (and possibly the men may have joined them), and they decided they would not take a back seat to their neighboring town; the result is that in June, Elma mothers rolled up the magnificent score of 15 births to only one death.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

In the rotunda of the Hotel Washington there's a good-sized placard calling attention to the Washington State Fair, to be held in North Yakima in September. The remarkable feature of the card, and one that gives it special distinction is that it was printed in Kalamazoo, Michigan. Again we say, can you beat it? and there are about a million printers in this state who could have done the work better.

OUR CHAUTAUQUA.

Taking it altogether the Grays Harbor Chautauqua this year was a tremendous success. The programs from day to day were a genuine surprise and of unusual excellence.

There were several individual programs well worth the price of the season ticket, and it is safe to say that no Western Chautauqua was ever supplied with better talent than ours.

It would be a public calamity should the Grays Harbor Chautauqua be abandoned; it is the one bright, clean, intellectual, uplifting event in these two cities. There's nothing else here that compares in importance to it. Let everybody who has the welfare of these cities at heart do everything they can to make them an absolute yearly permanent feature.

Strike conditions are now more serious than ever—one thing sure, the business interests here have got to wake up out of their trance and go into this fight in a systematic and thorough manner, or this section will always be in trouble and turmoil. Labor should and must organize, but it must confine its labors to the proper sphere, that of wages, hours and labor conditions; but they must not endeavor to dominate a man's business and try to force conditions on him that mean ruin. Invested capital and brains have as much right to recognition as manual labor. The Herald stands firmly for the laboring man when he is in the right, but not when he demands the power to tell his employer how to run his business. Labor will win more by going slow, thoughtfully and wisely, than by following loud mouthed agitators and demanding impossible things.

We really dislike to publish this story, but it's too good to keep. A man went into a certain store here and bought a certain article. When he opened it, he found inside the photograph of a girl with a note, as follows:

"If you are single, please write to me." A name and address followed, and the man smiled. He was single. He placed the photo on his library table. In a week he had fallen in love with the picture of the beautiful girl. So he wrote to her.

A week passed, during which the bachelor was in a fever of impatience. Finally he received this terrific blow in the shape of a letter:

"Dear Sir: The Mary Jones to whom you wrote, died nine years ago. Yours truly."

Upon investigating this strange case, the broken-hearted bachelor discovered that he had purchased the article from a dealer who did not advertise.

Measles kills over 11,000 American children annually.

The careless sneezer is the greatest gripe spreader.

Exercise in the garden is better than exercise in the gymnasium.

Pneumonia kills over 120,000 Americans each year.

Scarlet fever kills over 10,000 Americans each year.

It's foolish to educate a boy or girl and then let them die of typhoid fever.

The United States Public Health Service has trapped about one million rodents in the past 18 months.

Clean water, clean food, clean houses make clean, healthy American citizens.

It is estimated that the average manure pile will breed 900,000 flies per ton.

The U. S. Public Health Service issues a free bulletin on the summer care of infants.

Big Business Recognizes Publicity.

In latter years the biggest enterprises in this country have recognized the value of advertising. The men in charge of their advertising campaigns are paid splendid salaries. In fact, no branch of the business receives more attention. Publicity and advertising form the keynote of success.

If big business needs advertising doesn't small business need it?

Every man in business needs advertising. If his business is a success he needs advertising to keep it so. If his business is struggling liberal advertising will build it up.

Keep Your Name In Print.

A certain wise man once said: "Keep your name in print. Have something nice said about you, if possible. But—keep your name in print."

The man who said this was unwittingly an advertising genius. He knew the value of advertising.

The power of advertising cannot be measured. It is tremendous. Successful men and men who are trying to become successful are giving it more attention than ever.

Have you given advertising the attention it deserves? If you haven't, get busy.
