

DISEASE LIKE SNAKE CHOKES NICK PAPPAS

Patient at the City Emergency Hospital Is Slowly and Surely Dying of a Strange Malady.

Like a boa-constrictor, coiling itself around his neck and choking out life, is the "strange disease" against which Nick M. Pappas, aged 38, is fighting for breath on a white bed at the city hospital.

The unusual malady is slowly but surely strangling its victim. Perhaps he can be cured, but if the disease gets the upper hand on medicine and Pappas' protesting body, he is doomed to a horrible death.

Pappas' complaint is known as "Hodgkins disease," being named after the physician who first opened with it. The first signs of its ugly presence are swellings on the sufferer's neck. As the affection gains ground, the swellings increase and the grip on the glands of the throat and neck tightens, until, if it is not arrested, it completes its awful course by throttling the victim.

BATTLE BETWEEN UNIONS AT BUTTE

(By United Press.) BUTTE, Mont., March 1.—A bitter sympathetic strike of all crafts affiliated with the American Federation of Labor employed at the mines here is imminent because of the attitude of the Western Federation of Miners in refusing to permit six of the seceding engineers to return to work under any consideration.

National President Matt Comerford of the International Steam Engineers, offered to order back all striking engineers under practically the same conditions that obtained before the strike, but officials of the Miners union refused.

This so aroused other American Federation labor unions that at an exciting meeting last night it was decided to dispatch to the miners another committee representing all affiliated crafts in Butte. In an effort to bring about a settlement of the strike, and in the event of this being turned down, to prepare for a general sympathetic strike.

ANNIE MOORE, JUST A FACTORY GIRL, DIES AS SHE LIVED, ALL ALONE AND ASKING FOR NEITHER AID NOR PITY

BY MARION LOWE.

She died Sunday night and she was buried today. And that is all Seattle knows about the short, common-place life of a girl of 18, Annie Moore.

Even that, perhaps, is more than Seattle cares. She was just a factory girl. Few people knew her—just a plain little girl earning her daily wages. She lived and she died, and that's about all there is to it. A last gasping breath, a hymn or two, a plain coffin, the hearse, and the rattling clods of earth at the grave—just a plain little factory girl who has drawn her last pay envelope.

HER PLACE IS ALREADY FILLED.

No need to pause and weep. There are thousands of others. Her place is already filled.

But if she is one of a long line of girls who daily go down to the grave alone, isn't that something to make the crowd stop for just a moment, lift the hat and drop a tear?

Annie Moore hadn't a relative in the world. "It's better that I die," she said, "nobody cares." For months she has lain on a cot breathing out her young life in a rasping cough. Social workers were kind and did what they could, but nowhere in all the world was there man or woman who was kin to her and could smooth her pillow with the touch of love.

SHE ASKED FOR NEITHER PITY NOR AID.

"No, don't tell anybody about me," she said. "It will soon be over, and the sooner the better." She refused all offers of financial help with proud independence. She asked neither pity nor money. She was alone and she would fight it out alone.

From her small earnings she had saved enough to buy a coffin and a little spot of ground where she could be buried.

Sunday night, when the storm was high, this girl was nearing the end in the tent by the edge of the lake. The winds moaned and the waves lapped the shore. The flaps of the tent flew back and a little bark, bearing the spirit of Annie Moore drifted out on the great unknown. She had gone to meet the God who plants His footstep in the sea and rides upon the storm.

BUSINESS MEN CHEER NAME OF ROOSEVELT

(By United Press.) MINNEAPOLIS, March 1.—The name of Theodore Roosevelt was vociferously cheered here by 300 leading merchants, manufacturers and shippers when Frank B. Kellogg, the government's chief "trust buster," gave him the credit for the enactment of laws preventing railroad rebates, last night.

His main point contended that until the government was ready to control all railroad rates and facilities entirely, it should prohibit a consolidation which would destroy competition.

If the railroads should form one big combination, declared Kellogg, it would be necessary for the government to regulate all the details of their business. He contended, however, that the government should not attempt any such undertaking as this until forced to do so by a direct communication.

He urged against allowing the railroads to control steamship lines and declared that the Panama canal would be useless if it did not develop competition.

William Hickman Moore, candidate for mayor, will speak tonight at the United Presbyterian church, 14th av. and Spring st., and at the Queen Anne Congregational church. Meetings in the interest of democratic ward candidates will be held at Williams hall, Southeast Seattle, and at Lakeside hall, Dunlap.

MOORE HAS BUSY WEEK AHEAD

Friday noon a rally will be held at the Grand Opera House, and night meetings will be held at Payne's hall, Latona; Pelan's hall, Columbia City; Pratt's hall, Hillman City; Dugdale's hall, Rainier Beach, and Junction hall, Ballard.

Saturday night Judge Moore will speak at a rally in the Seattle Theatre, and a Moore meeting will be held at Dudley's hall, South Park.

RENO, Nev.—Quarreling over a debt of a few dollars, Frank Rogers shot and killed W. E. Lorton, a business man, on a downtown street.

FAVORS AMENDMENTS NOS. 12 AND 13

Attorney Walter McClure endorses amendment 12, for nine councilmen-at-large, and amendment 13, for non-partisan primaries.

"The city would better be served by fewer men in the council, who would work together for the general good of the city at large. The city is growing rapidly, and as the population increases additional wards are bound to be added. This means additional councilmen.

"The opportunity is now offered to do away with this old method of conducting city affairs and provide for the election of nine men who would better serve Greater Seattle. It would also put a stop to the present trading system whereby councilmen in one ward vote for improvements in another ward simply to secure votes for ordinances which they desire to have passed.

"Amendment 13, providing for non-partisan primaries, should be adopted in order that politics may be taken out of city affairs."

Open Realty Office. H. E. Gilman and J. W. Lysons, both prominent in state politics, have opened offices at 400 Central building under the firm name of Gilman-Lysons Realty company.

The new firm will engage in general real estate, loan, investment and insurance business.

HIGHER COST OF SCIENCE HEALING

NEW YORK, March 1.—Christian Science healers have joined in the general price up-lift.

Healers here have voted to put up the cost of treatment from $1 to $3. This is the New York rate. In Boston the new price is $2.50, and in Philadelphia it is $2.50. Hitherto the general charge was $1 a treatment.

Prices vary in different states, but on December 24 Mrs. Eddy issued the following edict: "Christian Science practitioners should make their charges for treatment equal to those of reputable physicians in their respective localities."

TOM TYRER PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Tom Tyrer, formerly accountant in the county auditor's office, pleaded not guilty to an information charging him with embezzlement in the superior court yesterday.

Tyrer is accused of embezzlement in being an accomplice with Charles Head in the latter's embezzlements of county funds while acting as clerk in the court of Justice of the Peace John E. Carroll.

When Head was arrested he confessed that his accounts were short approximately $3,500. The shortage was repaid by Head.
