CAN TWO PEOPLE LIVE ON FIFTEEN DOLLARS A WEEK?

Young Woman Asks Editor the Question—The Editor Asks Star Readers—What Do YOU Think?

Can two people marry and live on $15 a week? That is what a young woman in Portland, Ore., wants to know. She has written to the editor of a Portland newspaper asking his advice. The woman's editor of The Star would like to get the opinion of its readers on this subject, and wishes to hear from some of the young couples of this city who have been courageous enough to brave the matrimonial seas on a small income. Write and tell The Star how you managed and what small economies you practiced. Perhaps you may help others to carry their burdens in the struggle to maintain a home.

Following is the letter written by the Portland girl to the editor of a paper in that city:

"I am a young lady 20 years of age and very much in love with a young man two years my senior. He is very anxious for me to marry him, and I would do so, for I love him dearly, but there is an obstacle in the way. He is a hard working, honest young man, but makes only $14 to $16 a week, and I fear we could not live happily on such an income.

"I write to ask you if you will publish this letter in the hope that some of your readers may have had the experience of living on such an income and can give me advice. I am whole hearted and courageous and would willingly marry the young man if I could only get some guide or be advised of how we can make ends meet and be happy on such an income. Hoping that you will be able to aid me, I beg to remain,

"MISS F. L. H."

Cynthia Greys Letters

Dear Miss Grey: Will you please tell us in The Star when the city of Galveston, Tex., was destroyed by the tidal wave? This is on a bet by two readers of The Star.

A READER.

A.—Saturday, September 8, 1900.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly tell me through The Star the following? (1) How to make potato yeast and a recipe to make bread from same yeast. (2) How would be very much obliged to any reader of this column who will send in a reliable recipe. (3) When the stove is perfectly dry, wash it with soap and water. Cover the red parts with vinegar. Use turpentine instead of soda or vinegar to dilute polish. Apply it evenly all over the stove with a small paint brush. Rub the polish with a brush and polish with an old woolen cloth. As turpentine is an explosive, be careful to have no fire about the stove. A drop or two of molasses in the mixture will make the stove much blacker, especially after it has grown red and is difficult to polish over the lids.

WORTH KNOWING.

Most cold vegetables can be used for salads, while others not suitable for this purpose can be rewarmed or added to stews or soups. Potatoes are excellent for making scones or rissoles, or for covering shepherd's pie.

Slice ripe bananas into a delicately baked pie crust, and cover with whipped cream, sweetened.

Ammonia and water is excellent for freshening a felt hat. Put a little cold water into a saucer and add to it a few drops of ammonia, and with this sponge the hat thoroughly after it has been well brushed to remove all dust. Next wring a fairly thick cloth out of cold water and lay it over the hat, and iron with a moderately hot flatiron until it is dry. Pulling the cloth away will raise the nap, and the hat, unless very old, will look almost like new.

To remove the odor of fish from steel knives wash them in hot vinegar, then suds.

Great Growth Due to The Star The above letter, from a very well-known, successful Seattle business house, shows what The Star will do as an advertising medium. Located outside of the main business district, a large business was built up, and not a line of advertising was used except in The Star, and the returns from The Star furnished a volume of business that made possible this great growth.
