

MR. MALONEY CAN'T EXPLAIN THE GRAFT

(Concluded.)
tion here and it was an hour before he could again be found in his office.
This time his explanation was totally different.
"Did you know, Mr. Maloney, that the building was already split in two and that the original request shows Mr. Roney never asked for a permit to move in whole?" the visitor asked.

His Second Explanation.
"But his figures show that the building was 30 feet wide and the street but 40. That the moving of the building would absolutely block all traffic on this busy street. There are no sidewalks along the street. The building you are moving must be given a foot of leeway from the poles, and the timbers stick out another two feet, leaving but seven feet for traffic."

"But the permit was finally granted and the building moved," reminded the questioner. "It must have blocked traffic then just the same as it would have previously."

Mr. Maloney paused and reconsidered. "I guess it did," he returned. "But anyway, I opposed it right along. It wasn't on my motion it was finally granted."

He Can't Remember.
"No, I don't. I am not sure whether I was present at the meeting or not. But I always opposed the granting of the permit."

"Do you know this man Anderson, whose name you told me he could fix the permit up all right, on the payment of $150, $50 of which Anderson was to keep and the rest to go to somebody at the city hall?" he was asked.

"No, sir, I don't know him, never saw him nor never heard of him, until this matter first came up."

The records of the board of public works show that Mr. Maloney first opposed the permit on the grounds that permission would have to be obtained from the railway companies. Roney explained he had attended to that detail. Then Maloney told him the permit must be blocked while moving. If building was moved close to east line poles, wagon could get through on west side.

Here is the Record.
"The roadway between the lines of poles on Occidental av. is 40 feet. The buildings to be moved are 30 by 90 feet. If building is moved in center of roadway, traffic will be blocked while moving. If building was moved close to east line poles, wagon could get through on west side.

The letter was written February 1, signed by Caywood and "O. K." by Maloney.

Caywood speaks of "the building" while moving. It is immediately following this interview, the mayor mentions as one of his chief reasons for doing so is that Mr. Bouillon had refused to divulge the name of the man who forked over $150 for a moving permit.

Names Were There.
As a matter of fact, the name had been in the mayor's office five hours when he asked Mr. Bouillon for his resignation. At 11 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Bouillon's private stenographer personally carried to Mayor Miller a letter in which Mr. Bouillon gave all the names and facts in his possession concerning the graft charge.

This letter informed the mayor that the man who paid $150 to a ward heeler named Anderson for the moving permit which had been rejected by the board of public works was Attorney Ned Roney, with offices at 606 Oriental building, and explained all the circumstances surrounding the transaction.

Although these facts reached his office at 11 o'clock in the morning, Mayor Miller said in his letter, written at 5 o'clock, outlining Mr. Bouillon, that the latter had declined to give him the same.

Mayor's Accusations.
The paragraph in his letter referring to this accused Bouillon of "making a charge that he had been informed that the sum of $150 had been paid to obtain a certain permit from the board of public works of said city, intending to be understood and meaning thereby that the said permit was obtained by unlawfully influenced by money consideration in their official capacity and refusing to make a statement of facts concerning the same or transmit to me any statement of evidence or facts or circumstances within the possession of the same and refusing to disclose his name and information thereof, all on, to wit: Sept. 23 to 24, 1909."

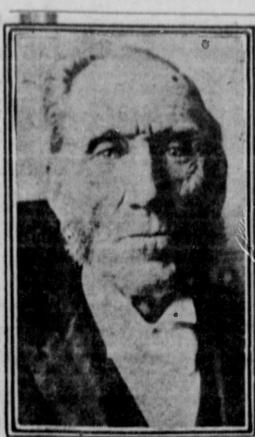

Mr. Bouillon did at first decline to give the mayor any facts, because he wanted his charge probed by a committee clothed with authority to summon and examine witnesses.

Realizing that the mayor had no intention of appointing such a committee, Mr. Bouillon decided yesterday morning to give all the facts in his possession to his superior, which he did at 10 o'clock. The mayor failed to acknowledge the receipt of this letter, and six hours later declared that he had not received it.

Mayor Dodges Question.
When asked last yesterday what action he intended to take concerning the $150-graft story, Mayor Miller, with a wide swing of his arm, declared he would give it some attention. He evaded all questions asked for the purpose of getting from him some definite

Friday to answer a charge of insubordination. The witnesses will also be his judges and he will be tried behind closed doors. The "insubordination" consists of preaching to a small congregation without the expressed assent of the Puget Sound Presbytery.

