FAKE ALARMS KEEP POLICE ON THE RUN

An hysterical alarmist or malicious disturber of the city's peace has caused no end of trouble among Chief Delaney's sleuths of late. False alarms of murder, fire and accident have been sent in to the police for investigation within the past few days.

The police believe that it is an enemy of the department and have risked their lives in half-raising runs to places about the city, only to return in disgust a few minutes later filled with bitter feelings against the perpetrator.

Dire threats to straighten out the individual's neck if he can be found are rife at headquarters.

Thursday noon a hurry call came in from somewhere over the phone graphically detailing a murder at Railroad and King.

"A man has shot a woman, but we have him and will hold him until you get here," was the message received by Clerk Kent, who lost no time in sending the patrol wagon to the scene.

Chief Delaney, City Detectives Byrnes and Wapenstien, Jailer Corning and Driver Wesslen hastened to the place, expecting a struggle and a weary hunt for evidence, only to meet with an absolute denial by the rabble that gathered around the wagon upon its arrival. Thinking that the clerk had made a mistake the patrol wagon hurried to Fifth and King, but the patrolmen on that beat said that there was "nothing doing."

The police believe that the man is Morris Eisbert, who is to be tried July 7 on a charge of being a disorderly person. They accuse him of acting as a pander, and Eisbert was arrested by Patrolman McClure while in the act of making appointments with telephone girls to meet certain men, so McClure has stated.

Eisbert was unfortunate enough or thought himself strong enough, to be a witness against Patrolman Herold, who arrested Mrs. Myrtle Mercer for loitering about saloons several weeks ago, and was himself taken into custody on the charge against his boys. I have seen him, Mercer was dismissed at the request of the arresting officer.

While there is no law touching upon the turning in of false alarms, the police have intentions of making it a personal matter between the alarmist and themselves, and the punishment is expected to meet the emergency.

Senator Kinnear Helps Old-Time Friend Get Divorce

Senator R. M. Kinnear was a witness in a divorce case, Friday morning. Fashionably dressed and faultlessly groomed the suave solon took the stand on behalf of a mechanic who came into court fresh from his work and wearing his laboring clothes.

Placing his spick-and-span new derby on the clerk's desk beside the little round brown "caubon" of the laboring man, Senator Kinnear lifted his right hand and swore to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Then he took the witness chair and helped his old boyhood friend to free himself from the galling bonds of an unhappy marriage.

"Yes, your honor, I have known E. A. Huntley since we were boys," said the senator. "We grew up together, and we have eaten and slept together as boys and men. I know his wife, Mabel Huntley, and I know that she is of a sullen, discontented nature; that at times she has deserted her husband and run about with friends of whom he did not approve, for weeks at a time. I know that Huntley has two little boys, and that he has always done everything he could for his wife and his boys. I have seen him bring home his wages at the end of the week and toss them into his wife's lap."

"He is a first-class, honest citizen and but for his domestic unhappiness would now be prosperous and getting along nicely."

When Senator Kinnear had finished his testimony Judge Yakey granted the decree of divorce, awarding the custody of the children to the plaintiff, and together the immaculately clad senator and the roughly dressed mechanic left the court room.

There are only three more performances of "The Female Detectives" at the Third Avenue theater. Starting Sunday afternoon the same company will produce "The White Tigress of Japan."

Capacity houses have prevailed all week at the Star because the program consists of nine acts, each one of which would be featured in an ordinary theater.

Cozad's dog and pony show, Third and James, continues to draw large audiences. Its last performance will be given Sunday night. The program of wonderful feats of trained dogs, ponies, goats and monkeys is both educating and amusing.

Details have been arranged for the big labor carnival, to be held on the Yeater lot, at Third and James.

ONE OF THE STREET SHOW FEATURES.

Innes and his New York orchestral band of 50 musicians for three concerts at the Grand next Monday and Tuesday. Kryn, the famous Bohemian cornetist, and Mme. Partridge, the dramatic soprano, are beginning next Monday. A string of booths will be placed around the grounds, and a magnificent arch will adorn the entrance. At night the old lot will sparkle with myriads of electric lights.

