

NEW MARKET FOR BALLARD

BALLARD, July 26.—The Ballard market was reopened Saturday after having been closed for a month, during which time it was completely renovated and refitted. The Salmon Bay Improvement club, which has charge of the market, was disatisfied with the way the market was being operated, and closed it for a month ago. They then employed a force of men to prepare the market for business. Saturday it was opened with a complete new line of wares. A number of truck farmers were present, selling their goods. Many of the farmers within 10 miles of the place were at the opening. The club place was well patronized in the morning, the people beginning to understand that they can get their goods there as reasonable as the big market in Seattle. The grocery has changed hands, and the market has been fitted up with several large new refrigerators. The improvement club expects a trade as soon as the market opens fully started.

AUTHORITIES SEARCH FOR A HOLY ROLLER

OAKLAND, Cal., July 26.—Assisted by the San Francisco police, the local authorities are making a careful search for Edward G. Fisher, a member of the Holy Roller cult, who is suspected of having hypnotized Miss Bertha Thompson, of 34 Page st. While under his hypnotic influence, the young woman declared she had been in a room for three days. A full search was made in the vicinity where Miss Thompson says she was imprisoned, to ascertain the house where Fisher is supposed to have looked her over. Miss Thompson is unable to give the location of the place. According to her story, Fisher donned many disguises and attempted to make her believe his peculiar religious views.

RAMP HAVING HARD TIME KEEPING OUT OF A PRISON CELL

The third petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the comedy of Ambrose Ramp, wanted in Alaska on a charge of embezzlement, was filed this morning.

A month ago a petition for habeas corpus was denied in the superior court and the case appealed to the supreme court. Then another petition was filed and this morning it was granted by Judge Frater.

Deputy United States Marshal Leopold David, of Fairbanks, made his return, showing the prisoner was not in his custody, but the sheriff's office had to acknowledge it was holding Ramp.

As soon as Ramp was released, David started to re-arrest him. Judge Frater protested against any arrest in open court.

David then waited until a recess was called and promptly re-arrested Ramp and started to carry him off toward Alaska.

But Billy Keith, attorney for the prisoner, was prepared for such an emergency and promptly filed another petition for habeas corpus and served it on the United States marshal before he left the court house.

This petition will be heard Saturday. In the meantime Ramp will remain in the county jail unless he can furnish $2,000 bond.

CHILDREN VICTIMS OF DIVORCE MILL

(Concluded.)
without choice, are brought into the world. Divorce, the nation's menace, only adds to their already too heavy burden.

While divorce may relieve the troubles of the parents, in nearly every case where there are children by the union, the real sufferers are those little ones.

The case of little Harold Lawrence is only one of many. The mother, a mere child, too young to realize any of the responsibilities of married life, is wedded but a few months and then deserted.

The coming of the little one prevents her working, and when baby Harold makes his appearance there are no funds to care for him, his mother must seek employment, and baby is a burden.

Must Fight Unfair Battle.
The divorce which the mother suffers brings with it no relief. Baby must go. He is always his father's name, and the arms of the nurse, whose kind eyes have clouded with many such cases, open and fold him away from harm for a while.

Perhaps some childless mother will take little Harold into her home, and perhaps he will be buffeted about for years to come. He has had only a few months of this world, but is such a healthy youngster that he is almost sure to see many years, and what those years will bring forth is hard to foretell.

There are close to 40 children at the Washington Children's Home, and all are in need of permanent homes. They are well cared for now, but they cannot stay there always.

Twenty-five of these little tads are the silent reminders of the outcome of hasty divorces. Other children have the legal right to the name by which they are known.

All but 10 of the children have one parent living, but unable or unwilling to care for the child. Divorce gave the custody of the child to father or mother, as the case might be, and that parent was forced to part with the child, or, as in the case in a pitiable number of instances, the custody of the child was sought just as a weapon with which to wound the other partner in this game of hearts.

When the custody was secured, all interest ceased, and the child, from neglect or misuse, drifts to the Home and finds care and peace.

"Divorce means only trouble for the children in almost every case. Sometimes it means the hiding or stealing of the children; other times it means the placing of little ones with strangers, and in some it means desertion—the little bundle on the door-step.

What is the Remedy?
"The little ones pay the costs of the divorce suits so many times that the exception only proves the rule," said State Superintendent L. J. Covington this morning. "But who can advise a remedy? In a case like Baby Brown, so called because of his big, wondering, brown eyes and brown ringlets, which cling close to his chubby, brown neck, the divorce does not figure. It were better if it did. But Baby Brown is ceased, and the child, from neglect or misuse, drifts to the Home and finds care and peace."

And still the divorce courts grind on.

"CURSE FROM HEAVEN" IS HOT SUNSHINE IN NEW YORK'S SLUMS

FLASHLIGHTS SHOW PEOPLE SLEEPING IN THE PARK. SMALLER PICTURE—FATHER, MOTHER AND BABY SEEKING SLEEP AND COOL BREEZE IN PARK.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Of course sunshine isn't a curse.