The trouble broke last April, when Rev. Dr. Bass refused to obey the mandates of the missionary board of the Presbyterian church, which called upon him to leave the pulpit of the Lake Union Presbyterian church. More than three-fourths of the congregation stood by him and he continued to preach. Now he is to be disciplined by answer as to what course he would pursue.

The mayor declined to say whether or not he would call for an investigation, although he had in the Star the full account of how Mr. Roney paid $150 for a moving permit, finally granted by the board of public works.

MAYOR DISMISSES MR. A. J. BOUILLON board of public works. Mr. Thomson and the mayor accuse Mr. Bouillon of refusing to make a report to Thomson and Bouillon insists that he has made it plain that he would produce witnesses to prove his charges before a disinterested tribunal or person.

Mayor Miller was in bad humor when Mr. Bouillon was ushered into his office.

"I must ask you for your resignation," said the mayor, abruptly.

While Mr. Bouillon realized that powerful political influence was being exercised to remove him from office, he had not dreamed that the mayor would out him without asking him to explain his actions.

Just Because.
"Why do you want my resignation?" asked Mr. Bouillon.

"Because I want it," replied his superior.

"Unless I can get from you an explanation I shall decline to tender my resignation," said Mr. Bouillon.

"Then I shall exercise the power of my office and dismiss you from the service," declared the mayor.

"Very well," was Mr. Bouillon's reply as he turned and passed out into the hall.

In the letter removing Mr. Bouillon from office, dated immediately following this interview, the mayor mentions as one of his chief reasons for doing so is that Mr. Bouillon had refused to divulge the name of the man who forked over $150 for a moving permit.

Admit Charge is True.
Hence, Mr. Bouillon was right when he made this graft charge. Mr. Thomson says he was right; Mayor Miller, by word of mouth, does not deny there was grafting.

On the other hand, he says he discharged McAllister for taking money that did not belong to him.

And still Mayor Miller has ousted Mr. Bouillon from his office because he dared to tell the truth.

Concerning this the mayor's letter of dismissal gives the following additional reason:

"Indulging in action, conduct and words impugning the integrity of his fellow members of the board of public works without just or sufficient cause in open session of the said board of public works at divers times; thereby interfering with and impeding the proper and ordinary discharge of public business then pending before said board."

Angry at Bouillon.
The board of public works, of which Mr. Bouillon is a member, has been angry at him, it is true, because impugning the integrity of his fellow members of the board of public works without just or sufficient cause in open session of the said board of public works at divers times; thereby interfering with and impeding the proper and ordinary discharge of public business then pending before said board."

Right of Public.
Such sites can be properly parted with under conditions of tenure, use and compensation consistent, upon the one hand, with reasonable profit to the private capital invested, and, on the other,

cause he did what he thought was right.

Must Earn a Living.
His meager wage as a minister of the gospel has been stopped, and, though his friends insist that great wrong has been done him, the old man carries his messages and says nothing.

When asked why he was a messenger "boy," Rev. Dr. Bass would say nothing about his trouble, neither would he give any information about any of the trials touched on here.

"Just let me go," he said, as he left the corner where the newspaperman had found him, and back he went to report for duty—to take the next message out.

Smiles at Adversity.
And, as he left, a smile flitted across his face—maybe he was thinking of that psalm:

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me lie down in green pastures, he leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table for me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anonitest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me through all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

Importance of Power.
We have reached a time when the importance of water power sites has greatly increased and there would seem to be no reason why it should interfere with the speedy development of the country to impose restrictions upon use of such water sites equitable between the public and the investor.

"Should congress conclude not to do it, it would be difficult for the chief executive to find authority indefinitely to withhold those lands from settlement under the general laws on the ground that they contain water power sites. The legislative power is vested in congress and not in the executive. I shall therefore urge upon congress at its next session the passage of a law authorizing the disposition of such water power sites upon terms to be agreed upon by the secretary of the interior with the proposed purchaser of the character already indicated."

Will Supersede Coal.
"In time," the president said, "the water power of the country would largely supersede coal."

Taft then gave his views on the conservation of coal and oil lands, and ended by saying:

"There has been a great deal of discussion in the newspapers as to the attitude of the administration toward the general policy of conservation of resources and in some, unfair and altogether unfounded inferences have been drawn.

"The truth is, my administration is pledged to follow out the policies of Mr. Roosevelt in this regard, and while that pledge does not involve me in any obligation to carry them out unless I have congressional authority to do so, it does require me to take every step and exert every legitimate influence upon congress to enact legislation which shall best subserve the purposes indicated.

"I do not think that congress, if properly approached, will object to adopting legislation of the general character which I have outlined.

