

the game. Though victorious the Champions are not boasting over their success and it is thought another series will be pulled off before the season closes. The Keystones will play in Tacoma next Sunday. Last Sunday's game was a pitcher's play, few men leaving the bat.

POLITICAL POINTERS

Two years ago the Woman's Political Alliance did some magnificent political work. It was however new at the business at that time, but should be in a much better position to do political work now than two years ago. Two years ago Mrs. W. L. Presto was president of the club and having had considerable political experience she was able to take advantage of many seemingly, to persons less experienced, awkward situations that arose in the campaign. Let's hope the present president is equally versed.

Next Sunday afternoon at 300 Main Street the King County Colored Republican Club will hold its regular monthly meeting to consider the approaching political situation. The coming primary promises to be one of the hottest scraps that has ever been pulled off in this county and if the Colored Club has any trumps it should lose no time in getting into the thickest of the battle. There will be a number of candidates for each nomination and the fur will begin to fly in the very near future.

No Democrat can be found willing to run for any office in King county from constable to congressman. All the filings in the primary are by Republicans. The same condition is reported over the Pacific northwest generally. But nearly always hitherto the Democrats have elected part of their ticket in King county and the state, and two years ago Woodrow Wilson carried Washington by 17,500 and King county by 13,000. It's in the air that this is to be a Republican landslide year. Why the change?

All the progressive Republicans are either back in the Republican party or they are sawing wood. Ole Hanson, who stumped for Wilson among the Scandinavians in 1916 and rolled up thousands of Republican votes for the Democratic candidate, was an honored guest on the platform at the late Republican state convention. John Ballaine, who wrote the famous open letter to Candidate Hughes asking his views on Alaskan issues, which Hughes dodged, praised the Wilson record in Alaska in the campaign two years ago and promised Alaska coal on the markets of the western coast by 1917. The Railway and Marine News and the Post-Intelligencer, mouthpieces for the Guggenheims, now show that Alaska coal will not be on the markets before the next administration. They are jeering Ballaine for his letter to Hughes, and are pointing to the carnival of waste and bad management on Uncle Sam's Alaska railroad as a sample of Democratic incompetence. Col. Otto Case, too, who did the work of a hundred men in organizing Wilson clubs among Progressive Republicans, is dumb just now. Col. Otto spellbinded on the Wilson achievements in Alaska, like Ballaine. But now, alas! Alaskan and Seattle papers are saying that the Guggenheims are again in the saddle in Alaska stronger than ever, and the old line Republicans are chuckling. And now comes Mayor Ole Hanson with a demand on the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the coal shortage and the high prices of coal in the northwest.

No wonder there are no Democratic candidates. It's all nuts for the Republican politicians.

The War Department has arranged to send about 4000 colored drafted men to school this summer for special training in radio-engineering, general engineering, electricity and the care of motor vehicles. As soon as they have finished their courses they will be assigned to regiments of Negro troops.
