UPON THE ISLAND OF VANCOUVER

As a Result of Driving Ludgate and His Big Enterprise From That Place to Seattle.

Capt. S. O'Brien, a pioneer coal and lumber merchant of Vancouver, B. C., who is a guest at the Stevens hotel, has a most interesting story to tell of the disastrous political results following Theodore Ludgate's attempt to put an immense saw mill on Deadman's island, just inside the harbor.

The story is of interest to Seattle people, in view of the fact that Mr. Ludgate, who is acting for Chicago millionaires, has now given Vancouver the go-by, and will locate his mammoth industry in this city.

Mr. Ludgate, according to Capt. O'Brien, obtained a 25-year lease of the island at Vancouver, for saw mill purposes from the Dominion government. Armed with this lease, he went to the Terminal City with the intention of at once commencing building operations. A wild outcry was raised by the city council against the establishment of a mill on what they claimed as an Imperial naval reserve. The masses favored Mr. Ludgate's scheme, but the well set, composed chiefly of English remittance men and retired army officers, backed up the council who opposed it.

Mr. Ludgate made several attempts to get possession of the island, but was driven off by the city police. While the matter was in a very complicated shape, the government of British Columbia also put in a claim for the island, and defied the Dominion government to hand it over to Mr. Ludgate.

"Fighting Joe" Martin, the attorney general, and the man that framed the obnoxious alien mining law, was at this time acting for the Chicago men. He threw over his clients when the province put in its claim. Matters reached a climax when Mr. Ludgate, with a large force of men, seized the island and cut down nearly all the trees on it, while the citizens slept. The city and provincial police then, after a struggle, arrested Ludgate and drove his men off the island. The interesting part of the story now comes. Finance Minister Cogan, who is a rival of "Fighting Joe" Martin for the premiership, bitterly opposed Mr. Ludgate, and a split in the present provincial government ranks occurred. Mr. Ludgate took the matter into the courts, and decided to come to Seattle to build his mill, although he has not given up his lease of Deadman's island.

In the meantime, Mr. Martin's party, which is in power, split up, on account of the mill scheme, and will, it is said, never be united again. It has quarered itself with the Dominion government, and will have to stand a suit for thousands of dollars damages brought by the Chicago capitalists.

The citizens of Vancouver are wildly indignant that Mr. Ludgate and his immense industry have been sent across to Seattle by the pig-headed opposition of a small number of the citizens. Mr. Ludgate is still in St. Paul completing final negotiations for the purchase of a site here from the Great Northern railway.

Capt. O'Brien, who has been one of his strongest supporters at Vancouver, is understood to have come to Seattle to assist in the establishment of the mill here. He says that the city aldermen and city officials that opposed Mr. Ludgate will all meet defeat at the polls next year, and that the driving out of Vancouver of the mill man, has "busted" the provincial government and caused the loss of thousands of dollars to the city and province.

Mr. Ludgate proposes to employ about 1000 men in connection with his Seattle industry.

WILL READ HIS OWN EPITAPH

DERBY, Conn., June 30.—When Thomas Mulcahy, 28 years old, returns home from Klondike, he can read on a handsome monument in the cemetery:

"In memory of Thomas Mulcahy, aged 27 years, lost in the Klondike, spring of 1898."

Mr. Mulcahy, a year older than when he was lost, will have the satisfaction of reading his own epitaph. But he will be saddened by an inscription to the memory of his sister, Margaret, who died of a broken heart when she heard the false report of his death.

Young Mulcahy and a friend, D. Lovett, went to the Klondike when the gold fever was at its height. No word was received from them until 1898, when Lovett wrote that they had been shipwrecked and Mulcahy had been lost. Miss Margaret Mulcahy died soon after from the shock. In the spring the monument was erected to son and daughter.

Another letter came yesterday. It came from Thomas Mulcahy in the Klondike. He wrote of the wreck and his rescue. He feared that Lovett had been lost at sea. He sent his love to his sister, Margaret. The young man wrote that he was amassing a fortune. His family have sent him an appeal to return home.

"Hum. That ought to be suggestion in that for the makers of these harmless face preparations."

DIDN'T KNOW HIS WIFE

NEW YORK, June 30.—At the barge office are two women, named Maria Lewandowska, who arrived in separate steamers from Hungary. Each had one child five years old. They looked alike and though neither knew the name of the other, the rest of the immigrants took them for sisters.

The woman who arrived on the steamer Meier was going to her husband in Brooklyn, and the one who reached here on the steamer Barabara was bound for Baltimore to meet her husband.

Today the man, Lewandowska, from Brooklyn, arrived at the barge office looking for his wife. The officer went to the pen and shouted for Maria Lewandowska. A few minutes later he appeared in the office with the woman and her child, who were bound for Baltimore. She was promptly turned over to Herman. The man eyed her a moment, spoke to her in his native language, and, taking her by the arm, started for the door.

On the way he embraced and kissed her several times. One of the clerks, calling to the man, asked: "Is that your wife?"

"I guess so," he answered; "she didn't look the same, but she must be the one."

The woman said that her husband did not look natural, but she was sure no mistake had been made. Maria No. 2 then made her appearance. "That's she! that's she!" shouted Lewandowska when his wife was led into the room. There was no mistake this time.

