

MR. DUNCAN RESIGNS

Alaska Missionary to Go Home.

WORK AT METLAKATLA FINISHED

No Successor Will Be Accepted by the Natives Who Are Now Fully Civilized.

Rev. William Duncan, the well known missionary, who founded the Indian town of Metlakatla, on the island of that name, which is north of Mary island in Clarence Strait, will soon leave the north on his way to England.

According to persons who returned from the north on the steamer Rosalie, Mr. Duncan has decided to return to the land of his birth.

It is stated that the public officers of Metlakatla are all natives, from the mayor down to the city clerk.

The cause of Mr. Duncan's relinquishment of the duties as missionary are not known, but it is understood that some trouble existing between himself and the government furnished the reason.

Address by Rev. Edw. J. O'Dea

When the new customs laws go into effect in Alaska next month, many changes will be instituted.

Collectors have said recently at Juneau in regard to that matter, that the new service will be made up of one deputy collector at Mary Island, Wrangell, Skagway, Juneau, Sitka, St. Michael, Circle City and one to the westward during the summer.

There will be no "floating inspectors," and the deputy collector will be done away with. The customs service in Alaska will then be similar to that of the Pacific coast ports.

TRIED AN INDIAN GAME

Boys Tie a Companion to a Stake to Burn Him.

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., June 12.—Frank Rossiter, Frank Bell and Warren Rhoads, 15 year old boys, were held in jail this morning by Justice Charles Howell on the charge of attempting to burn Lewis E. Vanderville, another boy, at the stake.

Young Vanderville went to a field to gather wild flowers, and while there the three boys, it is alleged, filled his mouth with grass and weeds, and lashed him to a post.

Gathering a quantity of sticks and dry grass they heaped them about their victim and set them on fire. The boy, squirming in agony at the prospect of being burned alive, broke the strings that bound him and made his escape by plunging headlong over an embankment.

He was soon on his feet and finally reached home besmeared with blood and nearly frightened to death. His father, Horace F. Vanderville, a prominent musician, procured warrants for the three boys, and yesterday they were captured.

At the hearing this morning they said they were imitating the burning of a man by Indians as they had seen it done at Pawnee Bill's Wild West show.

George Ellsperman, deputy collector of customs at Blaine, is stopping at the Seattle.

A VICTIM ON THE ICE

Strange Freak of Two Robbers.

PUT SALOONIST IN REFRIGERATOR

Was Nearly Frozen by the Time He Succeeded in Breaking Down the Door.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 13.—J. Boroske will not keep his saloon open again on Sunday. He was locked in the ice box Sunday night and was nearly frozen to death before he escaped.

Two men robbed the saloon and then robbed Boroske in the cold prison. The two young men entered the saloon and asked for a drink.

When the saloon keeper had served them one of them pointed a revolver at his head and told him to hold up his hands.

The other went behind the bar and took $23.40 from the drawer. Boroske protested against the robbery and began to talk loud in the hope of attracting attention from some one outside.

It was quiet at 11:30 o'clock at night, the hour of the robbery, and nobody entered.

"We'll fix you," said one of the men, and he pulled the saloonkeeper from behind the bar and they pushed him toward the ice box and put him inside.

Boroske had no coat on and he began to shiver. He does not know what became of the men after they locked him in. They wore no masks and he described them to the police.

The prisoner in the ice box pounded on the door and called until his voice was hoarse, but nobody came.

He began to feel the cold creeping over him and the sudden change from the outside atmosphere gave him a chill.

He worked at the door to keep himself warm. After he had been in the box nearly an hour Boroske lifted a large chunk of ice and threw it against the door.

He repeated it several times and finally was rewarded by seeing the door fly open.

The catch had been broken. He found that the robbers had turned down the lights and closed the door in front. The description furnished the police has not resulted in the arrest of the robbers.

PLENTY OF TROUBLE Over That $125 Circus License.

HOT FIGHT IN THE CITY COUNCIL

Arrangements Made for Attending the Funeral of Chief Clerk Evans.

The city council spent a large portion of its time last evening debating over the license for Ringling Bros.' circus, and the price of admission thereto.

It will be recalled that the council held a meeting last Saturday and passed a special ordinance, making the license $125, with $25 extra for each side show.

All of the members were not present, however, and the absentees, Rude and Crichton, put up a big fight against the ordinance at last night's meeting.

To the great enjoyment of the press agent of the circus, who keenly appreciates free advertising in the halls of legislation.

On a motion of Gill the bill was brought up. He stated that "if the circus people were willing to reduce the price of admission to $1 to $2, he thought the council did right in reducing the license."

Councilman James was highly in favor of the low license. As the ordinance had only three opponents, the final vote was taken, resulting in its passage by a vote of 9 to 3.

The death of Chas. N. Evans, chief clerk in the city water department, was announced by City Comptroller Parry, who paid an eloquent tribute to his memory.

Councilman James moved that the council attend the funeral in a body, and that the City hall be closed from 2:15 until 3:15 o'clock, or during the funeral.

The petition of Mrs. Katherine Maynard, widow of David Maynard, one of the founders of this city, for free water, was unanimously granted.

The following bills were introduced: Providing for sewers on Twenty-second avenue, Twenty-third avenue, appropriating $150 in full settlement of personal damages to Florence M. Crow, granting Thomas Joyce sewer license, granting liquor license to F. X. Schreiner and to Henry Arrheim, fixing Judge T. H. Cann's bond at $2500, fixing Judge Cann's salary at $1200.

The following bills were placed upon their final reading and passed: Directing issue of bonds $20,000 for improvements on Republican street, removing penalty and interest on certain improvements, approving assessment rolls of Seventh avenue north and First avenue north, providing for box sewer on Post and Seneca streets and Western avenue, and adjoining streets, for a sewer on Broadway, for sewers in alley through block one, Maynard's addition, Post street, authorizing residents to improve Second avenue north at their own expense.

SEATTLE ANKLINGS.

FIVE MEN DROWNED

Broke Through Ice on Bennett.

LATEST NEWS FROM KLONDIKE

The Output of Gold Figured to Be Much Larger Than It Was Last Year.

One of the passengers who returned on the steamer Rosalie late yesterday afternoon from Skagway, was Henry C. Macauliff. He came out from Dawson about the latter part of May, but remained at Skagway for a time.

Mr. Macauliff was among the first news from Dawson to bring the news of the disastrous fire which had occurred there in April. He said last night to a Star reporter: "Since the fire there has been but little travel from Dawson or the interior. The trails are in very bad shape, and the person attempting the journey risks life and limb. Within the next two weeks, however, the people will begin to come out, but these will likely be the 'busted' and discouraged miners. About July 1, the men will begin to make their appearance, and then the excitement will be on. In my estimation, the majority of the outgoing contingent will come out by way of the trails, as the route down the Yukon to St. Michael is the longest, and there are so many steps to be made before the trip is ended."

"It is difficult to estimate the quantity of gold which will come out of the Klondike this season, but it will undoubtedly be much larger than that of last year. Miners who have had more experience have gone into the country, and many rich claims have been discovered and located which were unknown last season."

Mr. Macauliff says that many cases of persons falling through the ice at lakes Bennett and Linderman have happened during the last two months. About June 1, news reached Skagway that five men had broken through the ice while attempting to cross Lake Linderman, and were drowned before help could reach them.

The names of the men could not be learned. After this disaster, the Canadian police refused to allow further travel across the lake until the ice began to break up and navigation was resumed. He further states that navigation on the lakes is exceedingly dangerous, and that many drownings will probably occur.

F. A. Allen, general passenger agent for the Seattle & International, is visiting Whatcom today.
