SEATTLE'S BIG POPULAR-PRICE STORE.

Queen and princess—royalty—but never mind! They belong to that great human, world family—the beautiful family of mother and baby. God bless them! This picture of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and her wee daughter, Juliana, was made from a photograph taken recently at her palace in Amsterdam. The photograph was greatly admired by her subjects, and every patriotic Dutch burgher secured a copy to adorn his home.

TROUBLE WITH TAFT IS, HE'S TOO FAT, SAYS H.A.P.

"I see," said Horace Ackley Pomerene, "that nobody in this country likes our fat friend Taft's message to congress except Wall st. The good old times when every time the president sent a message to congress the street lights went out on Wall st. from Trinity to the sub-treasury, so they wouldn't look as though they were celebrating, are over."

"A president's message has degenerated. It is once again simply a bore. The president's message thinks the tariff ought to stay the way it is. It thinks it better to have us continue pulling through from year to year with just about enough left over every December to buy a box of toothpicks and a stamp, than to have Morgan fall through on a bank consolidation. The president's message also thinks that the Halting-Pinshot scrap is worth passing over without talk."

"The trouble with Taft is, he's too fat. It takes all the surplus energy he ought to have to fight with, to get around without spraining his ankles."

Horace Ackley Pomerene leaned against the entrance to the New York block elevator and meditatively scratched his head.

"I notice the bunch of troubled ones who come in here to the justice shops work up a sort of cold sneer when someone gets on the subject of our beloved president. They used to fight about Roosevelt—for or against. They just smile at Taft. I'd rather have people fight about me than laugh about me."

"Say, I'm a democrat, but I'd like to be on the spot if T. R. had been president and Mister Aldrich had started in on the stunt he pulled through when congress was more or less on the job last time. I'd have wanted goggles and a linen duster, though. I'll bet they would have had to put muffers on the press wires."

"There are some things that make me sick. One of them is the guy that gets up on a stump on the Fourth of July and reads the constitution of the United States to a crowd that wouldn't believe it if you explained it to them."

"The chicken stew has two prices in the bill of fare. How is that, waiter?"

"With chicken in it, it is 20 cents, without it, 15c."—Fliegende Blaetter.
