Colored students in medicine at McGill University, Canada, make these records: Drs. O. V. Marsh, R. S. Hall, S. D. Bernard and A. Bissember received the degrees of M. F., C. M., at the graduation exercises of the university. Dr. Marsh received the final prize for highest aggregate honors in the fifth year subjects.

In the fourth year J. R. Warren was fourth in honors in medicine and ninth in mental diseases, while A. M. Francis made high honors in ophthalmology.

In the third year J. R. Williams headed the honor list in medicine, while P. M. H. Savory was fourth in aggregate honors of all subjects of the third year, having made first place in honors in clinical surgery; second in clinical medicine; third in bacteriology and other places in honors in physiology and pathology.

In the first year E. E. Thompson was eleventh in aggregate honors of all subjects.

Despite this record and similar records in previous years, the colored students have sent out this message:

"The leading University of Canada, McGill, admitted by all her sister Universities and the general public to be the main centre of thought and culture in Canada, has decided to debar colored students from her medical school on the excuse that their presence is objected to by the Maternity Hospital solely on account of their color. This is what we are made to feel, what we did not expect from a part of the British Empire that prides itself in British rights and freedom.

"The authorities at McGill have acknowledged that the colored students have always borne a good character both in behavior and in scholarship in the University, and that the present move is in no way due to any misconduct on the part of the students, past or present."

Has Seattle a Jack the Slugger, like unto England's Jack the ripper?

China is still playing hide and go seek with a republic and an empire with the former in the lead at present.

Newspaper prosperity is not actual prosperity and even Dugdale, the Northwest baseball magnate, now realizes that, and in the face of the newspaper prosperity, he will close down the Northwest Baseball League until there is more coin in sight.

The Maid's Sacrifice

"But, my dear," said his wife, after he had complained about the food the new cook had brought in: "You know during these terrible times it is absolutely necessary that we make great sacrifices."

"Oh, of course, but what I object to is that cook's making hers in the form of a burnt offering."—Indianapolis Star.

TELEPHONE POEM

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL

(By Edwin Markham)

Three wizards called the lightnings to their hands
And witched the world with wonder in all lands.

Morse, with a flower-touch, loosed the winged word

To ride the wires until the world's end heard.

Marconi shakes the ocean of the air,
And sends our words into the Everywhere.

But Bell flings off the cipher and the sign,
And, with a cunning nearer the divine,
Lets out across the void man's living voice
To sorrow or rejoice,

Dispels the distances, shrinks up the spaces,
Brings back the voices and the vanished faces,

Holds men together tho the feet may roam,
Makes of each land a little friendly home!

The wires are everywhere,
The tingling nerves of the air.

Be-netting cities, speaking for all hearts,
From floor to floor their whispered lightning darts.

Looping the prairies, leaping hills and lakes,

Over the world their whispered lightning shakes.

They stite hthe farms and link the battle-line;

They thread the Alps and down the Kongo twine;

They throb among the Pyramids, and speak
Where Fujjjijyama lifts her perfect peak.

A fable it will seem in years to come:

How Bell gave speech to spaces that were dumb.

A fable it will seem:

He was one man, the one man with the dream.

When youth was on his brow,

He was a conscript burdened with a vow:
He was a man constrained

To seek a vision that the world disdained,
A vision that called laughters to the lips,
Laughters more stinging than the whistling whips.

"Wither the spaces, speak across the miles?"

How could the wise ones cover up their smiles!

"Send out our syllables like flying birds?"

How could the wise ones frame their scorn in words!

But now the deed is done,

And cried before the footsteps of the sun.
Honor the man whose gift from the All-Good

Is shrinking earth into one neighborhood.

And so, great guest, magician of the voice,
We come to crown that gray head, and rejoice.

Wegather here to-night

To glory a little in your life's long flight.
Take at our hands this humble wreath of praise

For all the toil and victory of your days.
Take this poor wreath: 'tis all we have to give

To those that nobly serve and nobly live.

Turning the Tables

A noted artist was recently visited by an interviewer, who fired at him from a question-sheet questions such as these:

"Were your parents artists? Which of your paintings do you consider your best work? When, where, and why did you paint it? How much did it bring you in? Who is your favorite dead master? Favorite living master? What is your income from art? How much—"

But at this point the artist seized the interviewer by the arm and began in his turn:

"Just a moment, please. What is your name, age, and salary? Is journalism with you a life-work or merely a means to a higher literary end? How do you like your editor? State his faults and salary. What was the best interview you ever wrote?"

Give a brief summary of same. Have you ever been fired? How does it feel? Where—

But here the interviewer, jerking his arm from the painter's grasp, fled from the studio, and the artist cheerfully resumed his work.—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Too Academic

Sometimes, to be sure, the opening is so unfortunate as to incur instant resentment and positively invite refusal. Take the case of the diminutive man of kindly appearance who was accosted by a seedy purist with the words:

"Sir, I am looking for a little succor."

"Well," snorted the wearer of the size 13½ collar, "do I look like one?"—Atlanta Journal.