Killed by His First Drink

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 30.—Bernard Lynch, 12 years old, died today from the effects of his first drink of whisky.

More Than One Reason.

Anxious mother—Why don't you drive that bad boy away from your play ground?

Good little boy—It wouldn't be right.

"Wouldn't it?"

"No, ma. You see the play ground is public property."

"Oh, so it is."

"Yes, ma; and it would be selfish and dishonest to deprive another boy of the right to go there."

"So it would; my angel. I didn't think of that."

"Yes, ma; and besides, he can lick me."—London Pearson's Weekly.

BALL PLAYER WAS A FICKLE LOVER

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 30.—Miss Jennie Boyle, a handsome girl of Wilkesbarre, has brought suit against Thomas Coleclough, pitcher of the New York baseball club, for $10,000 damages for breach of promise. Coleclough made love to Miss Boyle when he was a member of the Wilkesbarre club in 1896.

The young woman first saw Coleclough on the ball grounds, and admired him greatly. Then they were introduced and he paid her marked attention. In the latter part of the year he proposed marriage and was accepted. No time was set for the ceremony, but she says it was agreed that it should be performed within a reasonable time.

Their ideas of a reasonable length of time vary. In October, 1898, when she asked him to keep his promise she says he put her off. Later he again declined to go with her to the altar, and at last told her he would never marry her.

Coleclough's lawyer says his client denies all the charges.

BED BUGS COST TWO LIVES

CLEVELAND, O., June 30.—Mrs. Abraham Cohen, wife of a lamp-lighter, cleaned a feather bed with gasoline this afternoon. She was after bugs. The house was a substantially built brick structure.

A six-months-old baby was placed on the floor pending operations. Cohen strolled into the room to superintend the job. He rolled a cigarette and prepared for a smoke. As he lit the match there was a deafening report, which could be heard for several blocks. Neighbors, who ran to the scene, found a mass of bricks and other debris in the front yard.

Mr. and Mrs. Cohen and the child were picked up unconscious. The trio were removed to Huron street hospital. Mrs. Cohen soon recovered consciousness, as did Mr. Cohen. The child is unconscious and is expected to die. Cohen, it is thought, will also die. Mrs. Cohen will recover.

TO PROFIT BY ITS SEWAGE

PARIS, June 30.—Beginning today morrow the river Seine will cease to be a recipient of the sewage of this metropolis. It will all pour into one huge central drain, and be carried off to two immense suburban sewage farms situated respectively at Triel and Mervy. The latter is a high and sandy plain, known in the district as the Sahara of Paris. With the help of the sewage it is to be converted into pasture lands, and will aid the solution of the problem by supplying the metropolis with pure milk. Sewage farms have already been tried on a small scale with such phenomenal success that it was resolved to deal with the entire metropolis sewage in the same fashion.

"Why are Brown's gas bills so much lighter than his neighbor's bills?" asked the manager of the company. "Does he burn so much less gas?"

"No," replied the meter inspector, "but the suspicious scoundrel always goes to the meter with me and jots down the figures himself."

EAGLE RESTS AT WALLA WALLA

WALLA WALLA, June 30.—The citizens of Walla Walla have been making extensive preparations for the past two weeks for a grand celebration on the Fourth of July. All nearby towns have been invited to participate in the events, four bands had been engaged to furnish music, and a big fireworks display had been secured, but all efforts have been to no purpose. At a meeting of the general committee last night it was decided that there would be no celebration on account of the several smallpox cases prevailing throughout the country. The news is a disappointment to many, but it is considered a wise move. All the money contributed will be used in a demonstration for an equally great occasion when the Co. I boys return from the Philippines.

WILL MARRY NO ONE DIVORCED

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 30.—The Rev. William Barrows, the minister who recently married Perry Belmont to Mrs. Henry D. Sloane, of New York, within two hours after Henry D. Sloane had obtained a divorce, has been severely censured by the general association of Congregational ministers of Connecticut of which he is member. Dr. Barrows was present and personally apologized to the ministers. The ministers decided henceforth to take a firm stand on the divorce question. A resolution was adopted forbidding congregational ministers of the association to henceforth marry any divorced person who has been shown guilty by the decree. The resolution was presented by Rev. Dr. Cooper, of New Britain, and by passing it the clergymen pledge themselves to take a firm stand of the divorce question, and to use all their power to bring about uniform divorce laws.

The resolution also makes it impossible for them to remain guilty parties in a divorce, and parties who are forbidden to remarry by the laws of any other state or the rules of other Christian churches. This action was resolved upon after a long and spirited discussion of the points of law and church observance.

HE LEFT A BIG FORTUNE BEHIND

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 30.—The mysterious disappearance of Jasper Smith, a wealthy but eccentric citizen of Memphis, continues to puzzle the police. Rumors of his having been seen alive or dead in different places are constantly being received, but they have all been found to be groundless. Smith owns one hundred residences in Memphis, besides valuable business property. No reason can be assigned for his strange disappearance.

Application has been made in the chancery court by the heirs for a receiver to look after the property to prevent complications over tax payments and rentals.