But there are hundreds of thousands in New York who believe it is.

The sunshine that brings health and prosperity in the country, kills people in New York.

You can't blame them in New York for wanting to curse something. For the heat is slow death.

In the afternoon of a hot day firemen in trousers and undershirts play the hose on each other and the willing horses.

At park hydrants city employees toss water over passing horses.

But there is no water for the children on the great East Side.

The other evening the street commissioner tested two new sprinkling wagons for cleaning the streets. Immense air pressure in the tanks threw great knife-like sheets of water. But they could not decide whether the great streams would clean the streets, for so many they fevered ghetto children got into the streams that the water didn't strike the pavements at all.

From the fire escapes and windows they gave happy cries when they saw the wagons coming.

"Water wagons! Water wagons!" they cried joyously.

The curse of heat is terrible in the daytime. But at night to the people of the huge tenements the search for sleep makes it more so.

In the early evening you will see whole families lying on the grass, the children playing, the father and mother asleep.

When the weather is terribly hot the park departments allow the search for sleep makes it more so.

Early in the evening you will see families rushing to find sleeping places in the parks.

As the night grows, silence settles over the parks. The children are the last to fall asleep. On the grass of almost every great park thousands of sleepers pass the night fitfully. It is a sight that can be seen in no other city in the country.

Lucky is a family with a fire escape. For those who are crowded with sleeping men, women and children during the hot nights. Neighbors who live in back rooms envy the fire escape sleepers. It is not a rare thing for a sleeper to roll from his fire escape bed to death on the pavement's hot surface.

The roofs, too, contain many sleepers on the hot nights. But there is no tenement roof in New York that will hold the outstretched forms of all those who live beneath it.

A week of hot weather in New York shows how fatal the heat is. Babies die at the rate of 10 or 20 more a day. The white hearse is the emblem of the hot spell. Every other block in the East Side shows its white crane daily.

Sufferers increase. Tired men, unable to sleep because of the heat and their weariness, lose their reason. Scarcely a night passes that some man or woman does not jump to death in the river.

Workers lose their lives during the day's rush. Their minds and bodies tired by the strain of the heat, they make fatal mistakes on scaffolds or wrong turns with their teams.

More than any one thing—besides poverty—the terrible heat of a New York sizzard brings death.

Whether Morris will build a new playhouse in Seattle or lease one of the present theatres is not known.

REWARD OFFERED FOR TORPEDO BOATS SAIL

Between the hours of 9 and 12 noon today the local custom house cleared 21 vessels from this port. Among them were six of the United States torpedo boats, which are bound north to Vancouver, B. C., and thence to Alaska.

The other vessels were all chartered of various kinds and sizes. This number has only been beaten once in the regular course of business and then it was only by one.

GRAND EXALTED RULER OF ELKS IS IN TOWN

FROM TEN TO FIFTEEN THOUSAND VISITORS WILL BE HERE.

L. U. Sammlis, the newly elected Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks, arrived in the city yesterday with about 500 members of the Grand Lodge from Los Angeles. The party was welcomed at the station by the officers and a large delegation from the Seattle lodge, and were escorted to the Elks' hall in the Alaska building.

There an informal breakfast was held, after which the visitors went on a tour of inspection of the Elks' quarters.

In the afternoon the party went on an excursion around Lake Washington, ending at the fair grounds. After visiting the important buildings the herd boarded automobiles, which took them around the city. In the evening a banquet was given for Grand Exalted Ruler Sammlis at the Hotel Washington.

Today the Grand Lodge members are being entertained in a royal fashion at the Elks' hall. Many of them are at the exposition grounds. Tomorrow the State Reunion association will hold their annual meeting at the New Seattle hotel. Mayor John F. Miller and Exalted Ruler Morgenson of the Seattle lodge will deliver addresses of welcome, which will be responded to by L. U. Sammlis.

In the evening the party will go on an excursion around the lake, after which they will go to the fair grounds. From 10,000 to 15,000 Elks will be at the fair on July 25.

WILL HANDLE CROWD BETTER NEXT WEEK

Postmaster George Russell hopes by next week to be able to meet the growing demands of the crowds in his office with better service, and that he will be able to have the mail distributed more rapidly. He has applied to the department for permission to employ more help at the delivery windows. The crowds this morning at the postoffice, who were in line at the delivery windows, reached right out into Union st. at the north end and turned the corner past the postmaster's private office at the south.

A complete rehearsal of the Elks' Society Circus, which will take place Wednesday and Thursday at the A.-Y.-P. exposition, was held yesterday afternoon at the exposition Stadium, and everything is now in readiness for the big show. One hundred and sixty horses have been secured for the performance, and 30 wagons have been gathered in for the parade, in addition to the chariots, coaches and band wagons which have been built for the occasion.

The rearranging and lighting of the Stadium is complete, and the three rings and two stages have been built. The aerial apparatus is in place and all is in readiness for the crack of the ringmaster's whip.