Combine to Fight the Exclusion Law

With a view toward increasing the trans-Pacific passenger trade, the steamship companies operating vessels between Puget sound and the Orient are attempting, it is said, to form a combination and intend to adopt measures to eliminate to a certain extent the restrictions of the Chinese exclusion act.

From a high source of information comes the statement that the first step toward the desired end of the steamship companies is the recent effort put forth on the part of certain steamshipmen, through the medium of an alleged subsidized press, to obtain the entrance into the United States of Ah Jim, when, according to the version of the immigration officials, the Chinaman is a questionable character.

It is pointed out by men who are averse to having Chinese enter this country promiscuously that, should the present law not be upheld by the United States authorities, the country would, in a short time be overrun by the Orientals and that the American business man, clerk and laborer would find himself under a ban which would seriously hamper him and the future welfare of his family.

The steamship companies are the only corporations which would in any way be benefited by the importation of the Chinese, but the fact that other corporations in the municipality would be forced to the wall by cheap competition has no bearing with transportation companies, as long as they can reap a few dollars.

The immigration officials state that at the present time they have all they can do to keep the Chinese out of the country, but if every Chinaman who represents himself to be a merchant or a member of some firm in this or other cities, is to be allowed to enter on his own recognition, the exclusion act would be of little benefit to the country.

Ah Jim claimed at the time of his entry into this country to be a merchant; so did Ah Tuen. This last-named Chinaman claimed to be a member of the firm of Wah Yuen. As such he was allowed to enter by the immigration officials. One month later he was discovered to be working in one of the cheap Chinese laundries in the city.

Subsequent investigations on the part of the immigration officials revealed the fact that there were about a dozen members of the firm of Wah Yuen, but their word is all that has been received to show that they are really interested in the establishment.

The immigration officials also state that many of the Chinamen already in the country have a habit of bringing in a son every now and then from one of the islands between Seattle and the Canadian border.

Georgetown Man Is Crushed to Death

S. T. Pierce, 27, a brakeman in the employ of the Seattle Electric company, was caught between two freight cars at Georgetown, shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday night and crushed to death. He died ten hours later at the county hospital.

Pierce stepped in between the cars to couple them and in some way failed to step out quick enough and was crushed. An internal hemorrhage was the cause of death. The death was reported to Coroner Carroll by the attending surgeon.

Pierce was a veteran of the Spanish-American war and came here several years ago from Texas. He had been in the employ of the electric company for the past two years. He was single and little is known of his relatives.

Coroner Carroll had decided that no inquest is necessary, as the death was accidental and other members of the train crew say that it occurred so suddenly that they had no chance to protect Pierce.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.—John F. Stevens, first vice president of the Rock Island road, the man who built the Rocky Mountain section of the Great Northern, was today appointed chief engineer of the Panama canal, to succeed John F. Wallace.

Stevens was formerly chief engineer of the Great Northern. He is well known in Seattle, having been here repeatedly to direct affairs while chief engineer of the Great Northern. He has many friends here. His thorough acquaintance with local conditions will be of immense value to the city. He will be the most important factor in the purchase of canal supplies, and will naturally give Seattle the best opportunity possible to furnish them.

Stevens was railway expert on the Philippine commission. His first engineering service of note was in connection with the city of Minneapolis; later he located the Sabine Pass and Northwestern road, and served in the engineering departments of the Denver & Rio Grande, the St. Paul, the Canadian Pacific, the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and the Spokane Falls & Northern. In 1889 he became chief engineer of the Great Northern, and later second vice president of the Rock Island in charge of the operating department. Stevens recently resigned from the Rock Island to become inspector of railroad work in the Philippines. He will not be a member of the canal commission, his duties being confined exclusively to those of chief engineer. His salary will be $30,000 a year.