Ballinger With Taft.
"Those are both important steps. I hope that nothing will prevent our taking the further steps needed when congress meets. Secretary Ballinger of the interior department, upon whom will fall the duty of executing the new provisions of the law, is in entire accord with me as to the necessity for promoting in every legitimate way the conservation of these resources which I have named and he can be counted upon to use the great influence which he must have as secretary of the interior to this proper end. Indeed, it will be found that in his reports as commissioner of the general land office he brought these matters to the attention of congress and urged the adoption of a general policy along the lines I have indicated."

Ballinger O. K.'s Speech.
A great crowd gathered in the park to hear the president but before he had spoken many minutes a large number of his spectators left because they were unable to hear his words.

President Taft's conservation speech was not given to the press today until it was O. K'd by Secretary Ballinger. The chief executive put off the preparation of his address until late last night and it was after 1 o'clock in the morning before he went to bed.

For two hours after the president retired his secretaries ground away on their typewriters and were at it again before 5 o'clock this morning.

Gets Chilly Welcome.
The president was up before 6 o'clock to correct the manuscript. Secretary Ballinger was summoned then and he took the speech in hand, going over it word by word. In the meantime a local committee had reached the railroad station to take the president to breakfast. These frock-coated, silk-hatted gentlemen were kept waiting outside the car for some time and when the president finally made his appearance, wearing his usual smile, their cheers and handclaps were decidedly frosty.

The train bearing President Taft, Secretary Ballinger and John Hays Hammond, the mining expert, arrived here at 6:30 this morning. The president and his party had breakfast with the trustees of the chamber, later went on a motor ride around town and reviewed a military and civic parade.

The city was filled with persons interested in forestry and irrigation who had come to hear the president's speech on conservation which, it was announced, the president would deliver here. After the address the president took lunch with a local committee and went on an automobile ride to Hayden Lake and through the Spokane valley. A visit to Coeur d'Alene and the Coeur d'Alene forest reserve completed the day's program and the president will leave for North Yakima at 9:25 tonight.

BAD MAN DISTURBS SUBURB OF AUBURN

The town of Auburn was shot up last night by a "lone bandit" named J. W. Lewis, who frightened the town marshal into submission, and who then several scores into other sage and prominent citizens of that thriving suburb. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Scott Malone.

C. H. Johnson, a man who started on a spree with Lewis, but who later had a quarrel with him, hurriedly telephoned the sheriff's office last night to send a deputy immediately. He said that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Lewis, but that no one had nerve enough to serve it.

Lewis was seen to go toward his home near Swan lake, and swear to speedily dispatch any minion of the law who dared to approach him.

Deputy Sheriff Malone was sent to Auburn in an automobile, and he arrested Lewis without any trouble.

MRS. JOSEPH WEBER MAYORESS FOR DAY

Mrs. Joseph Weber of 419 First av. N. has been appointed "mayoress" for Grandma Gorham's tag day on next Saturday. She will rule supreme that day, and Mayor Miller will be down and out.

The firemen and policemen of the city have announced their willingness to sell the tags, which are to raise the money for Mrs. Gorham's new home for orphan boys.

The site of the home is near Atlantic City, on the shores of Lake Washington. The boys who are staying with her are now camped there. When the new home is finished she will be able to care for at least 100 orphans at a time.

During the last three years that Grandma Gorham has taken good care of the homeless, she has housed and fed 533 lads. The county commissioners and other friends have helped her at times with money and food for her wards.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE WILL MEET

A meeting of the King County Anti-Tuberculosis league will be held this evening in the society's rooms in the Central building for the purpose of electing trustees and for outlining the campaign this coming winter.

The meeting was called by President Joseph L. Garvin.

Some of the most prominent men in the city have allied themselves with the league and have promised to aid in every way possible.

WHITNEY LEAVES FOR NEW YORK TONIGHT

(By United Press.)
ST. JOHNS, N. F., Sept. 28.—The steamer Jeanie, with Harry Whitney on board, arrived this afternoon. Whitney expects to start for the United States tonight.

With Whitney's arrival in America, it is believed that his testimony will have much to do towards clearing up the controversy between Dr. Frederick Cook and Commander Robert Peary as to whether Cook discovered the North Pole.

Cook claims that Whitney's testimony will tend toward proving his contention that he was the first to reach the Pole.

SAYS SHE NEEDS MONEY
Mrs. Ida L. George today filed a new complaint against her husband, Charles E. George, in which she states that her husband refuses to maintain her, and asks for proper maintenance. The only difference between the new and the old complaint is that she now alleges that Mr. George is the only means of support which she has.
