

SPECTACULAR SHOWS TO BE OPENED SOON

More Attractions for the Pay Streak Are Now Being Prepared, and They Will Be Opened Soon.

Down to date the Battle of the Monitor and Merrimac, on the Pay Streak, has taken rank as the most elaborate and beautiful spectacle ever produced in the Pacific Northwest. It has taken the medal for class in this line, but if present arrangements carry through, it is not to remain throughout the exposition without rivals.

It is known that Director of Concessions Mattox is after some of the biggest attractions in the country, although Mr. Mattox has a habit of giving out no information until he has a proposition clinched, and it is known that "Fighting the Flames," the most splendid pyrotechnic spectacle ever produced, is one of those with which he is in negotiation. As it stands now it is only a question of finding sufficient room to put it on the Streak.

Will Be a Big Fun Path.

With the Monitor and Merrimac and the Battle of Gettysburg on the grounds, Fighting the Flames coming and several other attractions of almost, if not equal class, among the probabilities, the Pay Streak, by the middle of July, will be on a par with any amusement way ever turned up.

A wire from E. W. McConnell, general manager of the Monitor and Merrimac and Gettysburg spectacles, received yesterday by Parker McConnell, announces that E. J. Austen, the famous British artist who produced both of the war time shows, has invented something altogether new in the way of electrical effects, storm scenes and the like, and that these are now on their way to Seattle to be added to the Monitor and Merrimac equipment.

Building New Attractions.

Two new features are now going up on the Pay Streak as fast as the contractors can do the work. One is the House That Jack Built, one of the highest class straight amusement features ever produced, according to old showmen on the Streak. The Jack House is being put up on the space between the Igorrote village and the San Marino building, and the San Marino building is being remodeled for the reception of dainty little Chiequita, the "Doll Woman." Chiequita is the smallest woman in the world, and has been seen in every big city of Europe and eastern America. Her leaves have become as famous as were those of the diminutive Tom Thumb of another generation.

MAN GOT UNDER HER BED; POLICEMAN GLAD OF IT

POLICEMAN CRISP, WITH ONE OF THE MISSES JAMES, AT LIVERPOOL PIERS.

TRENTON, N. J., June 18.—Policeman Hamilton T. Crisp has reason to be glad that a burglar got under the bed of a maiden lady. One night one of the three Misses James, who have a high-class boarding school at Trenton, looked under the bed and saw that the fears of years had come true—there was a man under it. She screamed. Her sisters screamed. Pretty soon all the girls began to scream. Crisp, dashing to the scene, looked awfully good to them. He clouted the burglar with his stick and received the plaudits of over a hundred beltinged girls. He was delightfully polite through it all.

The next day the Misses James looked him up.

For a long time they had wanted to go to Europe. Crisp was the man to accompany them.

They are now in Europe, with Crisp acting as guard and guide. The burglar is in jail.

SAYS GOMPERS CAN'T TELL RIGHT FROM WRONG

Denouncing Gompers as a tyrant unable to distinguish between liberty and right, James W. Van Cleave, ex-president of the National Manufacturers' association, last night defended himself against a recent attack made upon him by Gompers, through the press. Van Cleave addressed 150 employers and lawyers at a banquet in the Lincoln hotel, and bitterly arraigned the labor leader. James A. Emery of New York was also a speaker.

NURSES MAKE MERRY TODAY

Ending their meetings with a grand reception and banquet at the Stockade hotel last night, many of the nurses who attended the annual convention of the Washington State Graduate Nurses' association during the last few days made merry on the exposition grounds today.

Yesterday was one of the busiest days ever outlined at a similar convocation. Many excellent papers were read and the annual election of officers was held.

Plans were launched to form a tri-state association to comprise California, Oregon and Washington. With this in mind a delegate was appointed to attend the California State Nurses' convention in San Diego next August. Spokane was selected as the next meeting place of the nurses. The following were the officers elected:

Miss M. C. Burnett, Spokane, president; Miss Laura MacMillan, Seattle, and Miss Anna Juergens, Tacoma, vice presidents; Miss Mary McMasters, Spokane, secretary; Mrs. S. E. Myers, Walla Walla, assistant secretary; Mrs. E. J. Cummings, Tacoma, treasurer; Miss May E. Loomis, Seattle, Miss Grace Halvor, Walla Walla, and Miss Ella Wilkinson, Bellingham, councillors.
